Down With The Old Grandstand, Up With The New

Although it won't happen quite that fast, demolition of the old grandstand at the State Fairgrounds racetrack was begun this week by Carveth Construction Co. Meanwhile, Kingery Construction Co. started driving piles (right) for the $3.8 million grandstand scheduled for completion in the spring of 1977. The construction is part of a $5 million refurbishing of the track which began with reshaping the track itself and building new horse barns this spring. Ford Raps Busing

. . . Says Courts Ignore Law

Washington (UPI) — President Ford, moving closer to foes of forced school busing, said Tuesday federal courts "in many instances" apparently have ignored a 1974 law requiring them to consider other proposals "before they actually use the busing remedy."

Without citing any specific cases, Ford leveled the criticism while holding a copy of the law during an informal Oval Office news conference. He said he wanted federal judges to give more weight to "the priority of remedies" set under the statute sponsored by Rep. Marvin L. Esch, R-Mich.

"I just happen to have a copy of the Esch amendment here that sets forth seven specific proposals that the court should follow before they actually use the busing remedy," Ford said, recalling that he signed the law Aug. 12, 1974, three days after taking office.

Priorities Recited

The President ticked off some priorities listed in the law, including "assigning students closest to their homes," building new schools or creating different attendance zones "without requiring transportation."

"Then it goes on to say that students should not be transferred to a school other than the school closest or the next closest to his place of residence," Ford said.

"Now those recommendations included in law in many instances apparently have not been followed by the courts," he said. "I think the court ought to take into cognizance the legislative recommendations that are as a matter of law at the present."

Busing Criticized

In his political travels around the nation, Ford has criticized forced busing to achieve "quality education" and suggested that improved facilities or teacher-student ratios were "better ways" to get it.

In taking that position Tuesday, he said enough federal emergency school aid was available to finance alternatives to busing "if you focus it on the places where the tension is the highest, and the problem is the greatest, particularly if the courts follow the law as was enacted by the Congress in 1974."

The President said he knew such aid had been made available to Boston, scene of prolonged violence over the busing controversy, and that he thought funds also had been given to Louisville, another troublespot.

Greenberg Comments

Director Jack Greenberg of the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund, which brings many school school desegregation actions, said Ford "ought to mention what particular cases he has in mind."

He said some of the most prominent busing orders — those in Boston and Louisville, Ky. — were handed down before the Esch amendment was passed or signed by Ford, although they did not take effect until this fall.

"There is a general provision in most laws that nothing contained therein shall violate constitutional rights. Segregated education violates the Constitution, and if the only way to end segregation is by busing, then that takes precedence over this law," Greenberg said.

32 Minutes

In responding to other questions during the 32-minute news conference, Ford said:

—He would ask Congress to order changes in U.S. intelligence operations, but "I would not rule out necessary political activity by the United States if it involves our security."

—The United States has agreed to supply "substantial amounts of military hardware" to Israel as part of that country's recent interim accord with Egypt. (More on Page 2.)

—He will decide "in a reasonably short period of time" whether to recommend a one-year extension of the tax cut Americans got last spring and that he remained totally against a reimposition of any wage and price controls.

—He would not turn over any more classified information to the House Select Committee on Intelligence until assured that the panel would keep the material under wraps and noted that "if a private individual released it, it would be a serious criminal offense."

—Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has done "a fine job" and "knows how I feel about him (but) I don't think that is the tradition at this early stage" when asked to formally endorse him for the second spot on the 1976 GOP ticket.

Bail Reduced For Fromme; Judge Modifies Gag Order

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A judge reduced bail for Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who is accused of attempting to kill President Ford, from $1 million to $350,000 Tuesday after she pleaded to be set free on her word.

"Before the world at this time, my word to myself or anybody is my life," the 26-year-old Charles Manson disciple said from the witness stand. She promised to appear in court whenever asked.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride rejected the defense attorney's request to release Miss Fromme without bail.

He agreed with the prosecutor who described the attempted assassination of President Ford as a "heinous" crime.

"The nature of the criminal charges is extremely serious, a heinous crime to say the very least," the judge said.

Miss Fromme was indicted by a federal grand jury last week for "willfully and knowingly" pointing a pistol at Ford during his Sept. 5 visit to the state capital.

She is scheduled to enter a plea Friday, when MacBride said he would listen to questions regarding her request to act as her own attorney.

MacBride also modified what he called the "silence" order against comment on the case by anyone involved in the case.

The modified order allows Miss Fromme to speak to anyone — including the press — on any subject except the attempted assassination of President Ford.

Outside the courtroom, Miss Fromme's roommate, Sandra Good, told reporters: "We don't have that kind of money ($350,000). Anybody out there who has that kind of money, she needs your help."

Miss Fromme, a diminutive redhead, wore a red, hooded habit-like dress. She told the court in a calm, naturally high-pitched voice that she would need freedom to talk to witnesses and prepare her own defense.

Testimony of Miss Fromme and others disclosed:

— Miss Fromme, Susan "Heather" Murphy, and Miss Good lived on Miss Good's $200 monthly checks from a trust account from an undisclosed inheritance. It declines to $100 a month on Jan. 1, Miss Good said. They also received "about $30" a month in donations from friends.

— Miss Fromme has taken public assistance in the form of food stamps, and received a $1,100 student loan to attend Sacramento City College about eight months ago.

— Miss Fromme said she does not drink or take drugs, but Miss Good said they occasionally used marijuana. Miss Fromme, asked when she last took the hallucinatory drug LSD, replied: "The last time was about a year ago."

Pershing Ends Big Year In The Red

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Although the past year was Pershing Auditorium's second biggest ever for gross receipts, the city auditorium ended its financial year $57,863 in the red.

Manager Ivan Hoig said it's the biggest one-year deficit the auditorium has ever recorded. The "rock concert recession" was blamed for much of the loss.

'We just aren't getting the grosses we were," Hoig told auditorium directors at the board meeting Tuesday. "Whether the crunch is finally getting to Lincoln, Neb., I just don't know."

To head off criticism of the deficit, Hoig passed out a list of expenditures for major auditorium improvements completed during fiscal 1974-75.

The list, which totaled more than $58,000, included $11,000 for tile for the concourses; $10,308 for a new Model D concert Steinway piano; $4,354 to replace the seal on the ice rink machine and $7,776 for new aluminum doors for the inner lobby.

Hoig said he compiled the list so board members would have answers when asked about the $57,000 deficit.

"I always get this (criticism) when the report comes out in the paper," he said.

It now costs an average of $744 a day, 365 days a year, to operate the auditorium, Hoig told the board. Expenses are up about $40 a day over last year.

As expected, some of the biggest increases have been for energy. Electricity costs, for example, were up more than 50%, from $15,915 to $24,771.

Hoig said considerably more money was spent last year to update and modernize the building and equipment than was spent in years past. More remodeling is scheduled for the coming fiscal year, he said, but the extent depends on the amount of money made available by the city.

Competition has become "so keen," he said, "that we have to update some things if we want to attract conventions. There are so many places to go now . . . and hotels and motels can provide a lot of things we can't."

In line with other increases, the board voted to hike ice skating admission fees. During prime evening skating times, children will now pay $1 and adults $1.50. In the mornings and after school, skaters will pay the same rate as before: 75 cents for kids and $1 for adults.

Hoig also announced that the Ice Capades will probably be returning March 24-27, despite the fact that "they did so poorly last year."

Upcoming rock concerts include Jefferson Starship Oct. 4; J. Geils Band Oct. 16, Todd Rungren Nov. 13 and Pure Prairie League Nov. 22.

Flight Inaugurated

Taipei (UPI) — China Airlines has inaugurated Boeing 747 jumbo jet service between Taipei and Los Angeles. A spokesman said CA will operate three flights weekly, with a stopover at Honolulu. The airline will continue to use Boeing 707 aircraft on its Taipei-San Francisco route, also served by three flights a week.

Roads Dept. To Ask Less In Next Budget

The State Roads Department has reversed the usual trend in government spending and is requesting $27 million less for 1976-77 than it budgeted for 1975-76.

Roads Department officials said the drop is because millions of dollars in federal highway funds were released earlier this year.

George Welty, assistant controller for the department, said the $146 million 1975-76 is unusually high because the released highway funds will be spent on contracts awarded in 1974-75.

By 1976-77, Welty said the build-up of impounded funds will have disappeared, leaving the state highway program with "pretty much a normal year."

The 1976-77 request is $119 million. Welty said the 1974-75 budget was $127 million The additional decrease for 1976-77, he said, is due to the completion of Nebraska's interstate highway system.

The State Patrol's budget request indicated it is seeking a $500,000 budget hike for 1976-77, while the State Revenue Department is seeking an additional $5 million.

Farmers Asked To Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Council of America wants U.S. farmers to call its toll-free number Wednesday night and say how they feel about President Ford's decision to embargo grain sales to the Soviet Union.

"Farmers are incensed and bewildered over the President's decision and the poor advice his nonfarm advisers are giving, so we've decided to give him some of our own," Baxter Freese, the council chairman, said Tuesday.

Freese said the views of everyone who calls "will be personally delivered to the White House." The toll-free number is 800-424-3510. It will be open between 6 p.m. CDT and 10 p.m. CDT Wednesday, he said.

City Clerk Springer, 59, Dies

City Clerk Harold Springer, a city employe for almost 30 years, died at a local hospital late Tuesday afternoon after suffering a heart attack in the County-City Building. He was 59.

Springer was at a meeting about 1:30 p.m. when he began to have difficulty breathing. His secretary called the fire department, which then called the Bryan Hospital Heart Team. He was taken to the hospital where he died a few hours later.

Mayor Helen Boosalis said, "Harold was a dedicated public servant. He served his community well for many, many years. We'll all miss him." Deputy City Clerk Marguerite Spaedt will serve as acting city clerk, Mrs. Boosalis said.

Springer already had nine years of service with the city when he became deputy city clerk and assistant city auditor in 1955. He served in those posts nearly four years.

In May 1959, Finance Director and City Clerk Theo Berg retired. Mayor Bartlett E. Boyles appointed Springer as city clerk and James Mallon as finance director. The previously dual position was split at that time because a new city charter increased the finance director's duties.

Springer was elected president of the clerks' section of the League of Nebraska Municipalities in 1971. In March 1974, he was recognized as a certified municipal clerk by a national organization of municipal clerks.

He was also active outside City Hall. Springer was a member of the Lincoln Masonic Lodge. He served as scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 21 at Christ Methodist Church before "retiring" in 1968 to become a district commissioner.

Elks Expected To Sell Eight-Year-Old Lodge

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln Elks Lodge 80 is expected to put its eight-year-old building at 15th and P up for sale with a $2.75 million price tag.

The building originally cost $1.4 million.

Richard Blomgren, chairman of trhe board of trustees, told The Star the lodge has not authorized the sale but is expected to take action within the next month.

Stressing that the sale is not "a distress sale or anything like that," Blomgren said the lodge has "no definitive plans" at this time, but the majority of members feels the lodge should relocate outside of downtown Lincoln.

He said that the lodge is not in a position that it must sell the property immediately, and he anticipates that it could take as long as two to three years to sell it.

In response to questioning about a Sept. 12 letter sent out to all Elks Lodge 80 members, Blomgren said the majority feels that it is necessary to have more than the current 3,000-plus membership to maintain the building — some 90,000 square feet of space.

Exalted Ruler John F. Zimmer III, in a telephone interview, said that the Elks Lodge would relocate in "less auspicious quarters" — hopefully with about 30,000 square feet of space.

However, he indicated that if the membership were increased to about 5,000 and sufficient funds were raised, the lodge might choose to remain at the present location.

According to Blomgren, many members would like to build a swimming pool in conjunction with a new location — preferably near a golf course.

He said a move outside the downtown core would change the character of the club from a daytime or luncheon club to a dinner club.

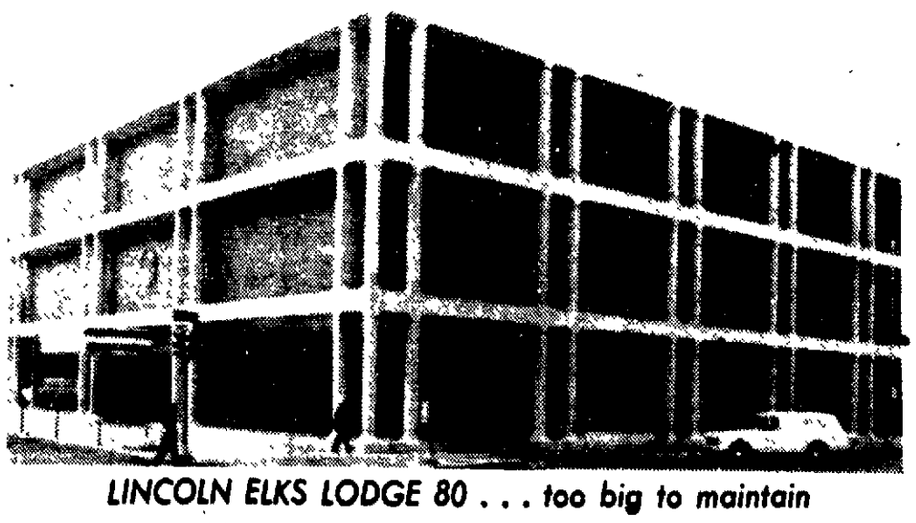

He noted that many private clubs are adopting new policies to increase the usage of their respective facilities, including a quarterly assessment if a member doesn't spend that much during the quarter in utilization of the club facilities.

The Elks, in the letter to its members, stresses that the sale does not mean the lodge is folding but that "Elks Lodge 80 will continue (regardless)."

However, it does state that sale of the building will not solve all problems and that added usage of the facilities and membership participation are necessary.

The lodge has approved a $300,000 drive in which members are asked to invest $1,000 or more at 10% interest until the goal is reached.

Blomgren said that the lodge has already raised between 25 and 35% of that goal, which was set to pay four months of the $870,000 mortgage on the property, to pay off past due accounts and for use as working capital.

He said a move outside the downtown core would change the character of the club from a daytime or luncheon club to a dinner club.

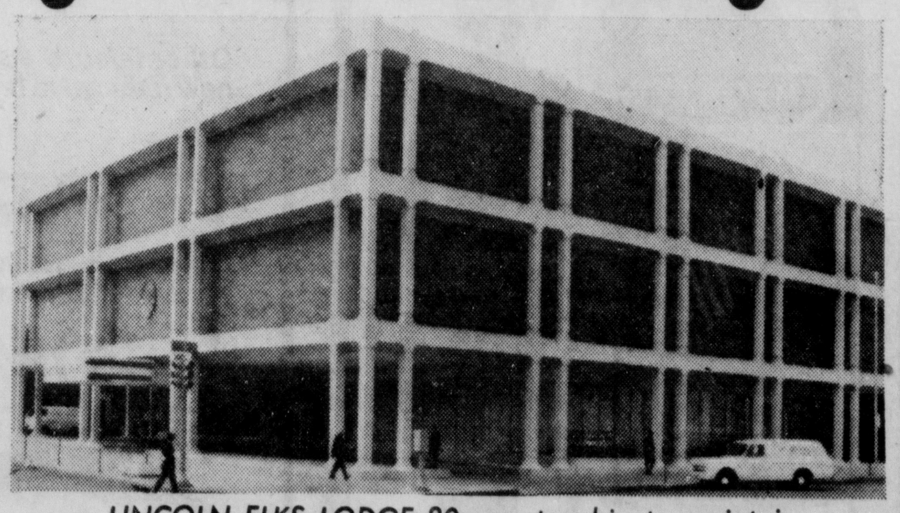

He noted that many private clubs are adopting new policies to increase the usage of their respective facilities, including a quarterly assessment if a member doesn't spend that much during the quarter in utilization of the club facilities.

The Elks, in the letter to its members, stresses that the sale does not mean the lodge is folding but that "Elks Lodge 80 will continue (regardless)."

However, it does state that sale of the building will not solve all problems and that added usage of the facilities and membership participation are necessary.

The lodge has approved a $200,000 drive in which members are asked to invest $1,000 or more at 10% interest until the goal is reached.

Blomgren said that the lodge has already raised between 25 and 35% of that goal, which was set to pay four months of the $670,000 mortgage on the property, to pay off past due accounts and for use as working capital.

Colby Admits CIA Kept Secret Poison Cache

UPI

DART GUN . . .Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., sights through telescope of what CIA calls 'nondiscernable microbionoculator.'

Washington (UPI) — Director William E. Colby admitted Tuesday the CIA kept a secret cache of deadly poisons and forbidden weapons — including a suicide drug for captured U.S. spies — despite presidential orders to destroy them in 1970.

Later, Dr. Frank Gordon, a retired CIA scientists, identified himself and two colleagues as the agency officials who secreted the most potent of the banned poisons in a vault where it remained hidden for five years, until last May.

Questioned for hours by the Senate Intelligence Committee, Gordon said his group decided the White House directive did not apply to the CIA's supply of deadly shellfish toxins because they were chemical, not biological, agents and because he thought the directive was meant only for the Army.

'Astounding'

"I find your testimony astounding," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman. "You and your facility decided to retain this toxin although you knew that it might very well have been a violation of a presidential order."

Gordon, former chief of the chemical branch of the CIA's clandestine operations department, said it had taken 10 years and sizeable funds to develop the tiny supply of shellfish toxin — reportedly enough to kill thousands of persons

Gordon said the CIA's supply of the shellfish toxin had been stored by the Army at Ft. Detrick, Md., biological laboratory until 1970, when the White House issued its ban against U.S. use of such weapons. He said he had then had the Army return the poison to CIA custody.

Instant Suicide

He and Colby described the poison as an instantaneous killer that could be used against opposing agents or by captured U.S. agents for quick, painless suicide.

Preceding Gordon at the Senate hearing, Colby said the lethal poisons had been retained without his knowledge at the decision of a retired CIA official — but he did not identify that official.

Testifying in a dry, matter-of-fact tone, Colby discussed the poisons and weapons that had been hidden away and said that the official records of who had originally authorized development of the poisons were destroyed three years ago.

In his testimony, Colby said he thought former CIA Director Richard Helms knew of the destruction of these records.

Correction Made

Later, however, Colby's lawyer called the committee staff to say Colby had been mistaken and that records of the program apparently had not been destroyed after all. The lawyer, Mitchell Rogovin, said Colby would officially correct his testimony by a letter to the committee.

At the White House, meanwhile, President Ford announced he will ask Congress to reorganize the CIA, evidently in response to allegations the agency has plotted the assassination of foreign leaders, spied on Americans at home and violated its charter in other ways. This sparked immediate speculation that Colby would be fired.

Ford said he planned "some administrative changes" within the intelligence community and informed administration sources said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has been especially upset by the extent of Colby's disclosures to congressional investigative committees.

This summer, a commission on government reorganization also recommended that the President should select a CIA director who has his personal confidence and who has had broad administrative experience.

But Ford told a news conference he wants the CIA to continue such covert missions abroad as protect "our national security."

The Senate committee opened its hearings to the public for the first time to deal with reports the CIA had continued stockpiling forbidden biological and chemical weapons despite an order from President Richard M. Nixon to destroy them in 1970.

Colby confirmed that agency officials, investigating the allegations, found an 8-by-10-foot vault on May 20 that was stocked with "lethal materials, incapacitants, narcotics, hallucinogenic drugs, irritants and riot control agents, herbicides, animal control materials and many common chemicals."

Electric Dart Gun

He produced a black electric dart gun, slightly larger than a .45 pistol, and explained it could fire poison-tipped darts 100 yards and kill a person silently and instantly at that range.

"It is a very deadly weapon," Colby said, handing the gun up to Sen. Church, who examined it gingerly and passed it to the other panel members.

Colby also said the secret cache included 11 grams of deadly poisons made from cobra venom and shellfish toxins. He said these had been retained by a CIA branch chief, now retired, who considered Nixon's destruction order senseless and wasteful.

Colby said these poisons, outlawed under a treaty banning biological and chemical warfare, could be used in offensive weapons such as the dart gun or in new, improved suicide pills for U.S. spies.

'L-Pill' Slow Agony

He said the poisons, injected by tiny "drills" or "pins," killed instantly and were considered an improvement over the agonizing, slow-acting "L-pill" provided agents during World War II.

He disclosed that Francis Gary Powers, pilot of the U2 spy plane shot down by the Soviets in 1960, was equipped with one of the new poison needles hidden inside a hollow silver dollar.

"Obviously (he) did not use it and was not instructed to do so," Colby said. "It was offered to him to provide him with an option."

U.S. To Give Israel Arms As Part Of Sinai Deal

Washington (UPI) — The United States will provide "very substantial" arms to Israel because of secret accords with the interim Sinai agreement, and missiles that can carry nuclear warheads and the F16 fighter plane are "on the shopping list," President Ford said Tuesday.

As Ford held a news conference in his office, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and his Republican counterpart, Hugh Scott, said they had not been told about the United States supplying such arms to Israel in briefings by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Ford's comments came after a report in Tuesday's editions of the Washington Post, saying columnist Jack Anderson had learned that Israel might get American Pershing missiles and the F16 fighter plane in return for reaching the interim Sinai accord with Egypt.

The missiles can carry nuclear warheads and their 460-mile range would cover most Arab capitals. The F16 will be the newest American fighter craft and is due off the production lines in 1979.

Ford said the United States would supply Israel with "sizable hardware," but while the Pershing missile and the F16 were to be discussed, "those are not firm commitments."

"They do involve negotiations between the United States and Israel," Ford said. "They are on the shopping list and they will be discussed with representatives of the Israeli government."

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres is to arrive Wednesday to discuss Israel's military needs. In response to a question, Ford said this did not indicate the two nations were moving toward a security treaty.

"I wouldn't say a security treaty," Ford said. " . . Historically, the United States has supplied Israel with very substantial military weaponry and it is our plan to do so in the future."

Ford asserted material covering the missiles and the F16 "has all been submitted to the responsible committees in the Congress," but neither Mansfield nor Scott — both members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which was briefed by Kissinger — said he could recall being told about them.

"No, I was surprised to see that in the papers," Mansfield said. "I want more information on that. I assume we'll get that information."

"I think the committee will want a full explanation if they don't already have one," Scott said.

Kissinger, in Orlando, Fla., for a Southern governors meeting, said the $2.2 billion to $2.3 billion the administration wanted in military and economic aid for Israel could not be regarded as part of the price of the interim agreement because the administration would have sought that much even without the accord.

The "cost" of the interim agreement to the United States, he said, would be only "a few hudnred million dollars."

Ford Is Against Decriminalization

Washington (UPI) — President Ford said Tuesday he saw no reason now to propose decriminalization of the private use of marijuana.

"I do not believe we have sufficient evidence at the present time to warrant any recommendation in that regard," Ford told a news conference.

Ford said he had read "summaries of a number of studies in this area and there is no consensus and, therefore, until more information is available, I would not make any such recommendation."

New York City Teachers Vote To End Strike

By The Associated Press

Teachers in budget-battered New York City voted Tuesday to end a week-long strike that had closed the 1.1 million-pupil school system, largest in the nation.

The vote at Madison Square Garden, in which only 17,378 of the city's 65,000 teachers cast ballots, was expected to lead to resumption of classes on Thursday in New York's 950 schools.

As the voting was underway, some teachers accused United Federation of Teachers president Albert Shanker of "selling out" the union. The favorable vote was 10,651 to 6,695, with the rest of the ballots blank.

"We have gotten the most we can, given the fiscal situation in the city," Shanker said.

The strike cut school attendance from 37,000 at the beginning Sept. 9 to 11,085 Tuesday.

Major concessions on both sides appeared to have been made due to the current budget crunch that has sent the city down the path of financial chaos.

Other teacher strikes continued around the nation, another major one being in Chicago, where 27,600 teachers and 530,000 pupils were still out of classrooms All of the city's 600 schools remained closed.

The remaining issues in the Chicago strike, which began Sept. 3, are cost of living increases, class size and fringe benefits The teachers' current salary scale runs from $14,400 for beginners to a top of $21,000 for those with a doctor's degree and 15 years experience.

In New York City, the teachers, who now earn from $9,700 to $20,350 annually, will receive a $300 cost of living increase. In addition, those with 10 to 15 years service would get a $750 longevity increase and those with 15 or more years a $1,500 increase.

The pact also calls for the immediate rehiring of 2,400 of the 4,000 regular teachers laid off by the Board of Education because of the $230 million budget cutback imposed by the fiscally strapped city.

The most controversial element in the pact is the shortening of the pupil's school day by one period twice a week, in return for teachers giving up two free-time preparation periods a week.

Class sizes, one of the key elements, would remain at the maximums prescribed in the old contract — 32 pupils in elementry schools, 33 in junior high schools and 34 in high schools.

Shanker said the board abandoned virtually all of its productivity demands. And the teachers union yielded on its demand for a 25% pay hike.

"Were we to remain on strike a few more days, or weeks, we might win a few more contractual gains than we have. But we would lose many other battles, and those issues would severely weaken us for the major fights that loom ahead," Shanker said.

When the tentative agreement was announced at 6:30 a.m., following all-night negotiations over last-minute snags, Shanker described the pact as "the best that can be done under the circumstances."

Board Told Military Ban On Gays Unconstitutional

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — The attorney for T. Sgt. Leonard P. Matlovich, an admitted gay, told an Air Force discharge board here Tuesday that the military's historic ban on homosexuals violates their constitutional right to privacy.

The Air Force regulation calling for automatic discharge of gay servicemen is unlawful because it imposes "the morality of the majority on its employes," said attorney Susan Hewman.

Ms. Hewman is one of two American Civil Liberties Union lawyers who are representing Matlovich, 32, who has been decorated during his 12 years in the Air Force, in the hearing that began Tuesday.

Matlovich himself prompted the hearing at Langley Air Force Base, where he serves as an instructor in race relations, when he wrote the secretary of the Air Force in March to admit his homosexuality.

His admission was designed to produce a test of the military regulations that prohibit the retention of homosexuals by the military once their sex deviationis discovered.

The government contends that the presence of homosexuals in military ranks would hamper recruitment, destroy morale and offer foreign agents a chance for blackmail.

AP

T.Sgt. Leonard Matlovich . . . admitted homosexual.

Ms. Hewman asked the discharge board of two majors, two lieutenant colonels and a colonel at the outset of the hearing Tuesday specifically to overturn the Air Force ban on homosexuals.

But her motion was quickly denied by the board's legal adviser, Col. Robert E. Shank, 52, who serves the board in the capacity of a civil court judge.

Lt. Col. John Schofield Jr., Matlovich's former commanding officer at Langley, was one of the first witnesses called by Air Force legal counsel Lt. Col. James E. Applegate.

Schofield testified that when he learned that Matlovich had admitted being a gay, he was "quite shocked."

He said he was concerned about the impression this revelation might have on members of the race relations classes taught by Matlovich.

Asked what effect Matlovich's admission had on his ability as a serviceman, Schofield replied: "I consider his ability to be totally impaired."

But two enlisted men who had worked with Matlovich in 1971 as race relations instructors in Florida disagreed.

Both told the panel they knew Matlovich's homosexuality but felt it did not affect his ability to instruct.

Both said also that if Matlovich were the noncommissioned officer in charge they would gladly follow his orders and respect his decisions.

Matlovich has said he isn't interested in becoming a symbol of gay liberation. Most of all, he has said, he wants to be permitted to stay in the Air Force because "my heart is with the military."

Terrorists Given VIP Treatment

Algiers, Algeria (UPI) — Four Palestinian commandos who had threatened to blow up the Egyptian embassy in Madrid flew into Algiers Tuesday and were given VIP treatment at the airport. They indicated they would seek asylum in Algeria.

The four gunmen, who had demanded that Egypt call off peace talks with Israel, were received warmly by Algerian officials and were escorted into the VIP lounge at the Dar el Beida Airport for a dawn news conference.

"We have achieved our objective — alerting Arab and international opinion to the dangers of Egypt's accord with Israel," one of the commandos said.

But the Egyptian-Israeli talks being held to follow up the interim Sinai disengagement pact negotiated earlier this month by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger resumed on schedule in Geneva a few hours later.

The commandos were flown to Algiers in the Ilyushin 18 jet of Algerian President Houari Boumedienne. With them were five hostages including the Egyptian, Algerian and Iraqi ambassadors to Spain. All five hostages were released as soon as the plane landed.

FBI Destroyed Oswald Threat

Washington — Top officials of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, probably including the late director, J. New York — The Encyclopedia Britannica will revise all 15 articles on the republics of the Soviet Union following scholarly criticisms that the articles in last year's new edition, all prepared by Soviet citizens, contained dubious statements, insinuations, and inconsistencies. Russia Accepts Principle Of Long-Term Grain Pact

MOSCOW (AP) — A top State Department official sent here by President Ford to seek an end to sudden large Soviet purchases of U.S. grain left for home Tuesday saying he was "very optimistic" that a long-term grain trade pact will be signed soon.

Charles W. Robinson, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, also indicated in response to newsmen's questions at Moscow airport that "preliminary" discussions had been held on the possibility of grain-for-oil deals. He did not elaborate.

Robinson gave no details of the talks. But he said Soviet officials had accepted the principle of long-term purchase pacts and he spoke of a "multiyear agreement involving a substantial amount of grain."

He said the talks had been "intensive" and it was "very likely there will be an agreement in the next few weeks." He said he expected to return to Moscow "in the near future" to continue negotiations.

Robinson and his team of negotiators arrived here last Thursday and met with Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev and other top Soviet trade officials.

They were dispatched by Ford last week after he announced a moratorium on grain sales to Russia until mid-October and said he would seek a long-term purchase commitment aimed at eliminating the impact of sudden Soviet incursions into the American grain market.

The Russians, who apparently suffered harvest setbacks this year because of severe spring and summer droughts, purchased 9.8 million metric tons of U.S. grain in July. Similar large Soviet purchases in 1972 were blamed for sharp increases in U.S. food prices and repercussions in the world grain market.

Poland announced, meanwhile, that it too would have to purchase more American grain to make up for the Soviet shortage.

Board Told Military Ban On Gays Unconstitutional

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — The attorney for T. Sgt. Leonard P. Matlovich, an admitted gay, told an Air Force discharge board here Tuesday that the military's historic ban on homosexuals violates their constitutional right to privacy.

The Air Force regulation calling for automatic discharge of gay servicemen is unlawful because it imposes "the morality of the majority on its employes," said attorney Susan Hewman.

Ms. Hewman is one of two American Civil Liberties Union lawyers who are representing Matlovich, 32, who has been decorated during his 12 years in the Air Force, in the hearing that began Tuesday.

Matlovich himself prompted the hearing at Langley Air Force Base, where he serves as an instructor in race relations, when he wrote the secretary of the Air Force in March to admit his homosexuality.

His admission was designed to produce a test of the military regulations that prohibit the retention of homosexuals by the military once their sex deviationis discovered.

The government contends that the presence of homosexuals in military ranks would hamper recruitment, destroy morale and offer foreign agents a chance for blackmail.

AP

T.Sgt. Leonard Matlovich . . . admitted homosexual.

Ms. Hewman asked the discharge board of two majors, two lieutenant colonels and a colonel at the outset of the hearing Tuesday specifically to overturn the Air Force ban on homosexuals.

But her motion was quickly denied by the board's legal adviser, Col. Robert E. Shank, 52, who serves the board in the capacity of a civil court judge.

Lt. Col. John Schofield Jr., Matlovich's former commanding officer at Langley, was one of the first witnesses called by Air Force legal counsel Lt. Col. James E. Applegate.

Schofield testified that when he learned that Matlovich had admitted being a gay, he was "quite shocked."

He said he was concerned about the impression this revelation might have on members of the race relations classes taught by Matlovich.

Asked what effect Matlovich's admission had on his ability as a serviceman, Schofield replied: "I consider his ability to be totally impaired."

But two enlisted men who had worked with Matlovich in 1971 as race relations instructors in Florida disagreed.

Both told the panel they knew Matlovich's homosexuality but felt it did not affect his ability to instruct.

Both said also that if Matlovich were the noncommissioned officer in charge they would gladly follow his orders and respect his decisions.

Matlovich has said he isn't interested in becoming a symbol of gay liberation. Most of all, he has said, he wants to be permitted to stay in the Air Force because "my heart is with the military."

Terrorists Given VIP Treatment

Algiers, Algeria (UPI) — Four Palestinian commandos who had threatened to blow up the Egyptian embassy in Madrid flew into Algiers Tuesday and were given VIP treatment at the airport. They indicated they would seek asylum in Algeria.

The four gunmen, who had demanded that Egypt call off peace talks with Israel, were received warmly by Algerian officials and were escorted into the VIP lounge at the Dar el Beida Airport for a dawn news conference.

"We have achieved our objective — alerting Arab and international opinion to the dangers of Egypt's accord with Israel," one of the commandos said.

But the Egyptian-Israeli talks being held to follow up the interim Sinai disengagement pact negotiated earlier this month by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger resumed on schedule in Geneva a few hours later.

The commandos were flown to Algiers in the Ilyushin 18 jet of Algerian President Houari Boumedienne. With them were five hostages including the Egyptian, Algerian and Iraqi ambassadors to Spain. All five hostages were released as soon as the plane landed.

Rozelle Rule May Lose Out On Final Down

NEW YORK — Suppose you were under contract to the firm that employs you for, say, three years, at a specified salary and under specified working conditions. During the three years, in your opinion, your value to your employer rises considerably, and the working conditions to which you originally agreed become outmoded or inapplicable to your status. Your employer is not willing either to increase your salary or to make such changes in your working conditions as you believe warranted.

Your remedy is to work out your contract, then negotiate the best new arrangement you can make with another employer. Right?

Wrong, if you happen to go around blocking and tackling for a living in the National Football League. In that circumstance, which no doubt many young American men would welcome, if you are in the situation described above, you must first give your employer another year of your services, either at the salary you already find insufficient or, if he insists (as he usually does), at 10% less.

PETE ROZELLE

Then you're a free man and can negotiate yourself a deal with any other team — except that, if you do, your new team has to compensate your old team either by agreement, or by decree of the NFL commissioner, Pete Rozelle. That is as if an executive leaving Ford Motor Company in order to apply for a better job at General Motors could not be hired unless GM sent back to Ford some other executive, or executives, as a replacement. Quite clearly, GM would not be as anxious to hire a new boy under these circumstances — it might not be willing at all — and anywhere outside the NFL such an arrangement would be viewed as an infringement of constitutional rights, not to mention the antitrust laws.

In the NFL, however, this restrictive arrangement is known as the Rozelle Rule, and it appears to be as sacred to the owners of the various teams as their private box seats and their tax shelters. The players, on the other hand, understandably view the Rozelle Rule as a restriction on their rights and their ability to earn maximum wages, and in every legal test so far the federal courts have sided with the players. This dispute appears to be at the heart of the embryonic players' strike that caused cancellation of the New England-New York Jets exhibition last Sunday, and which threatens to delay the opening of the season next Sunday — thus threatening also the vicarious thrills of millions of American males.

This may not seem an earth-shattering matter. From its peak in the 1960's, professional football seems to have declined somewhat in popularity, and there may be only a relative handful of players who have the kind of value on the open market to bring the Rozelle Rule into effect. Moreover, as every training camp story attests, there are literally hundreds of other players considered almost but not quite good enough for the NFL and who are ready and eager to step in and take the places of players who go on strike or throw up their careers rather than accept infringements of their rights.

That is one reason why the players' union had such a difficult time last year, and probably will have just as tough a time this year, in achieving the classic solidarity that alone can make union action successful. To call for a strike against the Rozelle Rule is in effect to ask hundreds of players to support an action that has real meaning for the few league stars but not much for the rank and file, while every member of that rank and file knows that another hungry young athlete is just waiting to replace him.

But while it is probably true that most fans simply want the long-awaited games to be played next Sunday, the effort to achieve some resolution of the Rozelle Rule is important nevertheless. It is important to the players involved; it is important that employers, even of something so untypical as a professional sports team, not be allowed to tamper with and restrict the rights of people who happen to work for them; and it is important that in an area as highly visible as professional football, the strictures of the law and the Constitution should be seen to apply across the board to everyone — even a $100,000 running back (who may have only three or four years out of a long life to make anything like that kind of money).

In fact, not even the owners have attempted a serious defense of the Rozelle Rule. Not even a remotely plausible refutation of court decisions against it has been produced. The owners used to insist that they would not negotiate the rule with the players, but since those court decisions they insist that they won't negotiate anything else unless the Rozelle Rule is included in the negotiations — a patent attempt to get the players to agree in collective bargaining to something that the courts almost surely would otherwise overturn.

In the absence of a legal rationale, the owners argue the expedient that if the players were free to play out their contracts and to sign with anyone, the richest teams would grab all the best players. There is no real evidence to support this scare theory, and it might well be true instead that some badly needed stability could be brought to the sports world if the players had more bargaining strength within the present league structure.

Then perhaps it would not be necessary to form all those shaky new leagues, with the bargaining wars and dilution of the talent pool that inevitably follow.

Chautauqua Back On The Road?

At the University of Nebraska plans are now being made for a Chautauqua '76 tour.

That is happy news.

The six-town, two-week chautauqua revival this summer was a huge success, judging from the crowds, the critical response, and the numbers of people who are urging that the program be continued.

Chautauqua '75 took scores of singers, dancers, actors and political figures, mostly homegrown talent but some of national renown, on a late spring tour of the state in a revival of the form of entertainment and enlightenment which was so much a part of America in the late 1800s and early 1900s.

To many older Nebraskans fortunate enough to see the 1975 program, the revival was especially meaningful.

Many heartwarming letters were received by this newspaper and others from readers who attended chautauqua shows when William Jennings Bryan was still on the circuit. Those readers thanked the university and the program sponsors for recalling to memory some of the pleasant experiences of the past. The historical flashback was similarly enjoyed by thousands who never had been exposed to chautauqua, many probably unable to pronounce it or spell it correctly. But it's part of their lives now.

Heartened by the response, the University of Nebraska at Lincoln decided that the show should be staged again next summer. The whole thing is indefinite at this point, but it is hoped that if funding is available, the '76 tour will reach some communities not on the schedule this year and perhaps all shows will be set for weekends rather than week days.

Don Jacks, Chautauqua '76 project director, will spend the next few weeks gathering program input from Nebraskans at regional meetings across the state, and in preparing requests for funding from the same sponsoring agencies which made Chautauqua '75 possible, as well as other potential contributors. Jacks will spend the winter redesigning, improving but sticking to the basic structure of the 1975 tour which put Chautauqua back in business and, according to Jacks and just about everybody else connected with it, "made so many friends for the university."

Hopefully the friends who made Chautauqua '75 possible will stick with the project in 1976.

The more people who are able to see the program next year, the more support there may be for continuing Chautauqua on an annual basis funded by a regular appropriation from the NU budget, as Jacks has proposed.

It's probably getting a little ahead of the game but that, too, would be happy news.

New Route For The GOP

The Nebraska Republican Party's executive committee this week formally created a "new directions task force" which will seek to put some pizazz back into politics.

The task force is the outgrowth of what had been called the Political Action Leadership Group (PLAG), a number of younger GOP officeholders and party workers who had banded together out of common concern over the lack of people involved in party politics.

What new directions might the Republicans take? There were a number of suggestions put forth at the executive committee meeting, including the restructuring of the State Central Committee so that "the grass roots and the hierarchy" are more closely linked, a "new faces" program to give recognition to grass roots level workers, greater emphasis on local elections and provocative programs which would heighten interest in party meetings.

Just because the executive committee of the State GOP launched the task force doesn't mean that the leadership and the rank and file will automatically stampede off in new directions. There are those cynics who believe that many on the committee might have gone through the motions of accepting suggestions for consideration and creating a task force as a means of quieting those regarded as irritating troublemakers.

But it can also be seen as a step in the right direction, a commendable action, on the part of a state organization long known for suffocating discipline and dull politics.

The parties — both of them — need transfusions of enthusiasm.

Praise For Proposed Sculptures

Baltimore, Md.

As visitors stopping at a camp in Lincoln, Camp-A-Way, we heard of the sculpture earlier in the evening and some controversy about it. Therefore, when it was announced that a panel discussion would take place, we listened with rapt attention.

We have been traveling throughout the West and Northwest and saw sufficient monuments to horses, cowboys, Indians, soldiers, etc., executed in the 19th Century. It is good that the committee is offering the people of Nebraska and those of us who travel an opportunity to stimulate our senses. From the quick views offered by the TV camera, I was impressed with the large scope of sculptors and sculptures. If by any chance we go West next summer, we shall surely make it a point to visit Nebraska.

An artist in residence, essentially what is being done, is excellent for the people who have the opportunities to watch, discuss and meet these sculptors.

I am a media specialist in the Baltimore city schools and would like to share in Nebraska's contribution to the Bicentennial through pictures or other information available. There are many ways to celebrate this Bicentennial. Too often we tend to dwell on the past, which is over and cannot be affected by us. Therefore, I was impressed with Nebraska's emphasis on horizons which to me mean creativity, growth and the use of our past constructively.

The only way we grow is through exposure, experience and enlightenment. I hope Nebraska keeps up its excellent standards.

Presidents On The Go

WASHINGTON — In terms of presidential travel, Richard M. Nixon was a hard act to follow. He visited 28 foreign countries in his five and one-half years as president — more than any previous occupant of the Oval Office. But Gerald R. Ford is setting an even brisker pace of travel, both overseas and in the United States.

In his 13 months in office, President Ford has visited 15 foreign countries and logged more than 56,000 miles in international flight. Both figures will be larger by the end of the year. Ford is scheduled to visit China in late autumn, and he may visit the Philippines, New Zealand, Indonesia, and other countries in the Pacific during that journey.

Ford's seemingly non-stop domestic travels have taken him to 38 states thus far, and he appears to relish the itinerant life. The approach of the 1976 election campaign assures that there will be no letup in the President's trips around the country. Indeed, the White House announced in June that Ford planned to visit one or more bicentennial events every month in large and small communities across the nation until the end of 1976.

☆ ☆ ☆

Frequent and wide-ranging presidential travel is a relatively recent development. No president traveled abroad until Theodore Roosevelt sailed to Panama in 1906, and no president before Franklin D. Roosevelt ventured outside the United States more than once. Similarly, long trips around the country were a rarity except during election campaigns.

The advent of international jet air travel shattered the barriers of time and distance that had confined most presidents to Washington, D.C., and vicinity. Journeys that once took days or weeks by train or ship could now be completed in hours via jetliner. Air Force One, the presidential jet, is virtually an airborne White House.

Still, many Americans find it difficult to conceive of the presidency as a perpetual-motion machine. The recent attempt on Ford's life in Sacramento, Calif., revived half-dormant fears about the President's safety during trips in which he mingles with crowds of strangers. But Ford himself insisted that the Sacramento incident would not cramp his travel style, and he intends to go through with a scheduled return trip to California.

Other critics of unlimited presidential travel contend that a president who is frequently absent from Washington tends to lose touch with pressing everyday problems. Ford in particular has come under fire for traveling often, and openly enjoying himself, at a time of high unemployment and resurgent inflation.

Still another complaint about presidential travel stems from the president's dual role as chief executive and party leader. Although most presidential trips are billed as non-partisan by the White House, opposition party leaders invariably complain that the attendant media coverage cannot help but be politically helpful. In response to such criticism, the White House has proposed to the Federal Election Commission that the costs of Ford's avowedly political trips be borne by the "appropriate (Republican) political committee."

The issue, such as it is, may never be resolved to everyone's satisfaction. It is possible that some future president will be a genuine homebody who stays in the White House for weeks on end. Voters might then start to wonder if they had elected some sort of recluse.

By JOHN A. COOVER, JR., D.D.S., M.S.
Hastings, Neb.

A few days ago a woman armed with a loaded .45 caliber pistol was thwarted in an attempt on President Ford's life. A few weeks ago, in my home-town, two adult males allegedly raped an 11-year-old baby-sitter and are now awaiting trial.

These events constrain me to write my congressional representatives and ask them to push for new criminal laws and better ajudication of our present laws before more tragedies reminiscent of the political assassinations and lawlessness of the 1960's occur.

One benefit of stricter federal laws regarding crimes against persons might be that the value of the life of the average person on the street would command a little more respect from potential murderers, rapists, thieves and other assorted anti-social types who continue to flourish in our permissive society. The rights of the criminal seem to command more respect from our judicial system than the rights of the citizen who would like to walk through Central Park without being bodily abused.

For approximately 15 years, the crime rate in the USA has increased in geometric proportions. All sorts of excuses have been offered as reasons: poverty, lack of educational opportunity, emotional illness, alcohol and drugs, ready availability of guns, knives, weapons, etc. ad nauseum. Not once have I heard anyone in a position to do something about the real reasons speak out and attempt to correct the situation.

The real reasons for our soaring crime rate, as I see them, are twofold:

(1) An increasing lack of personal and moral responsibility.

(2) A breakdown in our legal and judicial system whereby repeated criminal offenders are out on the street instead of behind bars.

An oversimplification? Perhaps so, but consider the first reason. Where does one first learn moral and personal responsibility? One learns it in the home, in the schools, and in religious institutions. Hopefully, where one is weak, the others will be a stabilizing influence on the individual. Where all three are weak or ineffective, the stability is lost.

At this point, the second reason is influential in controlling behavior of the individual toward the rest of his fellow creatures — the law and fear of its swift and sure application if it is violated. In a developed society, a system of personal and moral integrity plus a good judicial system protects the interests of the whole society. In an underdeveloped society, the fear of legal retribution keeps the crime rate down.

It is now time in the USA to quit fooling around with criminals and get tough. The Constitution guarantees the accused the right to a speedy trial. Instead, the court-appointed lawyer, his fee paid by the taxpayer, frequently uses every trick in the book to stall, delay the trial, or get the charge reduced (plea bargaining).

If convicted, a felon or murderer sentenced to a long prison term may be eligible for parole from prison in a couple of years. These loopholes in the law and penal system should be changed. A life sentence should be exactly that if a capital crime has been committee.

Furthermore, high bail and stiff sentences should be meted out to all criminals who assault other citizens, not just to those who attack presidents, political leaders and police officers.

☆ ☆ ☆

Persons who use ANY dangerous weapon, not just firearms, in the premeditated commission of a crime should be harshly dealt with. If capital punishment is too cruel and unusual in our enlightened society, then felons who commit physical crimes against persons should be locked up until they can no longer physically prey on other people.

Confiscating weapons will not limit crime against persons. The criminal elements are the causative agents; the weapons merely make their job easier. To put it another way, treat the disease, not just the symptom.

The push for a stricter system of criminal law must come from the public since we are the majority who seek protection. Our legislators will do only what the electorate wishes them to do — and the time to do something is now.

We Nebraskans who have lived in and supported our state all our lives deserve priority in filling vacancies in high offices. We deserve the right to promotions, the right to choose our art style, the right to govern ourselves as we see fit.

Where do we stand utilizing the talents and resources of our native Nebraskans? Why must the first action taken be a nationwide search? What do our officials have against residents that we must always be left without recognition in our own state?

Well, we still have the right to vote until we find persons who are not ashamed to admit native residents may be qualified for public office. We may not always be the best but certainly we are the best more often than we are given credit for.

Praise For Proposed Sculptures

Baltimore, Md.

As visitors stopping at a camp in Lincoln, Camp-A-Way, we heard of the sculpture earlier in the evening and some controversy about it. Therefore, when it was announced that a panel discussion would take place, we listened with rapt attention.

We have been traveling throughout the West and Northwest and saw sufficient monuments to horses, cowboys, Indians, soldiers, etc., executed in the 19th Century. It is good that the committee is offering the people of Nebraska and those of us who travel an opportunity to stimulate our senses. From the quick views offered by the TV camera, I was impressed with the large scope of sculptors and sculptures. If by any chance we go West next summer, we shall surely make it a point to visit Nebraska.

An artist in residence, essentially what is being done, is excellent for the people who have the opportunities to watch, discuss and meet these sculptors.

I am a media specialist in the Baltimore city schools and would like to share in Nebraska's contribution to the Bicentennial through pictures or other information available. There are many ways to celebrate this Bicentennial. Too often we tend to dwell on the past, which is over and cannot be affected by us. Therefore, I was impressed with Nebraska's emphasis on horizons which to me mean creativity, growth and the use of our past constructively.

The only way we grow is through exposure, experience and enlightenment. I hope Nebraska keeps up its excellent standards.

Presidents On The Go

WASHINGTON — In terms of presidential travel, Richard M. Nixon was a hard act to follow. He visited 28 foreign countries in his five and one-half years as president — more than any previous occupant of the Oval Office. But Gerald R. Ford is setting an even brisker pace of travel, both overseas and in the United States

In his 13 months in office, President Ford has visited 15 foreign countries and logged more than 56,000 miles in international flight. Both figures will be larger by the end of the year. Ford is scheduled to visit China in late autumn, and he may visit the Philippines, New Zealand, Indonesia, and other countries in the Pacific during that journey.

Ford's seemingly non-stop domestic travels have taken him to 38 states thus far, and he appears to relish the itinerant life. The approach of the 1976 election campaign assures that there will be no letup in the President's trips around the country. Indeed, the White House announced in June that Ford planned to visit one or more bicentennial events every month in large and small communities across the nation until the end of 1976.

☆ ☆ ☆

Frequent and wide-ranging presidential travel is a relatively recent development. No president traveled abroad until Theodore Roosevelt sailed to Panama in 1906, and no president before Franklin D. Roosevelt ventured outside the United States more than once. Similarly, long trips around the country were a rarity except during election campaigns.

The advent of international jet air travel shattered the barriers of time and distance that had confined most presidents to Washington, D.C., and vicinity. Journeys that once took days or weeks by train or ship could now be completed in hours via jetliner. Air Force One, the presidential jet, is virtually an airborne White House.

Still, many Americans find it difficult to conceive of the presidency as a perpetual-motion machine. The recent attempt on Ford's life in Sacramento, Calif., revived half-dormant fears about the President's safety during trips in which he mingles with crowds of strangers. But Ford himself insisted that the Sacramento incident would not cramp his travel style, and he intends to go through with a scheduled return trip to California.

Other critics of unlimited presidential travel contend that a president who is frequently absent from Washington tends to lose touch with pressing everyday problems. Ford in particular has come under fire for traveling often, and openly enjoying himself, at a time of high unemployment and resurgent inflation.

Still another complaint about presidential travel stems from the president's dual role as chief executive and party leader. Although most presidential trips are billed as non-partisan by the White House, opposition party leaders invariably complain that the attendant media coverage cannot help but be politically helpful. In response to such criticism, the White House has proposed to the Federal Election Commission that the costs of Ford's avowedly political trips be borne by the "appropriate (Republican) political committee."

The issue, such as it is, may never be resolved to everyone's satisfaction. It is possible that some future president will be a genuine homebody who stays in the White House for weeks on end. Voters might then start to wonder if they had elected some sort of recluse.

New Route For The GOP

The Nebraska Republican Party's executive committee this week formally created a "new directions task force" which will seek to put some pizazz back into politics.

The task force is the outgrowth of what had been called the Political Action Leadership Group (PLAG), a number of younger GOP officeholders and party workers who had banded together out of common concern over the lack of people involved in party politics.

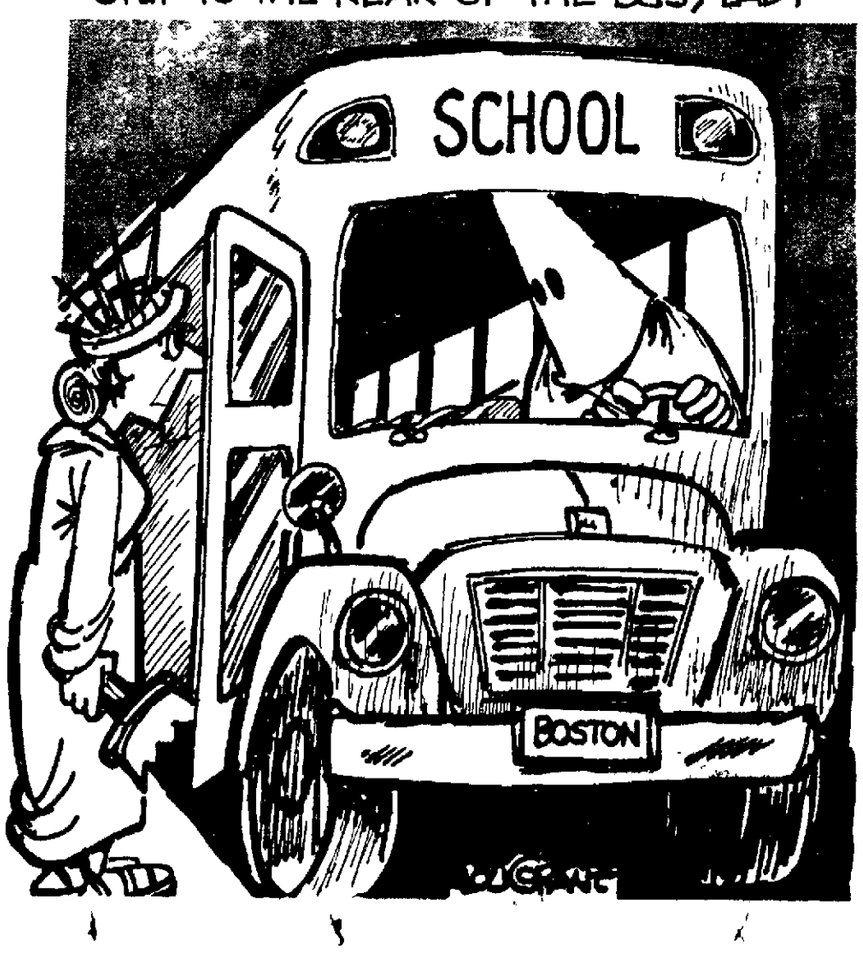

What new directions might the Republicans take? There were a number of suggestions put forth at the executive committee meeting, including the restructuring of the State Central Committee so that "the grass roots and the hierarchy" are more closely linked, a "new faces" program to give recognition to grass roots level workers, greater emphasis on local elections and provocative programs which would heighten interest in party meetings.

Just because the executive committee of the State GOP launched the task force doesn't mean that the leadership and the rank and file will automatically stampede off in new directions. There are those cynics who believe that many on the committee might have gone through the motions of accepting suggestions for consideration and creating a task force as a means of quieting those regarded as irritating troublemakers.

But it can also be seen as a step in the right direction, a commendable action, on the part of a state organization long known for suffocating discipline and dull politics.

The parties — both of them — need transfusions of enthusiasm.

By JOHN A. COOVER, JR., D.D.S., M.S.
Hastings, Neb.

A few days ago a woman armed with a loaded .45 caliber pistol was thwarted in an attempt on President Ford's life. A few weeks ago, in my home-town, two adult males allegedly raped an 11-year-old baby-sitter and are now awaiting trial.

These events constrain me to write my congressional representatives and ask them to push for new criminal laws and better ajudication of our present laws before more tragedies reminiscent of the political assassinations and lawlessness of the 1960's occur.

One benefit of stricter federal laws regarding crimes against persons might be that the value of the life of the average person on the street would command a little more respect from potential murderers, rapists, thieves and other assorted anti-social types who continue to flourish in our permissive society. The rights of the criminal seem to command more respect from our judicial system than the rights of the citizen who would like to walk through Central Park without being bodily abused.

For approximately 15 years, the crime rate in the USA has increased in geometric proportions. All sorts of excuses have been offered as reasons: poverty, lack of educational opportunity, emotional illness, alcohol and drugs, ready availability of guns, knives, weapons, etc. ad nauseum. Not once have I heard anyone in a position to do something about the real reasons speak out and attempt to correct the situation.

The real reasons for our soaring crime rate, as I see them, are twofold:

(1) An increasing lack of personal and moral responsibility.

(2) A breakdown in our legal and judicial system whereby repeated criminal offenders are out on the street instead of behind bars.

An oversimplification? Perhaps so, but consider the first reason. Where does one first learn moral and personal responsibility? One learns it in the home, in the schools, and in religious institutions. Hopefully, where one is weak, the others will be a stabilizing influence on the individual. Where all three are weak or ineffective, the stability is lost.

At this point, the second reason is influential in controlling behavior of the individual toward the rest of his fellow creatures — the law and fear of its swift and sure application if it is violated. In a developed society, a system of personal and moral integrity plus a good judicial system protects the interests of the whole society. In an underdeveloped society, the fear of legal retribution keeps the crime rate down.

It is now time in the USA to quit fooling around with criminals and get tough. The Constitution guarantees the accused the right to a speedy trial. Instead, the court-appointed lawyer, his fee paid by the taxpayer, frequently uses every trick in the book to stall, delay the trial, or get the charge reduced (plea bargaining).

If convicted, a felon or murderer sentenced to a long prison term may be eligible for parole from prison in a couple of years. These loopholes in the law and penal system should be changed. A life sentence should be exactly that if a capital crime has been committee.

Furthermore, high bail and stiff sentences should be meted out to all criminals who assault other citizens, not just to those who attack presidents, political leaders and police officers.

☆ ☆ ☆

Persons who use ANY dangerous weapon, not just firearms, in the premeditated commission of a crime should be harshly dealt with. If capital punishment is too cruel and unusual in our enlightened society, then felons who commit physical crimes against persons should be locked up until they can no longer physically prey on other people.

Confiscating weapons will not limit crime against persons. The criminal elements are the causative agents; the weapons merely make their job easier. To put it another way, treat the disease, not just the symptom.

The push for a stricter system of criminal law must come from the public since we are the majority who seek protection. Our legislators will do only what the electorate wishes them to do — and the time to do something is now.

Sobbing Turner Is Fined $5,000

Tampa, Fla. (AP) — A sobbing Glenn W. Turner, a sharecropper's son who parlayed his gift of gab into a business empire he later lost, was fined $5,000 Tuesday, ending what he termed a seven-year battle with the federal government.

Turner and three former associates pleaded no contest to federal misdemeanor charges of violating Securities and Exchange Commission regulations. Each was fined $5,000, the maximum penalty.

U.S. District Court Judge Terrell Hodges accepted the pleas, dropping felony charges that the four used the mails to defraud some 80,000 persons in an illegal pyramid sales scheme to sell distributorships in Turner's Koscot Cosmetics Co.

The pleas abruptly ended the six-week trial, a second attempt by the government to convict Turner. A first trial lasted nine months and ended last May in a hung jury.

Pleading no contest with Turner, 41, were Hobart Wilder of Altamonte Springs, Ben Bunting of Williamston, N. C., and Jess Hickman of Pineville, La.

All charges against a fifth defendant, Clyde C. Cobb of Lakewood, Colo., were dropped.

"I've been fighting the government for seven years," Turner said after his tearful courtroom scene. "My money ran out and I couldn't fight any more. That's what happened."

Turner, 41, told Hodges he had never intended to hurt anyone. "I will spend my life doing the same thing I've done — working with people who didn't have a chance," Turner said.

Saying he faced $8 million in civil suits and is $2 million in debt, Turner added, "Despite it all, I'll never take off the American flag. I love this country."

Since his legal battle began, Turner has lost control of three companies. Koscot has been placed in a receivership and Turner pleaded no contest Tuesday to mail fraud conspiracy charges on behalf of his motivational business, Dare To Be Great, Inc., and his parent firm, Glenn Turner Enterprises.

Outside the courtroom, the onetime South Carolina plowboy showed the resiliency that has marked his controversial career. He told reporters he will run for a seat in Congress in 1976.

Jackie Joins Viking Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis joined the Viking Press as a consulting editor Tuesday, the president of the publishing firm said.

The 46-year-old widow of former President John F. Kennedy and Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis will have an office in the firm's Madison Avenue headquarters.

But Thomas H. Guinzburg, president of Viking, said: "It really remains to be seen what part of how many days she spends here. We hope she'll spend a lot of time in the office."

Guinzburg described Mrs. Onassis as "an old friend of mine. I've known her since college." He declined to say how much she would earn or to specify what projects she might consult on.

But he noted, "She has taste and energy and a broad background in the fine arts. She has a lot of not-quite-ordinary contacts." He emphasized that her work would be as a consulting editor, not a writer.

"As far as I know, she has no present plan to write a book herself," he said.

An announcement about Mrs. Onassis' new job put out by Viking said her editorial activities would be related to all the Viking divisions, including adult trade, studio illustrated and paperback.

It noted that Mrs. Onassis worked for the Washington Times Herald before her marriage to Kennedy and that she contributed a piece on the opening of the International Center of Photography to the New Yorker magazine last spring.

Two Possible Paths To Recovery Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is pulling out of the worst recession since the 1930s, but Americans face unemployment and high prices for years to come, the Congressional Budget Office said Tuesday.

The budget office, Congress' counterpart to the president's Office of Management and Budget, offered two possible strategies. One would speed up economic activity to provide more jobs. The other would be aimed at trying to hold down inflation.

Forbidden to make recommendations, it advocated neither, but projected the expected consequences of both.

The nation's recent surge in prices is particularly alarming because it has been largely concentrated on necessities, said Alice Rivlin, an economist who heads the budget office. She told a news conference the surge could endanger the still-young recovery.

"When inflation is concentrated on food and fuel, consumers have to buy them anyway," she said. "There is little money left over for other purchases, and the economy suffers."

A second danger, Mrs. Rivlin said, is that continued price increases will trigger another round of large wage increases, spinning the inflationary spiral even higher.

"Some of the present favorable factors may be temporary," she declared.

The budget office forecast substantial economic recovery until at least mid-1976, but added that Americans will continue to be plagued with the nation's unprecedented combination of high unemployment and high prices at least through 1977.

By the end of 1976, its report said, the unemployment rate which has remained over 8% this year should be down to the range of 6.9 to 7.6%. This still would mean 7 million Americans without jobs.

During the remainder of this year, the report said, prices are likely to continue increasing at an annual rate of 6 to 8%. A surge of increases, especially in food and fuel prices, brought the rate up to 12% in June and July 1975, the report said, but the rate has since subsided — though not to the levels of early 1975.

A speedup in economic activity, the report said, would require continuing the temporary tax cuts in effect for this year, reducing taxes an additional $15 billion and increasing federal spending by $10 billion, all effective in 1976.

Additionally, the Federal Reserve would be expected to allow the money supply to grow enough to hold down interest rate increases.

The opposite strategy would be to end the temporary tax reductions by Jan. 1, 1976, cut spending $5 billion and keep monetary growth at a relatively low rate.

The expansionary strategy, the budget office said, would lower unemployment by 1.1% at the end of two years — meaning about 1 million more jobs — but would raise the rate of inflation for some years ahead by a maximum of 0.5 to 0.7%.

It would increase the federal deficit, although the budget office report said much of the tax and spending cost would be offset by higher revenues and lower unemployment.

The restrictive strategy, the report said, would raise the unemployment rate 0.9% at the end of two years and lower the inflation rate for several years, with a maximum reduction of 0.3 to 0.4%. It would lower the deficit, but not by the total amount involved in the spending and tax moves, the report said.

The economic recovery, Mrs. Rivlin said, can be credited largely to declining inventories, causing businesses to begin to think about replenishing them. She said it also can be credited to consumer spending spurred by the temporary tax cut and increased Social Security payments.

Equal Status For Navajos Favored

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Taking a position favored by many Indians, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said Tuesday the Navajo tribal government should be given equal status to state and local governments in receiving and managing federal funds.

In a report entitled, "The Navajo Nation: An American Colony," the commission characterized as "shocking and disgraceful" conditions on the reservation, which is the largest in the nation, covering parts of New Mexico, Arizona and Utah.

Unemployment among the approximately 137,000 Navajos is 40% and per capita income is about a fourth of the national average, the report said. Health care is "not only inadequate, it is unsafe," the commission added, and education services on the reservation generally are not coordinated by the three states and other agencies operating schools.

The commission directed much of the criticism at the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs, which oversees Indian reservations.

The BIA and other federal agencies, the commission charged, have run a "relief economy, rather than a development economy." Outside firms have failed to invest profits on the reservation, the report said, and the BIA has failed to increase Indian employment opportunities. The commission said the Indian agency should pledge to enforce a preference for Navajos in up to 100% of federal contractors' employment.

With minimal legislative changes, the Navajo tribal government could be given the status of a state to receive and administer federal funds allocated to the reservation, the commission said. It added that the tribe should be designated as an education agency comparable to a state in order to coordinate schooling on the reservation and control expenditure of federal funds.

Health care on the reservation came in for some of the strongest criticism in the report. "The hospitals are understaffed and the staff is overworked — and mistakes, serious mistakes, are common," the report said. "Staff shortages have been the documented cause of needless loss of life in several instances."

The commission, a fact-finding agency concerned with the rights of minorities, has no direct powers over other government agencies, although its reports often lead to legislation and other actions. Arthur S. Flemming, who is the commissioner on aging in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is chairman of the Civil Rights Commission.

Kissinger Warns Arab Oil Nations

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Tuesday that an anticipated price hike by Arab oil producers "would seriously jeopardize" U.S. relations with those nations and have serious repercussions throughout the world economy.

Kissinger declared in an address to the Southern Governors Conference that all countries, particularly the poorer ones, "have an interest to avoid this."

And the secretary said it is essential that the United States and its industrial allies get together on an over-all energy policy before another Arab price increase is announced.

Kissinger did not estimate what the new oil price might be. But he pointed out that the cost of Arab petroleum has climbed 500% in the last five years.

The secretary spoke sternly — although indirectly — concerning the next expected jump.

"The United States cannot entrust its economic and political destiny to decisions made elsewhere," Kissinger said.

In other matters, Kissinger told the 13 governors that the Ford Administration's request for aid to Israel this year "will be below $2.5 billion; in the range of $2.2 or $2.3 billion."

He did not give a figure for aid to Egypt, previously estimated by officials at between $600 million and $800 million. However, he defended aid to Egypt as important in cementing American influence in Cairo and in stabilizing the Middle East situation generally.

Kissinger also fended off a question by Gov. George Wallace, D-Ala., who asked if the United States planned to give up control of the Panama Canal.

"The United States must maintain the right unilaterally to defend the Panama Canal over the long range future," Kissinger answered.

He added that "nobody is in favor of turning over our defense of the Panama Canal ... or its essential operation."

However, the secretary said some formula must be reached to negotiate a new treaty in which Panama will gain new status. Otherwise, Kissinger went on, the United States would turn Panama "into a potential area of guerrilla conflict . . . a permanent confrontation between all of Latin America and the United States."

The secretary called on the governors to support a unified American energy policy, both in the interests of the U.S. economy and for hhe betterment of the world at large.

An additional large price increase by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) would leave the western world open to both economic and political manipulation, the secretary said. However, it would be the poorer nations that would be the biggest losers, he said, since they have neither the financial nor political resources to handle a destructive increase in oil prices.

OPEC Commission Prepared For Meeting

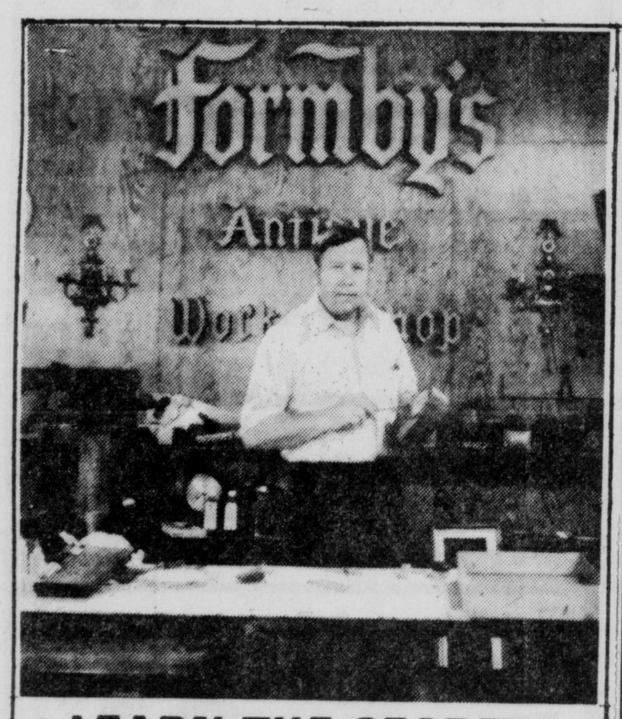

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The economic commission of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries began preparations Tuesday for a ministerial gathering that could boost the price of oil.

The average OPEC oil price is now $10.46 a barrel.

Commission members, mostly high officials of economic and finance ministries of the 13 OPEC governments and the group's Vienna headquarters, were tight-lipped about their deliberations.

The economic commission will prepare recommendations for the Sept. 24 meeting of OPEC oil ministers, who will decide whether to continue the present oil price freeze, which expires Sept. 30, or raise prices. OPEC members account for 80% of world oil trade.

San Francisco — "P'raps you can tell us, Scoggins, what you are doing with that curious East Indian shiv in your hands," said the Scotland Yard inspector.

"Well, sir," said the butler shiftily, "ZI was about to peel meself an orange. A late snack you might say, sir."

"At 3 o'clock in the morning?" said the inspector. "Come, come, my man. That won't wash."

I picked up a few Agatha Christie paperbacks the other day and am now prepared to question household help and spendthrift nephews.

I carry an "umbrella policy" in case of a deluge. An "umbrella policy" gives you twice the protection. (Like a TV deodorant.)

"Costs a trifle more," said the insurance man, "but it's safer. You're protected up to $200,000 if a guest falls down your steps. Believe me, that let's you get more sleep than if you stayed with the regular $100,000."

☆ ☆ ☆

If an heir does me in (as in the English mystery stories) said heir cannot collect a crying dime. Not much comfort if he stuck an East Indian blade in my brisket but we can't have everything.

Not that I'm feeling unhealthy. The insurance man writes me a cheery note: "How long has it been since you reviewed your insurance policies? We would be glad to—."

☆ ☆ ☆

Fact is, I've been thinking of throwing off a few policies. You can't take it with you. And I've been getting a little hot at the people who would keep it.

As for lush guests who fall down your steps and then sue, let them. Not much around this scatter they can grab.

If I can't sleep without a $200,000 umbrella, I will take a sleeping pill.

☆ ☆ ☆

The umbrella poke is also called a "personal catastrophe policy." And they couldn't have thought of a better title.

The insurance man said: "Only last week we had this case. A boy from the grocery store was loading groceries in the insured's car. Accidentally kicked off the brake and the car ran over his foot.

"That's the unexpected thing we insure you against."

☆ ☆ ☆

Insuring yourself against somebody else's clumsiness costs a bundle and the insurance man is all for it.

While insurance companies are all for paying off the oaf who can't load a bag of groceries without getting his foot run over, they are very stern about your accidents.

For my heirs to collect on me, I cannot come to pieces in any old conveyance. It must be a public conveyance. I can hang myself on a bell cord in a bus. But I cannot fall out of a supermarket shopping cart.

☆ ☆ ☆

I cannot be involved with the Armed Forces. Nor be piloting a plane without a license. If I have a license I can walk the wings or drive it into a mountain.

If the paper boy hits me with a thrown paper, and if I am tapped out and fall against his bicycle, he collects.

The company doesn't even send me a get well card. That's life, mates.

☆ ☆ ☆

"It appears," said the inspector, "that Scoggins was telling the truth. Blighter was peeling a blooming orange. Short of Vitamin C since his tour in India."

The butler never does it. It was the governess. Too glib with her excuses. I had my eye on her from the start.

Interests of the big powers "are not of direct consequence to their security and certainly do not warrant direct intervention or involvement as was done in the past," Adam Malik told a World Affairs Council gathering here.

I picked up a few Agatha Christie paperbacks the other day and am now prepared to question household help and spendthrift nephews.

I carry an "umbrella policy" in case of a deluge. An "umbrella policy" gives you twice the protection. (Like a TV deodorant.)

"Costs a trifle more," said the insurance man, "but it's safer. You're protected up to $200,000 if a guest falls down your steps. Believe me, that let's you get more sleep than if you stayed with the regular $100,000."

☆ ☆ ☆

If an heir does me in (as in the English mystery stories) said heir cannot collect a crying dime. Not much comfort if he stuck an East Indian blade in my brisket but we can't have everything.

Not that I'm feeling unhealthy. The insurance man writes me a cheery note: "How long has it been since you reviewed your insurance policies? We would be glad to—."

☆ ☆ ☆

Fact is, I've been thinking of throwing off a few policies. You can't take it with you. And I've been getting a little hot at the people who would keep it.

As for lush guests who fall down your steps and then sue, let them. Not much around this scatter they can grab.

If I can't sleep without a $200,000 umbrella, I will take a sleeping pill.

☆ ☆ ☆

The umbrella poke is also called a "personal catastrophe policy." And they couldn't have thought of a better title.

The insurance man said: "Only last week we had this case. A boy from the grocery store was loading groceries in the insured's car. Accidentally kicked off the brake and the car ran over his foot.

"That's the unexpected thing we insure you against."

☆ ☆ ☆

Insuring yourself against somebody else's clumsiness costs a bundle and the insurance man is all for it.

While insurance companies are all for paying off the oaf who can't load a bag of groceries without getting his foot run over, they are very stern about your accidents.

For my heirs to collect on me, I cannot come to pieces in any old conveyance. It must be a public conveyance. I can hang myself on a bell cord in a bus. But I cannot fall out of a supermarket shopping cart.

☆ ☆ ☆

I cannot be involved with the Armed Forces. Nor be piloting a plane without a license. If I have a license I can walk the wings or drive it into a mountain.

If the paper boy hits me with a thrown paper, and if I am tapped out and fall against his bicycle, he collects.

The company doesn't even send me a get well card. That's life, mates.

☆ ☆ ☆

"It appears," said the inspector, "that Scoggins was telling the truth. Blighter was peeling a blooming orange. Short of Vitamin C since his tour in India."

The butler never does it. It was the governess. Too glib with her excuses. I had my eye on her from the start.

Liability Suits Threat To Cops

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Citizens have threatened police officers with false arrest suits for decades without seeming to frighten the cops. But some citizens are collecting in court, as Daniel B. Moskowitz reports from the Washington bureau of McGraw-Hill World News.)

By DANIEL B. MOSKOWITZ

Washington — U.S. policemen are coping with a new job hazard: personal liability suits. Increasingly, citizens injured by what they see as negligent actions of a cop on duty, are suing him and the city police department — and winning judgments that can top $1 million.

A jury awarded $3 million to a New York City man severely battered by a transit policeman's nightstick assault. A Detroit panel told a policeman who killed a youth found in a looted store to pay his family $1.025 million. Los Angeles County settled, for $700,000, a suit brought by the heirs of a newsman killed when he was accidentally struck by a tear gas projectile fired by a deputy sheriff. A suit by a New York man whose house was ransacked by federal agents was stopped with a payment of $160,000.

Since individual policemen are not likely to have the funds to pay the damages, the city almost always foots the bill even if it is not a defendant. However in Columbus, Ohio, the city refused to pay an $800,000 judgment returned against a policeman.

Lawmen are worried about the trend. Apart from the possibility of financial penalty, an individual officer with a judgment against him may find his career hampered. Personal liability suits are "a serious threat to the independence of law enforcement," concludes a report by Americans for Effective Law Enforcement (AELE) a Chicago-based police advocate group. But lawyers who bring the suits — including those paid by the Office of Economic Opportunity and the American Civil Liberties Union — say they are an effective way to make local departments crack down on a racist or unstable policeman who should never be in the force, or walking a beat, in the first place. Two separate Chicago cases that resulted in six-figure verdicts involved policemen who had been disciplined for earlier misconduct, and then put right back in the same kind of tense situation.

A hot-tempered cop "has got to get off the street," Wayne W. Schmidt, head of the AELE Legal Defense Center, tells local officials. "Put him in the car pool pumping gas or whatever."

There's no accurate count of how many such tort suits against police are brought each year, but a conservative estimate would put the total over 10,000 this year. That is a whoppping increase since 1967, when the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police found 1,741 such suits filed nationally. The most common charge is false arrest, the principal claim in 40% of the suits, followed by brutality of assault, in 27% of the cases.

The bulk of them are nuisance suits, brought in a moment of anger, with no serious intent to pursue. And of the roughly one in four that does get to trial, the police win most — more than 80% — thanks in large part to the fact that, as Schmidt says, "the police officer is used to going to court" and makes a good impression on the jury. Chances are, too, that the city has mounted a strong defense for him, since it may have to pay any damages awarded against the officer. Los Angeles found it puts an average of 96 manhours of investigators' time and 115 manhours of lawyers' time into defending the average police tort suit.

But the four or five per cent of cases that plaintiifs win can mean major financial headaches for cities. AELE hears of a jury award of over $100,000 — to persons seriously maimed by unnecessary or careless police force — at least once a month. "Frankly, a quadriplegic is worth a million dollars in New York or Chicago or Houston or any other big city," Schmidt says. He says a victim paralyzed from the waist down as a result of an accidental police shooting stands to collect $500,000. San Diego carries an umbrella $27 million insurance policy against such tort losses, but city attorneys elsewhere report they are finding it harder and harder to find an insurance company that will take on such a risk.

Harmful Water Said Widespread

New York (UPI) — According to Douglas R. Oberhamer, executive director of the Water Quality Association, "more than 80% of the country suffers from water that is unpleasant, harmful to health or damaging to plumbing systems and attached appliances.

"Happily, revised Federal Housing Administration property standards require that plumbing in all new housing be designed to accept equipment that will correct these problems," Oberhamer said.

They Lived In Stone Age

COLLINSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A tribe of researchers spent this summer in the Stone Age. They lived as nearly as possible the way prehistoric Indians did in the largest neolithic North American city.

From June until late August eight men and two women aged 16 to 50 worked, ate and slept just as citizens of what is now called Cahokia Mounds would have. In its heyday, from about 700 to 1350 A.D., the city was a 6.5-square mile system of huts and ceremonial earthworks that sheltered 30,000 to 50,000 members of the Mississippian Indian culture.

It was the largest city north of Mexico before the Europeans arrived and contains the largest prehistoric ceremonial mound in the world.

Dr. Lynnewood Martin, expedition chief and a St. Louis University history professor, said that the idea was to test modern theories about the ways ancient man did things.

"Basically, we had one aim this summer and that was to build a laboratory situation," he said. "First of all that involves going back and learning the techniques of building."

The first thing they learned was that building a thatch hut of prairie grass, cattail and saplings is remarkably difficult. Felling trees with a stone ax for beams, he said, is "incredibly slow" work.

"It's something you cannot be in a hurry to do," Martin, 43, said. "One of our biggest problems was climbing out of our industrial mentality. If you tried to keep a crew at that kind of work for eight solid hours they couldn't do it. They literally couldn't hack it."

Even after six huts and a granary were raised it took weeks of experimenting to rediscover the Indian method of waterproofing the roofs.

Prehistoric Indians were also more adept at firing pots made of native clay — it took Martin's group all summer to figure that out — and at raising crops.

Martin never could get a good stand of corn up and worms decimated their tobacco plants.

"Now if we are having problems with this, how did the Indians overcome it?" he asked. "How did they have a culture that was based on corn in a soil that seems to be deficient in a couple of minerals?"

Another question of dirt found an accidental answer.

"For a number of years archeologists have said that when Indian houses caught fire the method of putting out the fire was to run out and throw dirt on it," Martin said.

To back up the theory they point to the dirt-covered remains of charred huts. But when one of Martin's huts went up in flames he discovered "they burn so fast you wouldn't have time to dig a teaspoon of dirt." That suggests some ceremonial purpose to the buried burn-outs, he said.

The researchers' typical day included hide working, pipe making, corn grinding, gardening, campfire cooking, mat weaving, implement making, food gathering, building and raw materials harvesting — all performed in the ancient manner with stone, wood and bone tools.

Diet, restricted to what the Indians ate, was the least palatable feature of life. "We are wondering how in the world they ever got used to eating corn, beans and squash three times a day," he said. For variety they once sampled a cattail and came down with a rough equivalent of Montezuma's Revenge: Cahokia Crud. They also fudged a little by using the conservation department to supplement some meals with game meat.

"There is a limit beyond which we can't retreat into the neolithic culture," Martin said. "The idea of surviving off the meat that we hunt is just closed to us. The area has just changed too much.

"We spent most of our time getting raw materials, getting cattail leaves, cutting them with a mussel shell and we brought back a couple of loads on our backs. That wasn't too effective because we got held up by trains and stoplights — things the Indians just didn't have to contend with."

Authenticity also suffered when it came to clothing. A couple of men tried breechcloths, but everyone decided on contemporary garb.

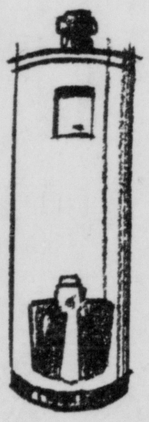

"See, the Indian women went topless," Martin said, "so we figured if we couldn't do it right we just wouldn't fool around with it."

Another anachronism was rubbernecking. "The tourists loved it," Martin said. "We had droves of tourists. We couldn't get rid of them."

To Your Good Health:

Bowed Legs Are Normal In Babies

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will applying braces on a three-month-old baby correct bowed legs? How long will the braces have to stay on? — Mrs. G.F.

I read your letter a few times to be certain you did write "three months."

This youngster is much, much too young for any such leg manipulation. I don't think I've ever seen a baby who wasn't bowlegged to some extent through the first 18 months of life. Perhaps if it weren't there would be more cause for concern, since that's the way it apparently is meant to be.

After the bowlegged period comes a longer one, often lasting several years, during which a compensation takes place. Sometimes there may be a slight overcompensation toward knock-knees. And this is no cause for concern either. The legs eventually straighten out as muscles develop during adolescence.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told I have a mild case of glaucoma in my left eye. After my visit to an eye doctor, he told me to come back in a few months. I am using eye drops, but I don't think they are very good. My left eye is still not too well, but my right eye is fine. What should I do? — Mrs. P.B.

Glaucoma is a progressive disease and it should be treated as soon as it is diagnosed. I suspect your eye drops are the kind used to constrict the pupils and thus promote adequate drainage of fluid within the eye. Glaucoma is a build-up of fluid pressure in the eye.

Early treatment, too, often includes use of medication to reduce the body's water retention.

Your glaucoma is a mild case, the chronic type as opposed to acute glaucoma, in which the onset is sudden, with severe pain. This latter case often leads to rapid deterioration towards blindness in the affected eye.

You are fortunate to have had such an early diagnosis, for treatment then has a good chance of success. The fact that the glaucoma is progressing at different rates in the eyes is not unusual.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 59-years-old, of average frame, 5 feet, 2 inches tall, and I weigh 115 pounds. Am I overweight?

Also, I have varicose veins which do not trouble me. But they protrude and are ugly. I enjoy cycling and I feel great while I'm pedaling. But I feel perhaps that this is putting added strain on my legs.

I feel good, but would like to care for my veins before they become more serious. — Mrs. A.R.

For your height and frame, 115 pounds is ideal. In fact, you are just in between what would be considered the beginning of overweight for you (125 pounds) and what would be thought to be a bit underweight (105 pounds).

The exercise is fine. Keep it up. It will keep blood from puddling in the varicose veins. You might try support stockings also. If the veins are not too large, injection treatment could help.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Trying to stop smoking is not as easy as it sounds, reports the Nebraska Medical Association. Whether you smoke three cigarettes or three packs of cigarettes a day, cigars, or pipes, success in quitting depends on the desire to stop, willpower and use of gimmicks to break the habit pattern.

For some people, it is easy to quit by a total change of scene — a vacation, business trip or a stay in a hospital. The change of scene itself breaks the usual pattern. If you crave cigarettes after a meal, find a gimmick to break the desire.

For the first week or so, quitting is uncomfortable, partly because of the pain of breaking a habit; and partly from the elimination of the chemicals absorbed from the tobacco smoke. Success comes in three to six months when an ex-smoker can get through his days without craving a cigarette.

Pleasant Dale's Old Schools Never Die

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Pleasant Dale — When the final bell rings and the last student walks away, silence descends and an old school is haunted by the voices and footsteps of yesterday.

Unless that building is in Pleasant Dale where old schools never die — somebody just moves into them.

This Seward County community built its first schoolhouse in 1890, but in 1915 increasing student enrollment forced the town to abandon it for a larger brick building.

Since the older frame building was structurally sound, it was moved to a site near the business district and became a residence. Many families have lived in it since, and today it is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Trease.

Last year when a new elementary school opened on the southeast edge of town, many of the community's citizens feared the 60-year-old brick building would be torn down for scrap.

However, Clarence Grimes, his son Gleason and Pete Peterson, all of Milford, saved it from the jaws of the bulldozer — but it was close.

"The actual decision was made before the auctioneer, just as he sold it," Clarence Grimes said.

The three men checked the building and found it to be in excellent structural shape, but they weren't sure they could outbid those who wanted to tear it down.

Getting together on the floor plan for the apartment house they envisioned the old school to be wasn't difficult.

When Peterson was an instructor at the old Nebraska Vocational Technical School in Milford, he taught the father and son team, who had decided to give up farming for the contracting business.

"The unique part is these fellows went to school under me, and we decided we'd design it apart and I'd double check it," Peterson said, "We had exactly the same floor plan except we had the refrigerator and stove switched in the kitchen."

When the renovation of the school is completed sometime near Christmas, there will be nine, two-bedroom apartments.

All three of the men have remodeled and restored older structures before and say that it is a trend of the future.

Urban decay, high building material costs and environmental concern all combine to make using existing structures more sensible than building new ones, they say.

"An old building can't be compared to a new one," Clarence said. "They don't do that kind of work anymore. They put them up as cheap and quick as you can — back then they put them up to stay."

His son Gleason says the quality of the old school's construction should make the apartments extremely sound proof and estimates the apartment project will cost about $70,000.

Clarence said the people in the community have "demanded" an open house when it is completed.

Glenn Oxley, who lives across the street from the brick building that had been an elementary school since 1956, says many of his out-of-town friends have already toured the project.

Students and teachers, who have visited him this summer, walked through the old halls and rooms recalling happy and sad times, he said.

Oxley attended the old frame school until fourth grade and can remember when it was moved into the street for a year while the brick building was being built.

The brick school holds special sentimental value for Oxley. In 1924 he was in the first class to graduate from 12th grade there, and in 1956, his son was in the last graduating senior class.

"I just call it the school too tough to die," Oxley said.

Indians Planning To Sue Blair Telephone Co.

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Indian Intertribal Legal Services plans to file a lawsuit against the Blair Telephone Co. for allegedly making it difficult for rural Macy residents to get telephone service, according to State Indian Commissioner Bob Mackey.

"It's felt the company is misinterpreting its responsibility to provide service," Mackey said Tuesday.

Not so, said Walter George, a company representative who is also a state senator. "We're ready to go; they're the ones causing the delay," George said.

The problems involves a number of Omaha Indians living north of Macy who have said they want telephone service. Since there are no lines in the area, the firm would have to charge an individual seeking service $64.50 for every one-tenth mile of buried cable needed.

"Indians in this area earn an average income of $1,000 annually. It would be very hard for them to pay that amount," Mackey said.

To avoid having to levy the installation charges, George said the firm has suggested Indians desiring phone service in the area without lines sign up for service and each pay a $25 charge to defray costs.

That way, George said, the firm would not have to levy the $64.50 for every one-tenth mile of line constructed.

"We've gotten permission from the Roads Department to install the lines; we've staked it out. Thirteen said they would sign up, so far only six have.

"We wish they'd sign up," George said.

George explained that the sign-up homes in Winnebago for phone service but only four are presently subscribing to the service.

George said the firm has to be sure any service provided will in fact be used to make efficient use of company funds.

"An experience like that has to make us cautious," George said.

He said if Mackey wanted to get phone installations going, he should encourage those who expressed a desire for phone service to sign up.

The problem is, he said, "There's a psychology among them that doesn't make them want to hurry."

If the signatures aren't obtained by the first frost, George said construction will be halted until next year.

Mackey, however, said the problem lies with the company. "They're trying to put the bulk of the expense for construction on those getting the service."

Alliance Hotel Auctioned Off For $50

Alliance (AP) — The Alliance Hotel, a 72-year-old landmark and former hub of activity in this Panhandle town, went on the auction block Monday and was sold for $50.

The auction was the result of a tax foreclosure, and Box Butte County bought the old building, which hasn't seen actual service as a hotel in more than five years.

The sale must now be approved by the Box Butte County District Court.

However, at least one resident, Gene Vogel, has some questions about the sale.

Vogel, who runs a lounge in the hotel, has asked the county board of commissioners about the status of the sale. County officials said that if the district court does not approve the sale, a new auction will be ordered.

In its prime, the old hotel, which was built in 1903.

Nebraska Demos Protest New Rule

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Democratic State Central Committee has formally protested the national party's new rules requiring presidential candidate approval for any national convention delegate candidates who wish to file committed to their support.

"I think it's undemocratic," DiAnna Schimek of Lincoln noted Tuesday.

Ms. Schimek authored the resolution of protest approved by the central committee at a weekend meeting in Grand Island.

The resolution is directed at the Democratic National Committee and is not intended to disrupt or interfere with Secretary of State Allen Beermann's decision to abide by the national party's rules, as requested. Ms. Schimek said.

"Allen has been cooperative, and we appreciate it," she said.

Neither was the resolution intended to disapprove of National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede's successful efforts to implement the new national policy in next year's Nebraska presidential primary election.

"Since it is a requirement of the national party, I understand we have to do it," Ms. Schimek said. "We're just telling the national committee we don't like it."

Mrs. Ohmstede worked through the national committee's compliance review commission in gaining Beermann's cooperation.

After consulting with the attorney general's office, Beermann agreed to require presidential candidate approval in writing for any Democratic convention delegate candidate who wishes to file committed to that presidential aspirant's support.

"I think we have carried this whole affirmative action procedure to an irrational extent," Ms. Schimek said.

"It's designed to open up the process. But demanding that kind of thing only limits the number of people who can get on the ballot."

Presidential candidates are likely to approve delegate lists composed of well-known Democratic names, contributors or campaign workers, Ms. Schimek said.

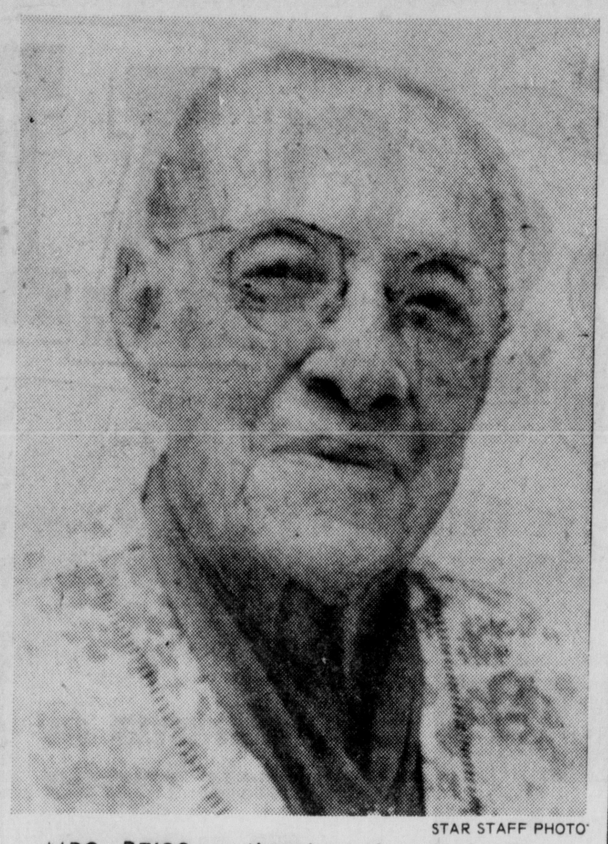

"We are telling the national committee we don't think that's a very democratic procedure."

The central committee approved the resolution on a voice vote.

Prior to the 1976 election, delegate candidates could file committed to whichever presidential candidate they chose, without any limitation as to the number of candidates and without any need for presidential prospect approval.

The new rule is likely to limit the number of delegate candidates committed to any presidential candidate to 23, the number which can be elected in 1976.

Candidates without presidential candidate approval could still file as uncommitted delegate aspirants.

MRS. REISS . . . 'hard work, good eats.'

100th Birthday Doesn't Excite Woman At All

Crete — Sporting a new dress of flowered blue, Mrs. Anna Reiss is ready for her 100th birthday Wednesday and an open house reception this Sunday.

But the longtime Lancaster Countain, now the senior of Crete Manor's 110 residents, isn't too fired up about the century mark itself. Even a special greeting from President Ford was shrugged off.

"This one doesn't mean any more than any other birthday," she quipped. "I'm just the same, only they tell me we're going to have a little party."

Though unusually alert for her years, she has been confined to a wheelchair since coming to the nursing home six years ago. Her husband, Edward, died in the 1930's.

Spending most of her life on a farm near Kramer, she did live in Lincoln several years while employed at Lincoln General Hospital. She also worked at Doane College at one time.

Helping host a 2-4 p.m. open house Sunday at the manor will be her five sons: Louis of Roca, Henry and Edwin of Crete, Ben of Grants, N.M., and Reinhold of Colorado Springs. She also has eight grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Seldom missing church services, she also enjoys reminiscing about her days of "hand-shucking corn and using that old wash board." Such recollections fit in with her simplified recipe for longevity: "hard work and good eats."

Fairbury Faculty Votes Opposition To SCC Move

Fairbury — Southeast Community College (SCC) faculty members on the Fairbury campus have taken a strong stand against the discussed transfer of the school to the defunct Pershing College campus.

Voting by ballot, the faculty association registered 16-1 opposition to a "total move" of classes. The alternative of possibly using the Beatrice campus as a satellite operation drew a 12-3 negative vote.

The balance of 24 teachers present either failed to vote or expressed themselves as "undecided."

In a letter mailed to SCC board members, president Jane Bakewell said a discussion preceding the ballot centered on "providing a good education for our students."

"Our focus is on the students rather than on economic benefits to be gained or lost by either community or on political considerations which may or may not be factors in making the decision," she continued.

A board decision on whether to accept Pershing, offered to SCC by the University of Nebraska Foundation, is anticipated Sept. 23.

Please Park At Stadium, Bus To Freedom Train

Omaha (AP) — If you're planning to visit the American Freedom Train during a Sept. 23-28 visit here, officials warned Monday that you should not plan on parking at Union Station.

Visitors are instead urged to park at Rosenblatt Stadium and take a shuttle bus down 10th St. to the station. The stadium is just south of Interstate 80 at 13th St.

The parking is free, but the shuttle bus isn't. The round trip fare is 25¢. Buses will leave every six minutes, a spokesman in the mayor's office said.

The parking available at the station will be for the buses. If visitors attempt to park around the station, massive traffic jams will result, the spokesman said.

Buses To Be Bought

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The Costa Rican government says it will spend $11.5 million for Soviet-built trolley buses in an attempt to ease traffic jams.

Builders Bureau Selects Officers

The Lincoln Builders Bureau has elected officers and board members for 1976.

Newly elected officers are: president, Norm Judds; vice president, Jim Stephens; treasurer, Neal Penton; executive officer, Mrs. Charles Korb.

Pleasant Dale's Old Schools Never Die

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Pleasant Dale — When the final bell rings and the last student walks away, silence descends and an old school is haunted by the voices and footsteps of yesterday.

Unless that building is in Pleasant Dale where old schools never die — somebody just moves into them.

This Seward County community built its first schoolhouse in 1890, but in 1915 increasing student enrollment forced the town to abandon it for a larger brick building.

Since the older frame building was structurally sound, it was moved to a site near the business district and became a residence. Many families have lived in it since, and today it is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Trease.

Last year when a new elementary school opened on the southeast edge of town, many of the community's citizens feared the 60-year-old brick building would be torn down for scrap.

However, Clarence Grimes, his son Gleason and Pete Peterson, all of Milford, saved it from the jaws of the bulldozer — but it was close.

"The actual decision was made before the auctioneer, just as he sold it," Clarence Grimes said.

The three men checked the building and found it to be in excellent structural shape, but they weren't sure they could outbid those who wanted to tear it down.

Getting together on the floor plan for the apartment house they envisioned the old school to be wasn't difficult.

When Peterson was an instructor at the old Nebraska Vocational Technical School in Milford, he taught the father and son team, who had decided to give up farming for the contracting business.

"The unique part is these fellows went to school under me, and we decided we'd design it apart and I'd double check it," Peterson said, "We had exactly the same floor plan except we had the refrigerator and stove switched in the kitchen."

When the renovation of the school is completed sometime near Christmas, there will be nine, two-bedroom apartments.

All three of the men have remodeled and restored older structures before and say that it is a trend of the future.

Urban decay, high building material costs and environmental concern all combine to make using existing structures more sensible than building new ones, they say.

"An old building can't be compared to a new one," Clarence said. "They don't do that kind of work anymore. They put them up as cheap and quick as you can — back then they put them up to stay."

His son Gleason says the quality of the old school's construction should make the apartments extremely sound proof and estimates the apartment project will cost about $70,000.

Clarence said the people in the community have "demanded" an open house when it is completed.

Glenn Oxley, who lives across the street from the brick building that had been an elementary school since 1956, says many of his out-of-town friends have already toured the project.

Students and teachers, who have visited him this summer, walked through the old halls and rooms recalling happy and sad times, he said.

Oxley attended the old frame school until fourth grade and can remember when it was moved into the street for a year while the brick building was being built.

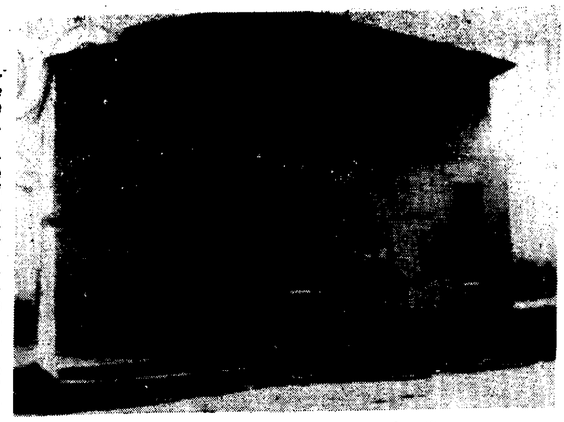

The brick school holds special sentimental value for Oxley. In 1924 he was in the first class to graduate from 12th grade there, and in 1956, his son was in the last graduating senior class.

"I just call it the school too tough to die," Oxley said.

Indians Planning To Sue Blair Telephone Co.

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Indian Intertribal Legal Services plans to file a lawsuit against the Blair Telephone Co. for allegedly making it difficult for rural Macy residents to get telephone service, according to State Indian Commissioner Bob Mackey.

"It's felt the company is misinterpreting its responsibility to provide service," Mackey said Tuesday.

Not so, said Walter George, a company representative who is also a state senator. "We're ready to go; they're the ones causing the delay," George said.

The problems involves a number of Omaha Indians living north of Macy who have said they want telephone service. Since there are no lines in the area, the firm would have to charge an individual seeking service $64.50 for every one-tenth mile of buried cable needed.

"Indians in this area earn an average income of $1,000 annually. It would be very hard for them to pay that amount," Mackey said.

To avoid having to levy the installation charges, George said the firm has suggested Indians desiring phone service in the area without lines sign up for service and each pay a $25 charge to defray costs.

"We've gotten permission from the Roads Department to install the lines; we've staked it out. Thirteen said they would sign up, so far only six have.

The problem is, he said, "There's a psychology among them that doesn't make them want to hurry."

If the signatures aren't obtained by the first frost, George said construction will be halted until next year.

Mackey, however, said the problem lies with the company. "They're trying to put the bulk of the expense for construction on those getting the service."

It awarded $22,200 in agri-business vo-tech scholarships to students in the area served by Cenex, a regional supply cooperative based in South St. Paul. The $600 award is given to the student for the length of the agri-business course and is payable over a maximum period of two years.

Alliance Hotel Auctioned Off For $50

Alliance (AP) — The Alliance Hotel, a 72-year-old landmark and former hub of activity in this Panhandle town, went on the auction block Monday and was sold for $50.

The auction was the result of a tax foreclosure, and Box Butte County bought the old building, which hasn't seen actual service as a hotel in more than five years.

The sale must now be approved by the Box Butte County District Court.

However, at least one resident, Gene Vogel, has some questions about the sale.

Vogel, who runs a lounge in the hotel, has asked the county board of commissioners about the status of the sale. County officials said that if the district court does not approve the sale, a new auction will be ordered.

In its prime, the old hotel, which was built in 1903.

Rights Agencies Assessed

Eight state and local civil rights agencies lack the muscle and money needed to effectively protect individual rights, the Nebraska Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission has concluded.

In addition, the advisory committee, chaired by John A. Gale of North Platte, said the eight agencies' members and staff need training and the ability to initiate their own investigations.

The conclusions are contained in a 101-page report to be released Sept. 22. The committee evaluated the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission, Indian Commission, Mexican-American Commission and Governor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Local agencies evaluated were the Lincoln, Omaha and Grand Island Human Rights Commissions and the Omaha Mayor's Commission on Women.

The advisory committee and the Civil Rights Commission have no enforcement powers over how those eight agencies are run. Gale said the committee's purpose is to identify problems and offer solutions for consideration.

Gale said the civil rights agencies were chosen for the investigation "because the general public knows far too little about how these agencies and the functions they perform or the problems they face."

The report said Nebraska's 1965 Civil Rights Law is "weak" and was intended to prevent the federal government from having jurisdiction over racial discrimination in employment.

Specifically, the committee said the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission has been lenient toward employers and demanding of complaintants.

In all, the committee made 32 recommendations which will be discussed at a Sept. 22 press conference.

One-Car Crash Near McCook Claims Woman

McCook (AP) — Kathy Taylor, 19, of McCook was killed in a one car accident about 12 miles south of McCook on U.S. 83 Monday, the State Patrol said.

Officers said Mary Sahm, 20, of McCook, the driver, apparently lost control of the vehicle and it rolled over.

The State Accident Records Bureau said the death of William Reynolds, 46, of Omaha in a freak accident Thursday is being counted as a traffic death.

Police said he was injured fatally when he apparently fell from a truck as he tried to stop it from rolling down an incline in Omaha.

No one witnessed the mishap, but Elvin Heiman Jr., who owned the firm Reynolds worked for, said, "We assume he parked the truck on a hill and didn't put it in gear or put the brake on."

The truck rolled down the hill, and crashed into a parked delivery truck and a car owned by Heiman.

Iowa Woman Added To State Accident Toll

Omaha (AP) — The name of an Iowa woman was added to Nebraska's 1975 highway death toll Tuesday, raising the count to 253, compared with 280 on this date last year.

Police said the death of Mary Jo Smith, 19, of Malvern, Iowa, will be counted as a traffic fatality.

Miss Smith's body was found Aug. 25, in a raodside ditch near the southern city limits. Police originally pursued the case as a homicide, but because she was apparently hit and run over by a car, officials have decided that her death should be counted as a traffic fatality.

The driver of the vehicle which hit Miss Smith apparently did not stop, and has not been located.

The investigation of the case is continuing.

Women Will Meet

Nebraska Demos Protest New Rule

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Democratic State Central Committee has formally protested the national party's new rules requiring presidential candidate approval for any national convention delegate candidates who wish to file committed to their support.

"I think it's undemocratic," DiAnna Schimek of Lincoln noted Tuesday.

Ms Schimek authored the resolution of protest approved by the central committee at a weekend meeting in Grand Island.

The resolution is directed at the Democratic National Committee and is not intended to disrupt or interfere with Secretary of State Allen Beermann's decision to abide by the national party's rules, as requested. Ms. Schimek said.

"Allen has been cooperative, and we appreciate it," she said.

Neither was the resolution intended to disapprove of National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede's successful efforts to implement the new national policy in next year's Nebraska presidential primary election.

"Since it is a requirement of the national party, I understand we have to do it," Ms. Schimek said "We're just telling the national committee we don't like it."

Mrs Ohmstede worked through the national committee's compliance review commission in gaining Beermann's cooperation.

After consulting with the attorney general's office, Beermann agreed to require presidential candidate approval in writing for any Democratic convention delegate candidate who wishes to file committed to that presidential aspirant's support.

"I think we have carried this whole affirmative action procedure to an irrational extent," Ms. Schimek said.

"It's designed to open up the process. But demanding that kind of thing only limits the number of people who can get on the ballot."

Presidential candidates are likely to approve delegate lists composed of well-known Democratic names, contributors or campaign workers, Ms. Schimek said.

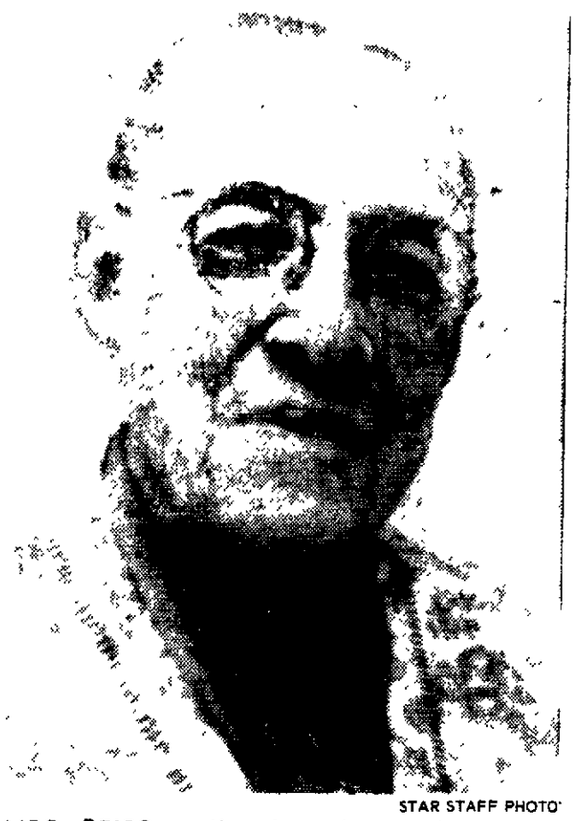

"We are telling the national committee we don't think that's a very democratic procedure."

The central committee approved the resolution on a voice vote.

Prior to the 1976 election, delegate candidates could file committed to whichever presidential candidate they chose, without any limitation as to the number of candidates and without any need for presidential prospect approval.

The new rule is likely to limit the number of delegate candidates committed to any presidential candidate to 23, the number which can be elected in 1976.

Candidates without presidential candidate approval could still file as uncommitted delegate aspirants.

MRS. REISS . . . 'hard work, good eats.'

100th Birthday Doesn't Excite Woman At All

Crete — Sporting a new dress of flowered blue, Mrs. Anna Reiss is ready for her 100th birthday Wednesday and an open house reception this Sunday.

But the longtime Lancaster Countain, now the senior of Crete Manor's 110 residents, isn't too fired up about the century mark itself. Even a special greeting from President Ford was shrugged off.

"This one doesn't mean any more than any other birthday," she quipped. "I'm just the same, only they tell me we're going to have a little party."

Though unusually alert for her years, she has been confined to a wheelchair since coming to the nursing home six years ago. Her husband, Edward, died in the 1930's.

Spending most of her life on a farm near Kramer, she did live in Lincoln several years while employed at Lincoln General Hospital. She also worked at Doane College at one time.

Helping host a 2-4 p.m. open house Sunday at the manor will be her five sons. Louis of Roca, Henry and Edwin of Crete, Ben of Grants, N.M., and Reinhold of Colorado Springs. She also has eight grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Seldom missing church services, she also enjoys reminiscing about her days of "hand-shucking corn and using that old wash board." Such recollections fit in with her simplified recipe for longevity: "hard work and good eats."

Please Park At Stadium, Bus To Freedom Train

Omaha (AP) — If you're planning to visit the American Freedom Train during a Sept. 23-28 visit here, officials warned Monday that you should not plan on parking at Union Station.

Visitors are instead urged to park at Rosenblatt Stadium and take a shuttle bus down 10th St. to the station. The stadium is just south of Interstate 80 at 13th St.

The parking is free, but the shuttle bus isn't The round trip fare is 25c Buses will leave every six minutes, a spokesman in the mayor's office said.

The parking available at the station will be for the buses. If visitors attempt to park around the station, massive traffic jams will result, the spokesman said.

Buses To Be Bought

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The Costa Rican government says it will spend $11.5 million for Soviet-built trolley buses in an attempt to ease traffic jams

Builders Bureau Selects Officers

The Lincoln Builders Bureau has elected officers and board members for 1976.

Newly elected officers are: president, Norm Judds; vice president, Jim Stephens; treasurer, Neal Penton; executive officer, Mrs. Charles Korb.

Fairbury Faculty Votes Opposition To SCC Move

Fairbury — Southeast Community College (SCC) faculty members on the Fairbury campus have taken a strong stand against the discussed transfer of the school to the defunct Pershing College campus.

Voting by ballot, the faculty association registered 16-1 opposition to a "total move" of classes. The alternative of possibly using the Beatrice campus as a satellite operation drew a 12-3 negative vote.

The balance of 24 teachers present either failed to vote or expressed themselves as "undecided."

In a letter mailed to SCC board members, president Jane Bakewell said a discussion preceding the ballot centered on "providing a good education for our students."

"Our focus is on the students rather than on economic benefits to be gained or lost by either community or on political considerations which may or may not be factors in making the decision," she continued.

A board decision on whether to accept Pershing, offered to SCC by the University of Nebraska Foundation, is anticipated Sept. 23.

Rights Agencies Assessed

Eight state and local civil rights agencies lack the muscle and money needed to effectively protect individual rights, the Nebraska Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission has concluded.

In addition, the advisory committee, chaired by John A. Gale of North Platte, said the eight agencies' members and staff need training and the ability to initiate their own investigations.

The conclusions are contained in a 101-page report to be released Sept. 22. The committee evaluated the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission, Indian Commission, Mexican-American Commission and Governor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Local agencies evaluated were the Lincoln, Omaha and Grand Island Human Rights Commissions and the Omaha Mayor's Commission on Women.

The advisory committee and the Civil Rights Commission have no enforcement powers over how those eight agencies are run. Gale said the committee's purpose is to identify problems and offer solutions for consideration.

Gale said the civil rights agencies were chosen for the investigation "because the general public knows far too little about how these agencies and the functions they perform or the problems they face."

The report said Nebraska's 1965 Civil Rights Law is "weak" and was intended to prevent the federal government from having jurisdiction over racial discrimination in employment.

Specifically, the committee said the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission has been lenient toward employers and demanding of complaintants.

In all, the committee made 32 recommendations which will be discussed at a Sept. 22 press conference.

One-Car Crash Near McCook Claims Woman

McCook (AP) — Kathy Taylor, 19, of McCook was killed in a one car accident about 12 miles south of McCook on U.S. 83 Monday, the State Patrol said.

Officers said Mary Sahm, 20, of McCook, the driver, apparently lost control of the vehicle and it rolled over.

The State Accident Records Bureau said the death of William Reynolds, 46, of Omaha in a freak accident Thursday is being counted as a traffic death.

Police said he was injured fatally when he apparently fell from a truck as he tried to stop it from rolling down an incline in Omaha.

No one witnessed the mishap, but Elvin Heiman Jr., who owned the firm Reynolds worked for, said, "We assume he parked the truck on a hill and didn't put it in gear or put the brake on."

The truck rolled down the hill, and crashed into a parked delivery truck and a car owned by Heiman.

Iowa Woman Added To State Accident Toll

Omaha (AP) — The name of an Iowa woman was added to Nebraska's 1975 highway death toll Tuesday, raising the count to 253, compared with 280 on this date last year.

Police said the death of Mary Jo Smith, 19, of Malvern, Iowa, will be counted as a traffic fatality.

Miss Smith's body was found Aug. 25, in a raodside ditch near the southern city limits. Police originally pursued the case as a homicide, but because she was apparently hit and run over by a car, officials have decided that her death should be counted as a traffic fatality.

The driver of the vehicle which hit Miss Smith apparently did not stop, and has not been located.

The investigation of the case is continuing.

$9 Million Cost Of Bridge Work

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A more than $9 million price tag has been put on bringing Lancaster County's bridge system up to modern standards.

About four-fifths of the county's bridges will not carry a legal load of more than 15 tons or are too narrow for today's traffic, County Engineer Marv Nuernberger told the County Board during an informal meeting Tuesday.

The engineer's department has already closed 23 bridges in the northern half of the county and expects to close a similar number in the southern half this fall. These bridges will not carry even a one-ton load.

Removing years and years of dirt has also raised the ton limit on about a handful of bridges, Nuernberger pointed out.

But only a few bridges can be helped by dirt removal, Nuernberger pointed out. The rest need either improvements or complete rebuilding.

Though the engineer said he does not expect to improve all bridges immediately, he did point out areas which can be improved in the near future.

About 50 of the deficient bridges in the county's northern half could be replaced with pipe culverts at an estimated $100,000 cost. And the work could be done this fall, Nuernberger said.

Another 55 bridges in the northern half can be replaced for about $450,000 with box culverts. But the remaining 90 bridges, which do not meet width or load requirements, could cost more than $4 million to replace, he estimated.

Nuernberger is also working with Natural Resource and Soil Conservation Districts to design pipe and box culverts which would help the soil erosion problem, he told the board.

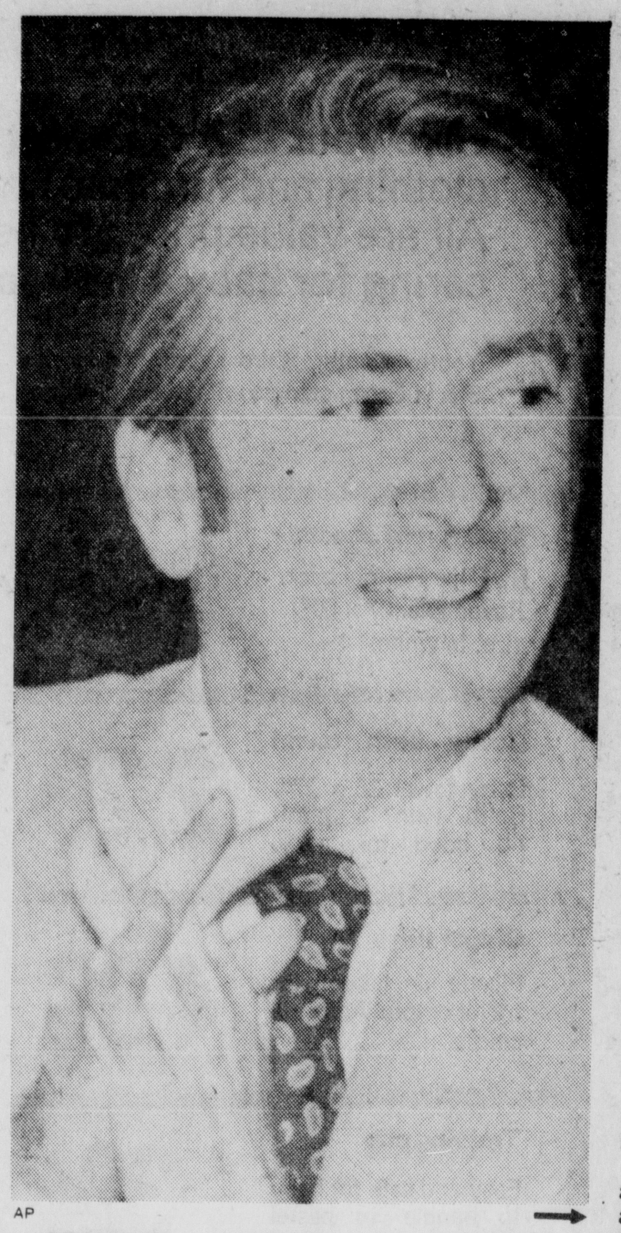

Though the survey of bridges in the southern half of the county is not complete, Nuernberger estimated the situation will probably be similar to that in the north half.

The County Board approved an application for a $10,000 traffic survey of county roads.

The survey, to be partially paid through a $7,000 federal grant, would be used to determine speed limits for about 15 county subdivisions, and to identify intersections which need signing or additional signing.

The grant money is available under the Nebraska Highway Safety Program.

In other action, the board appointed John Pavich to the Pre-Trial Diversion Steering Committee and made appointments to the Advisory Defense Council.

BEAMING . . . is Democrat John Durkin.

Durkin Wins By A Landslide

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Democrat John A. Durkin won New Hampshire's overtime Senate election Tuesday night, trouncing Republican Louis C. Wyman and turning what had been history's closest contest into a landslide.

Durkin won by more than 27,000 votes, a startling contrast to the last official tally of the Nov. 5 Senate election which had given Wyman a contested two-vote edge.

"There's no need for a recount," Durkin said jubilantly as he celebrated victory with his cheering supporters in Manchester.

In the final unofficial vote tally this was the count:

Durkin 140,273 or 54%; Wyman 113,004 or 43%; third party candidate Carmen C. Chimento 8,853 votes, or 3%.

"I might not be the smoothest item to come down the turnpike, but I'm going to stand up, I'm going to speak out, and I'm going to rock the boat in a responsible manner until Washington starts listening to the people again," said the feisty 39-year-old senator-elect.

Wyman pronounced the obituary of the year's campaign he entered as a heavy favorite two recounts and two elections ago.

"I will accept and I do accept the mandate of the people of New Hampshire," he said.

Ten months ago, the race was a virtual tie, but Tuesday it was all Durkin by a surprising margin in an election that drew a far heavier turnout than the campaign strategists had expected. Both sides had said the count would be close, but it wasn't. Both camps had forecast a low voter turnout, but more ballots were cast this time than last.

Wyman's campaign manager said Durkin's most telling weapon was the fact that he could run against Washington, against the federal government. Durkin did that with a vengeance, saying his victory should send a message to the Capital to listen to the people and get to work.

Chimento conceded, too, but it was evident that the conservative American party candidate had captured votes which otherwise would likely have been in the Wyman column.

Durkin, a former state insurance commissioner who relishes his reputation as a hard-swinging campaigner, had spoken out against President Ford and economic policies he said were worsening New Hampshire's unemployment and energy problems.

The special election offered the first clues to 1976 voter attitudes and sounded the last echoes of the 1974 campaign. On both counts, the message seemed to be Democratic.

Durkin more than doubled the 1,200-vote lead he had gained over Wyman the first time out in Manchester, home town to both candidates. Durkin also enhanced his showings in Portsmouth and Nashua, two of the stops on Ford's 11th-hour campaign motorcade for Wyman last Thursday.

In conceding, Wyman noted that a president doesn't often undertake such a mission for a candidate.

The Wyman defeat seemed likely to have its impact as Republicans prepared for a presidential primary next Feb. 24, with Ford expected to face former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who campaigned for Wyman last Wednesday night. A split between the party's conservative and more liberal wings is sure to widen now that Wyman, who strove to bridge that division, has lost.

Durkin said New Hampshire voters "have rejected Jerry Ford's program for the economy."

Changes Made At Airport To Benefit Handicapped

Don Geis is making good on his campaign promises.

Elevator buttons have been lowered so people in wheelchairs can reach them at the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

Tuesday morning the Airport Authority agreed to install a water fountain accessible to handicapped persons and to install dispensers in restrooms near sinks designed for use by handicapped people.

Both changes will be made on the airport's lower level. The changes will cost about $2,500.

Geis, elected to the authority board last spring, promised during his campaign to work to make the new terminal more accessible to handicapped people.

Member Joseph Hampton, one of those appointed to work with the League of Human Dignity to determine what changes should be made, said Tuesday the changes would be required under current laws, although they were not required when the building was designed.

The Lincoln airport will be the site of an air show by the Blue Angels on Oct. 18 and 19. The show will mark the U.S. Navy's 200th anniversary.

The authority agreed to a 10% pay hike for the authority's 15 employes, following the lead of city and county governments.

It was announced that the long-term parking lot at the airport terminal opened Tuesday. The lot had been under construction.

Maternity Leave Rule Undecided—NSSBA

Boards of education "should be wary and consult their attorneys before placing too much reliance" on a recent State Supreme Court decision on maternity leave and pregnancy, warns the Nebraska State School Boards Association "Bulletin."

The court ruled in Richards vs. Omaha Public Schools that boards need not pay sick leave benefits to teachers on maternity leave. The decision said a classification based on pregnancy is not one based on sex.

In the case on appeal, the court's unsigned opinion described the issue as "the most difficult and troublesome one in the area of sex discrimination."

"Reliance on this decision may prove dangerous," the NSSBA said, "because federal decisions on the same subject consider pregnancy a disability which should be treated in the same manner as any other sickness or disability, under a sick leave payment plan."

The State Supreme Court interpreted the Nebraska Fair Employment Practices Act, as one basis for the Richards decision. "However, Title VII of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 also prohibits sex discrimination and is applicable to all school board sick leave policies," NSSBA said.

"Three circuit courts of appeal have interpreted the federal law as treating pregnancy as a disability, and have required boards to pay pregnant teachers sick leave benefits."

Moreover, "a host of lower federal court holdings stand in direct opposition to Richards," the Bulletin said. "The Richards decision will not shield school boards from the federal statutes and case law, and a board might find itself in violation of federal law, regardless of Richards."

The Bulletin expressed hope that the U.S. Supreme Court will finally "settle the question" of pregnant teachers' benefits. One such case has been laid over.

Meanwhile, NSSBA urged caution, "because there is more than one way to skin a school board . . ."

If federal law takes precedence, "The Richards decision may enjoy a short lived celebration, and boards should not count on writing sick leave benefits for pregnant teachers out of their budgets."

Acknowledging it's "conceivable" the U.S. Supreme Court could agree with the Nebraska justices' ruling, NSSBA said "the almost unanimous trend of circuit and federal district court decisions on the subject suggests a different result.

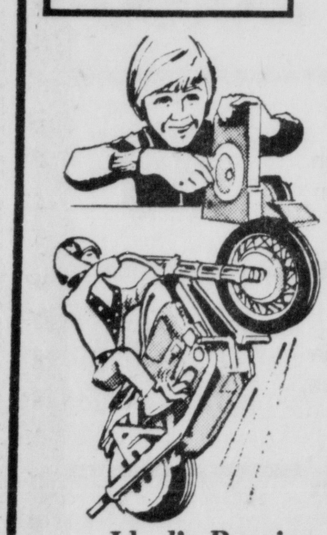

"And until that decision is made, school boards must be prepared to pay sick leave benefits to pregnant teachers."

Lincoln Board of Education policy denies such payment, placing pregnancy leave in the category with all other non-paid leaves. A test case is on appeal in Lancaster District Court.

Two Men To Be Freed, But Process Took Years

Tallahassee, Fla. (AP) — Two men who spent 12 years in prison, eight of them on death row, for a pair of brutal murders another man confessed to nine years ago will be freed Friday.

Freddie Pitts, 31, and Wilbert Lee, 40, have served 12 years and 45 days at the Florida State Prison. All the while they have maintained their innocence.

The black men were twice convicted by all-white juries, in Port St. Joe and Marianna, of the July 31, 1963, execution-style murders in Port St. Joe of service station attendants Grover Floyd Jr. and Jesse Burkett.

A white convict, Curtis "Boo" Adams, serving a life term for a similar murder, confessed to the Floyd-Burkett murders in 1966, sparking the legal struggle to free Pitts and Lee.

Florida Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington signed his name to a pardon Tuesday for Pitts and Lee.

Under Florida law, such a pardon must be signed by the governor and three cabinent members. Gov. Reuben Askew, Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin and Insurance Commissioner Philip Ashler signed the pardon last week.

Askew, who conducted an 18-month pardon investigation, said after Turlington's action, "I am sufficiently convinced of the innocence of Pitts and Lee."

"I do not know for a fact what the real truth is in this case," Turlington said after he signed the pardon. "I believe there is a good prospect of their innocence, but I can't say I know that for a fact."

Public Defender Phillip Hubbart of Miami, who fought for 10 years to free Pitts and Lee, was elated as he talked to reporters in the governor's office, but he said his joy was tempered.

"I feel a bittersweet sense of great joy and underlying sorrow," Hubbart said. "Joy at this incredible victory after 12 long, hard years and sorrow that it didn't come sooner."

"Words cannot possibly express the tremendous debt of gratitude we owe to Gov. Reuben Askew, without whose leadership and troubled conscience we would not be in this position today," Hubbart said.

Arthur Canaday, Askew's general counsel, said the convicts would be released Friday as agreed previously, but details had not been arranged.

Hubbart said he had not talked to the two inmates but added, "They're probably on top of the world right now."

In Port St. Joe, W.L. Burkett, father of one of the slain service station attendants, said he was angry at the pardon.

"Oh, this was politics, pure and simple," Burkett said. "(Gov. Reuben) Askew has obligated the NAACP to his political career."

The Rev. O.T. Stallworth, unofficial spokesman for the town's black population, called the pardon "very much overdue."

"We never have thought the boys were guilty," he said. "I think the police and all were just trying to pacify the white folks. They had the trial so quick . . . why, they found them guilty before they ever found the bodies of the two men."

Asst. Police Chief Ray Robinson said, "In law enforcement, we don't take sides. It's the judicial system and once they make the decision, we back it 100 per cent."

Quadruplets Born In Minnesota

The first quadruplets born in Minnesota in 25 years are doing well at University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis. The four girls, born nine days ago to Mr. and Mrs. David Bergquist of Iron Mountain, Minn., weighed between five and six pounds at birth.

'Eloise' Kills 7 In Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Eloise, a tropical storm now rated as a full-blown hurricane, brushed past Puerto Rico Tuesday, leaving seven persons known dead, more than 6,000 homeless and dozens of villages flooded.

The National Weather Service in San Juan said Eloise intensified to hurricane power at about 5 p.m. CDT as it headed northwest toward the Dominican Republic and Haiti with sustained winds of 75 miles per hour.

Civil defense headquarters reported two persons were crushed when a municipal building collapsed in the town of Utuado, two were electrocuted, two drowned and an oil refinery worker burned to death when flood waters caused an electrical fire in the control room where he was working.

In Washington, Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon announced that he would seek federal aid for devastated areas. He said he would return to the island Wednesday morning for a first-hand inspection of the damage.

The toll of homeless families grew as torrential rains continued. The U.S. Coast Guard announced it had evacuated 230 persons by helicopter and boat.

Father Says Lord Is Calling Karen

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Joseph T. Quinlan says he is convinced after many prayers it is "our Lord's will" that his adopted daughter Karen be allowed to die.

Karen Ann Quinlan, 21, has been in a coma since April 15 and only a hospital's respirator stands between her and death. Her father has filed suit in Superior Court here asking permission to disconnect the machine.

Quinlan, his wife Julia and two younger children, all devout Roman Catholics, disapprove of euthanasia — mercy killing — and believe Karen already is dead except for the functions provided by the machine.

The 50-year-old Quinlan said of his decision Tuesday, "I was the last to hold out because both my wife and my other daughter were critically ill in the past and the Lord always answered my prayers before. But after a lot of prayers I became convinced this is what God's will was, that Karen was being called by Him."

Mrs. Quinlan said, "She is just a vegetable. She is not alive."

The Quinlans, who live in Roxbury Township, sought the counsel of Catholic priests at their parish, Our Lady of the Lake, in nearby Mount Arlington. Paul W. Armstrong, Quinlan's attorney, said priests concurred in their decision.

Armstrong said his research showed Catholic doctrine differentiates between acting to take a life and removing devices that "artificially" sustain life in a hopeless case.

In the court papers filed last Friday, Armstrong said doctors have determined the young woman has suffered irreparable brain damage during her five months in a coma.

Quinlan's suit has brought to court the question of defining life and death. Morris County Prosecutor Donald G. Collester Jr. said he has intervened in the case because if Karen is alive, shutting off the machine to end the life would be a homicide. Collester also said there is a legal question as to "who has jurisdiction over such matters."

Armstong said Karen became ill April 15 and has been sustained by a respirator for five months. Doctors at St. Clare's hospital in Denville, where the young woman has lain comatose since being admitted, have not diagnosed Karen's illness.

Limited Attack Would Kill 21.7 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Defense Department estimates show that as many as 21.7 million Americans could die in a "limited" Soviet nuclear attack on U.S. military targets.

The worst-case example, made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday, assumed two surface bursts of three-megaton weapons on each of the 1,054 U.S. Minuteman ICBM missile silos.

The report notes, however, that the number of weapons required for such an attack "exceeds current U.S. intelligence projections of Soviet capabilities in the 1980s."

The new estimate of possible fatalities greatly exceeds the 800,000 estimated by Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on arms controls on Sept. 11, 1974.

The 1974 estimate assumed a hypothetical Soviet strike involving a single one-megaton warhead per silo.

Following Schlesinger's testimony a year ago, specialists for the congressional Office of Technology Assessment concluded that the calculations of casualties were substantially low, and that too little attention was paid to intermediate and long-term blast effects.

Asked to re-evaluate casualty estimates, the Defense Department made four "attack scenario" assumptions using weapons of varying potency and explosions both on the surface, with maximum fallout potential, and at "optimum" height above ground level.

The new estimates of casualties ranged from 3.4 million with two 550-kiloton weapons exploded above ground to 21.7 million with two three-megaton surface bursts on each of 1,054 ICBM silos.

Estimates of fatalities in the Whiteman Air Force Base area of Missouri, ranged from two million to 10.3 million. At Malmstrom Air Force Base near Great Falls, Mont., fatality estimates ranged from 120,000 to 310,000.

The report said an attack on U.S. ICBM, Strategic Air Command and nuclear sumarine support bases could result in nearly 800,000 Canadian fatalities.

Three Buses Stoned In Boston

By The Associated Press

Court-ordered school busing in Boston was marked by scattered violence again Tuesday, while in Louisville, Ky., the remaining National Guardsmen on duty to protect bus routes were sent home.

In Boston, officials said school attendance was 72 per cent despite increased tensions which included the stoning by black youths of three school buses filled with white students.

Police said the buses' windows were broken as they were leaving Boston Technical High School in the largely black Roxbury section. No injuries were reported.

During the day, U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., who in a second-phase plan ordered 26,000 of Boston's 76,000 students bused to class, told a briefing "transportation was impossible.

"It was a horror show last week in some places. I don't know how (the opening of schools) went as well as it did."

Garrity also said city, state and federal law enforcement agencies have been able to provide public safety around the schools, and "the ball is now in the School Department's court — in the judge's court — to deliver what's been promised in (the desegregation) plan."

Boston attendance was well above the 59.2 per cent of the first day of school last week. High school attendance showed gains, with the South Boston complex reporting its highest this year, 48.3 per cent.

At South Boston High, a black youth and white youth were injured in a fight. The black student was reported in stable condition with a fractured jaw and stomach injuries.

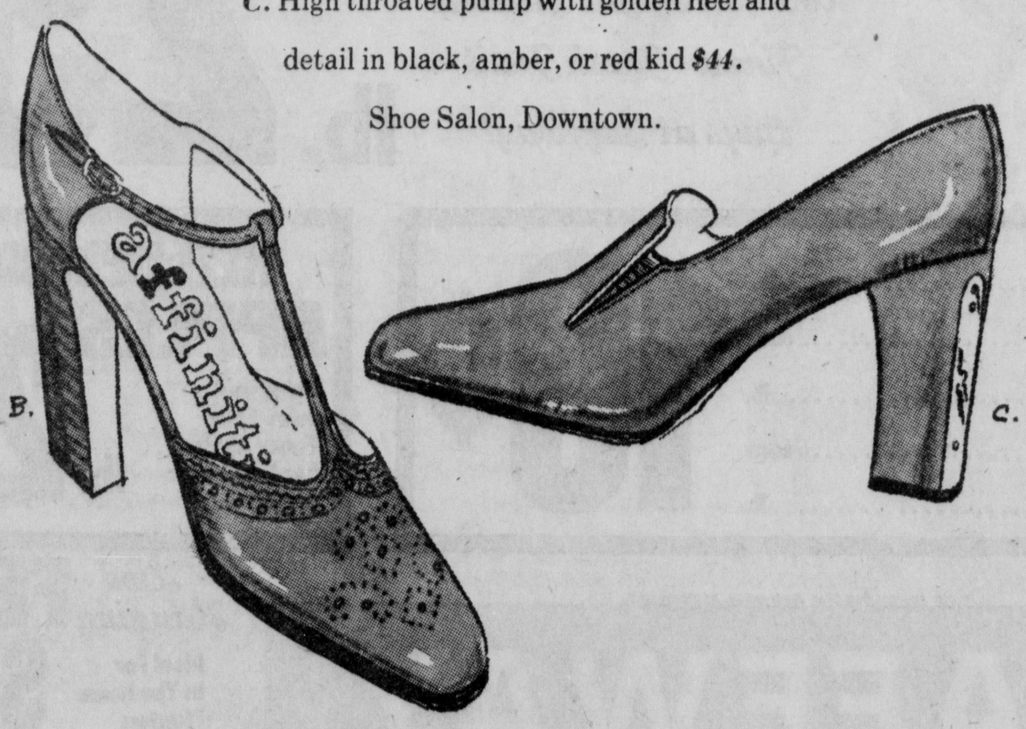

In Louisville, the 400 National Guardsmen on duty in Jefferson County were deactivated. They were all remaining of the 1,000 called in Sept. 6 after antibusing disturbances.

The force of 500 Kentucky State Police called in to help control the disturbances was down to 100.

No serious incidents have been reported in the county since the weekend of Sept. 6 and 7.

$9 Million Cost Of Bridge Work

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A more than $9 million price tag has been put on bringing Lancaster County's bridge system up to modern standards.

About four-fifths of the county's bridges will not carry a legal load of more than 15 tons or are too narrow for today's traffic, County Engineer Marv Nuernberger told the County Board during an informal meeting Tuesday.

The engineer's department has already closed 23 bridges in the northern half of the county and expects to close a similar number in the southern half this fall. These bridges will not carry even a one-ton load.

Removing years and years of dirt has also raised the ton limit on about a handful of bridges, Nuernberger pointed out.

But only a few bridges can be helped by dirt removal, Nuernberger pointed out. The rest need either improvements or complete rebuilding.

Though the engineer said he does not expect to improve all bridges immediately, he did point out areas which can be improved in the near future.

About 50 of the deficient bridges in the county's northern half could be replaced with pipe culverts at an estimated $100,000 cost. And the work could be done this fall, Nuernberger said.

Another 55 bridges in the northern half can be replaced for about $450,000 with box culverts. But the remaining 90 bridges, which do not meet width or load requirements, could cost more than $4 million to replace, he estimated.

Nuernberger is also working with Natural Resource and Soil Conservation Districts to design pipe and box culverts which would help the soil erosion problem, he told the board.

Though the survey of bridges in the southern half of the county is not complete, Nuernberger estimated the situation will probably be similar to that in the north half.

The County Board approved an application for a $10,000 traffic survey of county roads.

The survey, to be partially paid through a $7,000 federal grant, would be used to determine speed limits for about 15 county subdivisions, and to identify intersections which need signing or additional signing.

The grant money is available under the Nebraska Highway Safety Program.

In other action, the board appointed John Pavich to the Pre-Trial Diversion Steering Committee and made appointments to the Advisory Defense Council.

BEAMING . . . is Democrat John Durkin.

Durkin Wins By A Landslide

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Democrat John A. Durkin won New Hampshire's overtime Senate election Tuesday night, trouncing Republican Louis C. Wyman and turning what had been history's closest contest into a landslide.

Durkin won by more than 27,000 votes, a startling contrast to the last official tally of the Nov. 5 Senate election which had given Wyman a contested two-vote edge.

"There's no need for a recount," Durkin said jubilantly as he celebrated victory with his cheering supporters in Manchester.

In the final unofficial vote tally this was the count:

Durkin 140,273 or 54%; Wyman 113,004 or 43%; third party candidate Carmen C. Chimento 8,853 votes, or 3%.

"I might not be the smoothest item to come down the turnpike, but I'm going to stand up, I'm going to speak out, and I'm going to rock the boat in a responsible manner until Washington starts listening to the people again," said the feisty 39-year-old senator-elect.

Wyman pronounced the obituary of the year's campaign he entered as a heavy favorite two recounts and two elections ago.

"I will accept and I do accept the mandate of the people of New Hampshire," he said.

Ten months ago, the race was a virtual tie, but Tuesday it was all Durkin by a surprising margin in an election that drew a far heavier turnout than the campaign strategists had expected. Both sides had said the count would be close, but it wasn't. Both camps had forecast a low voter turnout, but more ballots were cast this time than last.

Wyman's campaign manager said Durkin's most telling weapon was the fact that he could run against Washington, against the federal government. Durkin did that with a vengeance, saying his victory should send a message to the Capital to listen to the people and get to work.

Chimento conceded, too, but it was evident that the conservative American party candidate had captured votes which otherwise would likely have been in the Wyman column.

Durkin, a former state insurance commissioner who relishes his reputation as a hard-swinging campaigner, had spoken out against President Ford and economic policies he said were worsening New Hampshire's unemployment and energy problems.

The special election offered the first clues to 1976 voter attitudes and sounded the last echoes of the 1974 campaign. On both counts, the message seemed to be Democratic.

Durkin more than doubled the 1,200-vote lead he had gained over Wyman the first time out in Manchester, home town to both candidates. Durkin also enhanced his showings in Portsmouth and Nashua, two of the stops on Ford's 11th-hour campaign motorcade for Wyman last Thursday.

In conceding, Wyman noted that a president doesn't often undertake such a mission for a candidate.

The Wyman defeat seemed likely to have its impact as Republicans prepared for a presidential primary next Feb. 24, with Ford expected to face former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who campaigned for Wyman last Wednesday night. A split between the party's conservative and more liberal wings is sure to widen now that Wyman, who strove to bridge that division, has lost.

Durkin said New Hampshire voters "have rejected Jerry Ford's program for the economy."

Changes Made At Airport To Benefit Handicapped

Don Geis is making good on his campaign promises.

Elevator buttons have been lowered so people in wheelchairs can reach them at the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

Tuesday morning the Airport Authority agreed to install a water fountain accessible to handicapped persons and to install dispensers in restrooms near sinks designed for use by handicapped people.

Both changes will be made on the airport's lower level. The changes will cost about $2,500.

Geis, elected to the authority board last spring, promised during his campaign to work to make the new terminal more accessible to handicapped people.

Member Joseph Hampton, one of those appointed to work with the League of Human Dignity to determine what changes should be made, said Tuesday the changes would be required under current laws, although they were not required when the building was designed.

The Lincoln airport will be the site of an air show by the Blue Angels on Oct. 18 and 19. The show will mark the U.S. Navy's 200th anniversary.

The authority agreed to a 10% pay hike for the authority's 15 employes, following the lead of city and county governments.

It was announced that the long-term parking lot at the airport terminal opened Tuesday. The lot had been under construction.

Maternity Leave Rule Undecided—NSSBA

Boards of education "should be wary and consult their attorneys before placing too much reliance" on a recent State Supreme Court decision on maternity leave and pregnancy, warns the Nebraska State School Boards Association "Bulletin."

The court ruled in Richards vs. Omaha Public Schools that boards need not pay sick leave benefits to teachers on maternity leave. The decision said a classification based on pregnancy is not one based on sex.

In the case on appeal, the court's unsigned opinion described the issue as "the most difficult and troublesome one in the area of sex discrimination."

"Reliance on this decision may prove dangerous," the NSSBA said, "because federal decisions on the same subject consider pregnancy a disability which should be treated in the same manner as any other sickness or disability, under a sick leave payment plan."

The State Supreme Court interpreted the Nebraska Fair Employment Practices Act, as one basis for the Richards decision. "However, Title VII of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 also prohibits sex discrimination and is applicable to all school board sick leave policies," NSSBA said.

"Three circuit courts of appeal have interpreted the federal law as treating pregnancy as a disability, and have required boards to pay pregnant teachers sick leave benefits."

Moreover, "a host of lower federal court holdings stand in direct opposition to Richards," the Bulletin said. "The Richards decision will not shield school boards from the federal statutes and case law, and a board might find itself in violation of federal law, regardless of Richards."

The Bulletin expressed hope that the U.S. Supreme Court will finally "settle the question" of pregnant teachers' benefits. One such case has been laid over.

Meanwhile, NSSBA urged caution, "because there is more than one way to skin a school board . . ."

If federal law takes precedence, "The Richards decision may enjoy a short lived celebration, and boards should not count on writing sick leave benefits for pregnant teachers out of their budgets."

Acknowledging it's "conceivable" the U.S Supreme Court could agree with the Nebraska justices' ruling, NSSBA said "the almost unanimous trend of circuit and federal district court decisions on the subject suggests a different result.

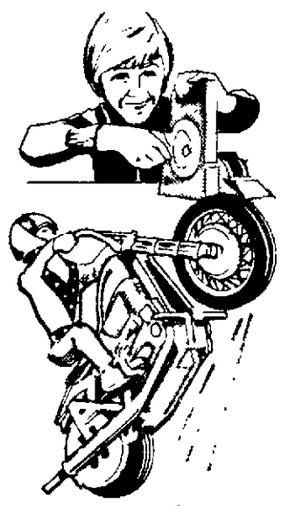

"And until that decision is made, school boards must be prepared to pay sick leave benefits to pregnant teachers."

Lincoln Board of Education policy denies such payment, placing pregnancy leave in the category with all other non-paid leaves. A test case is on appeal in Lancaster District Court.

Two Men To Be Freed, But Process Took Years

Tallahassee, Fla. (AP) — Two men who spent 12 years in prison, eight of them on death row, for a pair of brutal murders another man confessed to nine years ago will be freed Friday.

Freddie Pitts, 31, and Wilbert Lee, 40, have served 12 years and 45 days at the Florida State Prison. All the while they have maintained their innocence.

The black men were twice convicted by all-white juries, in Port St. Joe and Marianna, of the July 31, 1963, execution-style murders in Port St. Joe of service station attendants Grover Floyd Jr. and Jesse Burkett.

A white convict, Curtis "Boo" Adams, serving a life term for a similar murder, confessed to the Floyd-Burkett murders in 1966, sparking the legal struggle to free Pitts and Lee.

Florida Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington signed his name to a pardon Tuesday for Pitts and Lee.

Under Florida law, such a pardon must be signed by the governor and three cabinent members. Gov. Reuben Askew, Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin and Insurance Commissioner Philip Ashler signed the pardon last week.

Askew, who conducted an 18-month pardon investigation, said after Turlington's action, "I am sufficiently convinced of the innocence of Pitts and Lee."

"I do not know for a fact what the real truth is in this case," Turlington said after he signed the pardon. "I believe there is a good prospect of their innocence, but I can't say I know that for a fact."

Public Defender Phillip Hubbart of Miami, who fought for 10 years to free Pitts and Lee, was elated as he talked to reporters in the governor's office, but he said his joy was tempered.

"I feel a bittersweet sense of great joy and underlying sorrow," Hubbart said. "Joy at this incredible victory after 12 long, hard years and sorrow that it didn't come sooner."

"Words cannot possibly express the tremendous debt of gratitude we owe to Gov. Reuben Askew, without whose leadership and troubled conscience we would not be in this position today," Hubbart said.

Arthur Canaday, Askew's general counsel, said the convicts would be released Friday as agreed previously, but details had not been arranged.

Hubbart said he had not talked to the two inmates but added, "They're probably on top of the world right now."

In Port St. Joe, W.L. Burkett, father of one of the slain service station attendants, said he was angry at the pardon.

"Oh, this was politics, pure and simple," Burkett said. "(Gov. Reuben) Askew has obligated the NAACP to his political career."

The Rev. O.T. Stallworth, unofficial spokesman for the town's black population, called the pardon "very much overdue."

"We never have thought the boys were guilty," he said. "I think the police and all were just trying to pacify the white folks. They had the trial so quick . . . why, they found them guilty before they ever found the bodies of the two men."

Asst. Police Chief Ray Robinson said, "In law enforcement, we don't take sides. It's the judicial system and once they make the decision, we back it 100 per cent."

Quadruplets Born In Minnesota

The first quadruplets born in Minnesota in 25 years are doing well at University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis. The four girls, born nine days ago to Mr. and Mrs. David Bergquist of Iron Mountain, Minn., weighed between five and six pounds at birth.

'Eloise' Kills 7 In Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Eloise, a tropical storm now rated as a full-blown hurricane, brushed past Puerto Rico Tuesday, leaving seven persons known dead, more than 6,000 homeless and dozens of villages flooded.

The National Weather Service in San Juan said Eloise intensified to hurricane power at about 5 p.m. CDT as it headed northwest toward the Dominican Republic and Haiti with sustained winds of 75 miles per hour.

Civil defense headquarters reported two persons were crushed when a municipal building collapsed in the town of Utuado, two were electrocuted, two drowned and an oil refinery worker burned to death when flood waters caused an electrical fire in the control room where he was working.

In Washington, Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon announced that he would seek federal aid for devastated areas. He said he would return to the island Wednesday morning for a first-hand inspection of the damage.

The toll of homeless families grew as torrential rains continued. The U.S. Coast Guard announced it had evacuated 230 persons by helicopter and boat.

Father Says Lord Is Calling Karen

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Joseph T. Quinlan says he is convinced after many prayers it is "our Lord's will" that his adopted daughter Karen be allowed to die.

Karen Ann Quinlan, 21, has been in a coma since April 15 and only a hospital's respirator stands between her and death. Her father has filed suit in Superior Court here asking permission to disconnect the machine.

Quinlan, his wife Julia and two younger children, all devout Roman Catholics, disapprove of euthanasia — mercy killing — and believe Karen already is dead except for the functions provided by the machine.

The 50-year-old Quinlan said of his decision Tuesday, "I was the last to hold out because both my wife and my other daughter were critically ill in the past and the Lord always answered my prayers before But after a lot of prayers I became convinced this is what God's will was, that Karen was being called by Him."

Mrs. Quinlan said, "She is just a vegetable. She is not alive."

The Quinlans, who live in Roxbury Township, sought the counsel of Catholic priests at their parish, Our Lady of the Lake, in nearby Mount Arlington. Paul W. Armstrong, Quinlan's attorney, said priests concurred in their decision.

Armstrong said his research showed Catholic doctrine differentiates between acting to take a life and removing devices that "artificially" sustain life in a hopeless case.

In the court papers filed last Friday, Armstrong said doctors have determined the young woman has suffered irreparable brain damage during her five months in a coma.

Quinlan's suit has brought to court the question of defining life and death. Morris County Prosecutor Donald G. Collester Jr. said he has intervened in the case because if Karen is alive, shutting off the machine to end the life would be a homicide. Collester also said there is a legal question as to "who has jurisdiction over such matters."

Armstong said Karen became ill April 15 and has been sustained by a respirator for five months Doctors at St. Clare's hospital in Denville, where the young woman has lain comatose since being admitted, have not diagnosed Karen's illness.

Limited Attack Would Kill 21.7 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Defense Department estimates show that as many as 21.7 million Americans could die in a "limited" Soviet nuclear attack on U.S. military targets.

The worst-case example, made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday, assumed two surface bursts of three-megaton weapons on each of the 1,054 U.S. Minuteman ICBM missile silos.

The report notes, however, that the number of weapons required for such an attack "exceeds current U.S. intelligence projections of Soviet capabilities in the 1980s."

The new estimate of possible fatalities greatly exceeds the 800,000 estimated by Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on arms controls on Sept. 11, 1974.

The 1974 estimate assumed a hypothetical Soviet strike involving a single one-megaton warhead per silo.

Following Schlesinger's testimony a year ago, specialists for the congressional Office of Technology Assessment concluded that the calculations of casualties were substantially low, and that too little attention was paid to intermediate and long-term blast effects.

Asked to re-evaluate casualty estimates, the Defense Department made four "attack scenario" assumptions using weapons of varying potency and explosions both on the surface, with maximum fallout potential, and at "optimum" height above ground level.

The new estimates of casualties ranged from 3.4 million with two 550-kiloton weapons exploded above ground to 21.7 million with two three-megaton surface bursts on each of 1,054 ICBM silos.

Estimates of fatalities in the Whiteman Air Force Base area of Missouri, ranged from two million to 10.3 million. At Malmstrom Air Force Base near Great Falls, Mont., fatality estimates ranged from 120,000 to 310,000.

The report said an attack on U.S. ICBM, Strategic Air Command and nuclear sumarine support bases could result in nearly 800,000 Canadian fatalities.

Three Buses Stoned In Boston

By The Associated Press

Court-ordered school busing in Boston was marked by scattered violence again Tuesday, while in Louisville, Ky., the remaining National Guardsmen on duty to protect bus routes were sent home.

In Boston, officials said school attendance was 72 per cent despite increased tensions which included the stoning by black youths of three school buses filled with white students.

Police said the buses' windows were broken as they were leaving Boston Technical High School in the largely black Roxbury section. No injuries were reported.

During the day, U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., who in a second-phase plan ordered 26,000 of Boston's 76,000 students bused to class, told a briefing "transportation was impossible.

"It was a horror show last week in some places. I don't know how (the opening of schools) went as well as it did."

Garrity also said city, state and federal law enforcement agencies have been able to provide public safety around the schools, and "the ball is now in the School Department's court — in the judge's court — to deliver what's been promised in (the desegregation) plan."

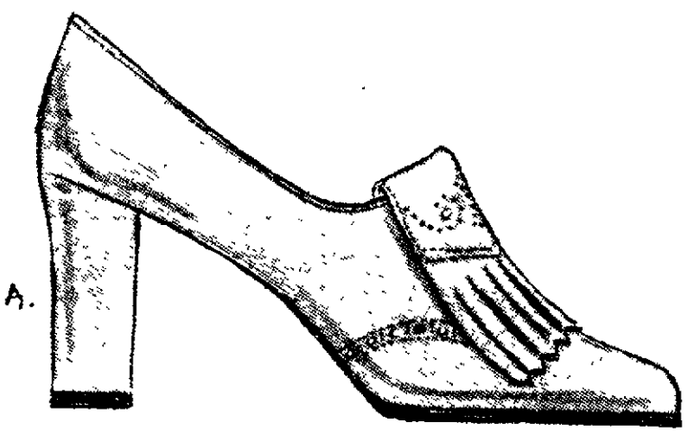

Boston attendance was well above the 59.2 per cent of the first day of school last week. High school attendance showed gains, with the South Boston complex reporting its highest this year, 48.3 per cent.

At South Boston High, a black youth and white youth were injured in a fight. The black student was reported in stable condition with a fractured jaw and stomach injuries.

In Louisville, the 400 National Guardsmen on duty in Jefferson County were deactivated. They were all remaining of the 1,000 called in Sept. 6 after antibusing disturbances.

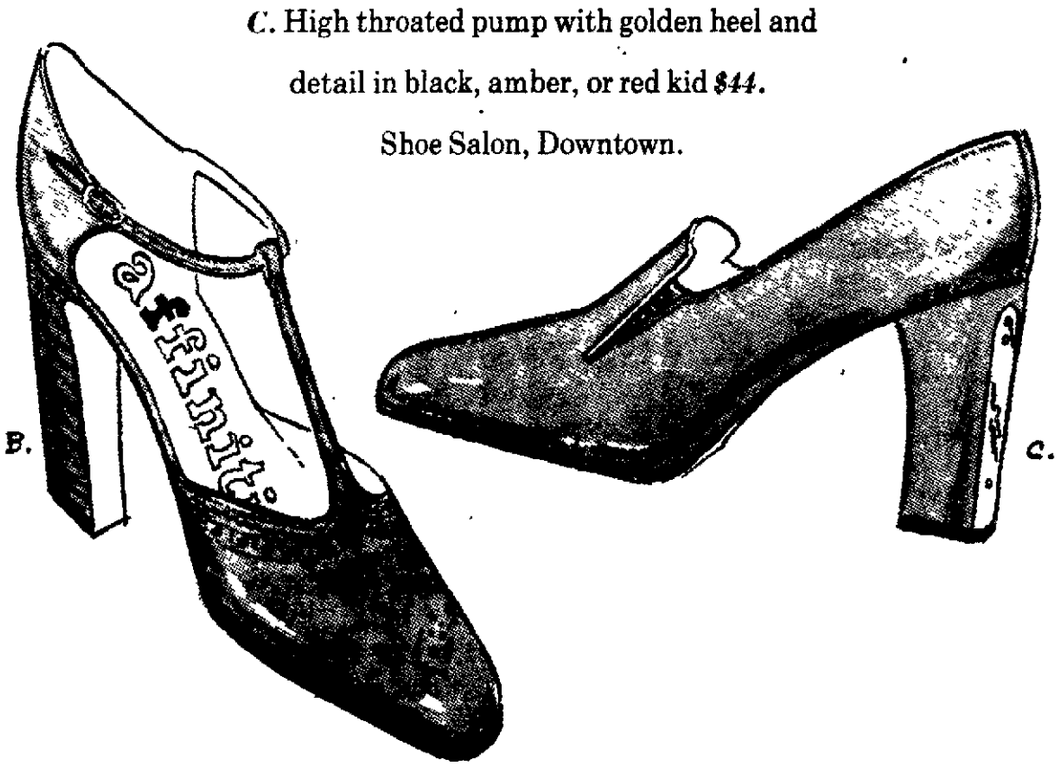

The force of 500 Kentucky State Police called in to help control the disturbances was down to 100.

No serious incidents have been reported in the county since the weekend of Sept. 6 and 7.

Men's Jewelry Pops Up All Over —And It May Be More Than Just A Fad

STAFF PHOTOS BY HARALD DREIMANIS

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Finally. Men are adding a little sparkle to their lives. They're wearing honest-to-goodness jewelry.

Males — at least among us humans — have been striving to be inconspicuous in dress and style for years. Those that resisted were often labeled "different" or worse yet, "fag."

Well, men are starting to show their true colors.

If it's a fad, it's a widespread one. Men's jewelry is becoming popular in nearly every economic and social sector. Suddenly it's stylish for men to don a choker or neckchain for late afternoon cocktails or old-fashioned beer parties on Friday nights.

Necklaces Big Now

Tom Wright, an advertising manager for Sartor-Hamann, said necklaces — ranging in price from $4.50 to 10 times that much — are the biggest new items in men's jewelry.

"In this area they're just getting a start," Wright said. But in larger metropolitan areas "neckties are giving way to the necklace," he said.

"One man told me that in Chicago a lot of businesses are going this way." During working hours, male employes commonly wear "open-necked shirts with necklaces or scarves."

Wright tempered his statement by explaining "men here are very, very conservative. Something unusual like this generally takes quite a lot of instilling before it's accepted."

Men 30 or younger "do accept the necklace idea," he said. But men older than that still have the idea a necklace is feminie. "It's being overcome, but slowly."

Diamonds Are Traditional

Wright said the biggest sellers in men's jewelry are still rings, primarily diamond rings — "the traditional status symbols."

Rick Lehl, manager of the Waterbed Co. of Lincoln, said men are buying "almost any type of jewelry if it's not too lacy-looking."

Common purchases range from turquoise and silver rings to copper or pewter bracelets and chokers of carved, wooden beads strung on leather strips or tiny sea shells from Hawaii, called puka shells.

A year ago, the small shops near the University of Nebraska-Lincoln downtown campus were the only places in town selling offbeat jewelry for men.

"Now, just about everybody has it," Lehl said. "Go to some of the expensive jewelry stores and they actually have some of the same designs we carry. Of course, they're shined up better . . . and the prices are 'better' too."

Some of the most coveted pieces in Lehl's men's jewelry display were the silver and turquoise "spider" bracelet and matching necklace, priced at $60 and $40, respectively.

"A lot of guys want it," he said, pointing to the bracelet. "But $60 . . . I'll sell it for sure, though."

Lehl said he relies heavily on traveling salesmen for advice and information on what's "in" and what's "out" and whether something is coming or going in popularity.

Even On East Coast

"They say turquoise has even caught on on the East Coast, which is supposed to be pretty unusual. I've also heard the turquoise craze is dying out in places like Oklahoma.

"It could peak in Lincoln, too, but I think it has a while yet."

Others, like Linda Moore, owner of Jada, hope the men's jewelry fad in general has a way to go. It has been a boom to her new business on 11th Street, between P and Q.

Some men ask if a piece is "male" or "female," Ms. Moore said. "I tell them it depends on who wears it.

"Some guys really want to make sure they won't see the same thing on some girl. It gets to be kind of funny."

Ms. Moore said she thinks men will continue to wear more jewelry. "I really think it's a healthy sign."

Pamela Harm said that lately half her customers at Jewelart have been men. They buy mostly puka shells, wooden beads, turquoise and liquid silver, which looks like silver heated and molded into long, thin beads.

Mrs. Harm, who recently returned from a vacation on the West Coast, said "all the guys in California are wearing jewelry."

Here it seems to be popular among the younger set, she said. "Football players seem to like it a lot. Nobody's going to go up to one of those guys and say, 'Hey! You look thilly.' "

She said it's easy to sell jewelry to men. "I just tell them how masculine they look. All anybody needs is to know he looks good."

After she complimented a couple of young men who bought chokers, "they decided they'd have to find two girls that agreed with me," she said.

Man 'For Sure'

Saundra Harrison, manager of the Nordic Nook, makes jewelry for her husband, Chris.

"He appreciates it," she said, "and he looks good in it. You know he's a man when you look at him, that's for sure.

"I think men are getting to where they like it a lot more now. A lot more."

FIRST OF KIND . . . from Western Union president. AP

Western Union Has Telegram For Blind

Washington (AP) — Two years ago Joseph E. Wiedenmayer, a retired career foreign service officer, needed to send an urgent message to a friend in St. Louis. He couldn't: the friend was deaf and blind.

"I couldn't reach him," Wiedenmayer said. "It was impossible for him to read or to talk on the telephone."

Wiedenmayer, who is legally blind and severely hard of hearing, wondered why there couldn't be telegrams in braille. He wrote Western Union.

"They wrote back and said it was a nice idea and they would do it, but they had trouble locating the proper equipment," Wiedenmayer said. He talked to the Library of Congress' Division of Blind and Handicapped and the equipment was found.

The result: Wiedenmayer on Friday received the first Braillegram, signed by Earl D. Hilburn, president of Western Union.

The message, delivered by Wiedenmayer's regular mailman, said that "because of your initiative, visually impaired pesons will be able to receive personal and confidential messages."

The firm estimates that more than 6.5 million people in the United States suffer from some form of severe visual impairment and even more have difficulty reading normal-sized type. For the partially sighted there are telegrams in large, 14-point type. For the blind, they'll be in braille.

The sender needs only to tell the Western Union operator he wants a braillegram or large-print message.

Wiedenmayer, 70, retired from the foreign service in 1965 after 22 years, most of them spent overseas in South America, Western Europe and the Far East.

He was born hard of hearing and became afflicted with retinitis pigmentosa, a progressive eye disease, known to laymen as tunnel vision or gun barrel sight.

Sleeping Dogs Should Be Left Strictly Alone

DEAR ABBY: Do you know anything about dreams? My husband calls out his ex-wife's name in his sleep, so he must be dreaming about her, right?

When I tell him that he was calling her name in his sleep, he says he must have been dreaming — but he never can remember what he has dreamed. (Is this possible?)

Abby, if a person dreams about someone, doesn't it mean that that someone must be on that person's subconscious mind?

My husband swears that he loves me and that he never even thinks about his ex-wife, but if that's true, why is he dreaming about her? And if he's not dreaming about her, why is he calling her name?

He says he can't help what he dreams or what he says in his sleep. I can't believe that, can you?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Yes. And if you're wise, you'll lay off and quit reminding him of his ex-wife while he's awake.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell "Philadelphia," whose Jewish cousin passed away, not to worry about whether she goes to heaven or not. As a good person, her goodness will precede her no matter where she goes.

I came across an article by a reverend in which he said: "Adolph Eichmann had a better chance of going to heaven then his millions of victims because he believed in Jesus."

I cannot imagine myself being in heaven with Eichmann and his co-murderers.

If believing in Jesus is the only condition to getting into heaven, I refuse to go there!

CONNECTICUT CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: I wonder where that reverend thinks the millions of Buddhists and Islams go?

DEAR ABBY: Regarding AFFECTIONATE FATHER: There are a couple of guys — 25 and 32 — I see a few times during the year. They always greet me with a bear hug and a kiss on the cheek, which I return. A 42-year-old 6'3" guy also gives me a big hug.

They're my two grown sons and son-in-law, and when that happens, my day is made.

LARRY IN BEAUMONT

CONFIDENTIAL TO L. IN BUFFALO: You can never do a kindness too soon because you never know how soon it will be too late.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

"Holmes," said Watson, as he sat dejectedly in his easy chair inscribing the hand, "I experienced another crushing defeat at the club today. As you know, I have been losing steadily over the past fortnight, though in all candor I must confess I have held my fair share of the cards.

"Alas, an evil fate pursues me and, to add to my woes, each time I am on the verge of a substantial triumph an unexpected quirk of circumstance conspires to deprive me of it. Quite understandably, I have by now acquired a defeatist attitude at the table."

The great detective's deep-set eyes twinkled as he said: "Tell me of your latest experience."

"I was South," the doctor replied sadly, "and quickly reached seven notrump. I won the spade lead and cashed three hearts, learning that West held four to the knave. When I played the king and a low club to the ace, West showed out and I went down one. I was extraordinarily unlucky to encounter such a filthy lie of the cards. The odds must have been 20 to 1 in my favor."

"Alas, Watson, my friend," said Holmes, reaching for his pipe, "you think but you do not reason. You failed to explore the dangers of the hand. You should have cashed the A-K-Q of spades and K-Q-A of hearts.

"You would have learned that West had six spades and four hearts. When you led the ace and a low diamond to the knave, West following suit, you would have established beyond question that West had at most one club. You would next cash the king of clubs, lead the nine and finesse against East's knave with complete certainty of the outcome."

"A remarkable analysis indeed," said Watson, admiringly.

"Oh, no," replied Holmes. "Just elementary."

Men's Jewelry Pops Up All Over —And It May Be More Than Just A Fad

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Finally. Men are adding a little sparkle to their lives. They're wearing honest-to-goodness jewelry.

Males — at least among us humans — have been striving to be inconspicuous in dress and style for years. Those that resisted were often labeled "different" or worse yet, "fag."

Well, men are starting to show their true colors.

If it's a fad, it's a widespread one. Men's jewelry is becoming popular in nearly every economic and social sector. Suddenly it's stylish for men to don a choker or neckchain for late afternoon cocktails or old-fashioned beer parties on Friday nights.

Necklaces Big Now

Tom Wright, an advertising manager for Sartor-Hamann, said necklaces — ranging in price from $4.50 to 10 times that much — are the biggest new items in men's jewelry.

"In this area they're just getting a start," Wright said. But in larger metropolitan areas "neckties are giving way to the necklace," he said.

"One man told me that in Chicago a lot of businesses are going this way." During working hours, male employes commonly wear "open-necked shirts with necklaces or scarves."

Wright tempered his statement by explaining "men here are very, very conservative. Something unusual like this generally takes quite a lot of instilling before it's accepted."

Men 30 or younger "do accept the necklace idea," he said. But men older than that still have the idea a necklace is feminie. "It's being overcome, but slowly."

Diamonds Are Traditional

Wright said the biggest sellers in men's jewelry are still rings, primarily diamond rings — "the traditional status symbols."

Rick Lehl, manager of the Waterbed Co. of Lincoln, said men are buying "almost any type of jewelry if it's not too lacy-looking."

Common purchases range from turquoise and silver rings to copper or pewter bracelets and chokers of carved, wooden beads strung on leather strips or tiny sea shells from Hawaii, called puka shells.

A year ago, the small shops near the University of Nebraska-Lincoln downtown campus were the only places in town selling offbeat jewelry for men.

"Now, just about everybody has it," Lehl said. "Go to some of the expensive jewelry stores and they actually have some of the same designs we carry. Of course, they're shined up better . . . and the prices are 'better' too."

Some of the most coveted pieces in Lehl's men's jewelry display were the silver and turquoise "spider" bracelet and matching necklace, priced at $60 and $40, respectively.

"A lot of guys want it," he said, pointing to the bracelet. "But $60 . . . I'll sell it for sure, though."

Lehl said he relies heavily on traveling salesmen for advice and information on what's "in" and what's "out" and whether something is coming or going in popularity.

Even On East Coast

"They say turquoise has even caught on on the East Coast, which is supposed to be pretty unusual. I've also heard the turquoise craze is dying out in places like Oklahoma.

"It could peak in Lincoln, too, but I think it has a while yet."

Others, like Linda Moore, owner of Jada, hope the men's jewelry fad in general has a way to go. It has been a boom to her new business on 11th Street, between P and Q.

Some men ask if a piece is "male" or "female," Ms. Moore said. "I tell them it depends on who wears it.

"Some guys really want to make sure they won't see the same thing on some girl. It gets to be kind of funny."

Ms. Moore said she thinks men will continue to wear more jewelry. "I really think it's a healthy sign."

Pamela Harm said that lately half her customers at Jewelart have been men. They buy mostly puka shells, wooden beads, turquoise and liquid silver, which looks like silver heated and molded into long, thin beads.

Mrs. Harm, who recently returned from a vacation on the West Coast, said "all the guys in California are wearing jewelry."

Here it seems to be popular among the younger set, she said. "Football players seem to like it a lot. Nobody's going to go up to one of those guys and say, 'Hey! You look thilly.' "

She said it's easy to sell jewelry to men. "I just tell them how masculine they look. All anybody needs is to know he looks good."

After she complimented a couple of young men who bought chokers, "they decided they'd have to find two girls that agreed with me," she said.

Man 'For Sure'

Saundra Harrison, manager of the Nordic Nook, makes jewelry for her husband, Chris.

"He appreciates it," she said, "and he looks good in it. You know he's a man when you look at him, that's for sure.

"I think men are getting to where they like it a lot more now. A lot more."

Telephone Booth Hard To Protect

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Have you ever punched a payphone?

Think before you hastily say "no."

Remember the night you were expected home on time for a romantic candlelight dinner, but your car broke down and the nearest payphone gobbled your last dime? Perhaps it was a swift kick . . .

While such retribution may at the time seem warranted to the wronged caller, getting even is against the law.

But that doesn't seem to bother hundreds of willful defacers of phone company property who do thousands of dollars of damage each year.

Without the help of vandals or vengeful callers, pay telephones are more apt than residential phones to break down. Complicated pieces of equipment, they have more things in them to go wrong, like the coin collecting device.

The Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. reports that 62% of its pay station trouble is caused by bent coins which clog up the collection device. One jammed coin bollixes up the whole works.

The other 38% of trouble in descending order of frequency is caused by electrical relays within phone itself, central office switching equipment, wires at the pay station location and vandalism.

While phone equipment engineers have done their best to reduce the temptation to tamper with the talking machines, there's no way to design a phone so it's 100% vandal-proof, says Jim Vanderslice of LT&T.

Cords Armored

Shortened armored steel cords have replaced the plastic wires that once held the receiver to the body of the phone. But those with a will and a handy pair of wire-cutters still find a way to sever the connection.

Similarly, coin collection devices have been modified to prevent tissue-stuffing, and each is fitted with a slug rejector.

In spite of all the precautions, willful damage to pay phones within LT&T's territory occurs approximately two to three times a week. That adds up to between 100-200 instances a year requiring $8,000-10,000 in repair costs.

As many occurrences of glassbreaking in booths are reported, but repair costs are only half as expensive — around $4,000.

Missing phone books, however, are the most costly form of vandalism. With 2,387 pay phones in its territory, LT&T finds it must replace 7,000-8,000 directories a year, at a cost of $12,000 for the directories alone.

The use of hard cover binders to protect the directories doesn't deter the determined. Some 1,000 of these are literally ripped off each year, with a replacement cost of $2,000.

Instead of taking things, some vandals leave them — in the form of obscenities scrawled on the walls or scratched into the metal fixtures.

Vandalism could be greater if locations were not carefully selected, suggested Vanderslice. Placed in high volume traffic areas and lighted at night, the booths remain in plain sight of passers-by.

Only One Robbery

In fact, in the past year Vanderslice is aware of only one robbery attempt at a pay phone station, and that was at a unit located within a business.

"The security of the money in a pay phone is one of the most important features," Vanderslice said.

There does come a point, however, when maintaining a pay phone costs more than it's worth. That happened in two Lincoln junior high schools last year and both units were removed.

Vandalism and costly repairs aside, a caller can really get his ire up when the phone booth he stops in doesn't work, for whatever reason. He's as much miffed by the inconvenience as he is by the loss of his dime.

Vanderslice says his company relies "on the general public to let us know when a pay telephone is not working." And he emphasizes that a frustrated caller can get his money back just for the asking.

In defense of the often untidy outdoor booths, Vanderslice said maintenance men make housecleaning stops as frequently as once a week. And coin collectors on their rounds make test calls to see if the unit is operating properly. During August, 28 inoperable phones were discovered by such test calls.

Some forms of vandalism are not so easily discovered, Vanderslice noted. Those fall in the sensitive area of electronic devices to defraud the telephone industry.

While "blue boxes" have been used to bypass billing equipment in many areas of the country, Vanderslice says LT&T has "not found any such devices in areas we serve." He goes on to say "if we were able to find one, we'd definitely prosecute."

Toll credit cards, another possible source of fraudulent billing, are more complicated than they appear. "They have built-in checks," Vanderslice warned.

Pesticides No Threat, If . . .

Pittsburgh (UPI) — A specialist in the field of industrial medicine says pesticides are not harmful to human health as long they are used properly.

"If we didn't use pesticides, there simply would not be sufficient food on the table, and the pest population would quickly become a major health menace," said Dr. Mitchell Zavon.

A recent president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, Zavon said, "With all the safeguards our government takes to insure human safety, it is impossible for people to buy food at the store which would contain a harmful amount of pesticides.

"By means of a great invention called a gas chromatograph we now have the ability to measure chemical residues in parts per trillion. This means a millionth part of a foot in the distance from New York to Washington, D.C. — an astounding fact beyond the comprehension of most people.

"In order to pass standards set by the Food and Drug Administration, Zavon said, "any pesticide residues found on any fresh produce must register at 100 times blow the "no effect" level on people for that particular pesticide. Otherwise the entire shipment of fruit or vegetables is destroyed.

"Pesticides may be harmful if misused. However, they are a necessity in our world today and certainly much more of an asset to our civilization than a possible hazard to man's health," he said.

My son got a ticket for not having a bicycle license right in front of our home. The only place he can get one is at a fire station and there isn't one close enough for him to ride to. Since our car is too small to carry the bike in, what can we do?

—Concerned, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A recent recommendation from the mayor's bicycle committee may solve your's and other people's dilemma. The mayor has approved the suggestion that bicycle dealers be allowed to inspect and license bikes. Lincoln police have sent a letter outling the procedures to dealers in the city requesting them to provide this service. So far there has been no response from the dealers, but police intend to follow up the letter with personal contact and hope this will elicit some response. Apparently your son isn't alone in having an unlicensed bike, because police say fewer than 10,000 of the estimated 29,950 bicycles in Lincoln are registered.

In August you printed a letter about sending self-addressed envelopes overseas. Your answer was less than complete since you failed to mention the possible use of international reply coupons that can be used to obtain postage in other countries.

—E.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The post office in Lincoln confirms the reply coupons are available at all post offices in the city. Information on the price and how many would be needed for replies from different countries can be obtained from the postal service.

I have done quite a bit of research but I have been unable to find a complete list of the AP and UPI post-season top 20 football and basketball teams. Can ACTION LINE lend a hand?

—John Beltz, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The post-season national champions are listed in the World Almanac; however for a complete list you will have to write to the wire services national headquarters. Write to UPI, 220 East 42nd St., N.Y., N.Y. 10017; and to AP, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, N.Y., N.Y. 10020. AP started its top 20 listings in 1936 and UPI began rating the teams in 1950.

ACTION LINE UPDATE: Oops. There seems to be a lot of confusion concerning what Lincoln city ordinances allow motorists to do when confronted with switching trains. State law prohibits vehicles from going around railroad crossarms. Police Inspector Dean Leitner said his office discovered this when an angry motorist contacted him after missing the question on his driver's license test. The practice is also prohibited by city ordinance, and Leitner said the memo to police that the city council had revoked the ordinance was incorrect. He says city ordinance still prohibits motorists from going around crossarms at railroad crossings. So despite what has previously appeared in ACTION LINE, if you're confronted with a question about railroad crossarms on a driving test, use an answer that says you must stop and wait until the train has gone by and the crossarms are raised before proceeding.

My son lost a light jacket during the Nebraska State Fair. What is the proper procedure for locating lost items at the fair?

—B.F., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The proper place to obtain information is to write State Fair Manager Henry Brandt, P.O. Box 81223, Lincoln 68501.

Court Judges Soldiers Guilty

Athens (AP) — A military court found 16 members of the military police under the former dictatorship guilty of maltreating political dissidents and sentenced them to prison terms ranging from six months to 23 years.

Those convicted included 12 officers and four enlisted men. It took the tribunal almost 10 hours to reach a verdict.

New York Termed World's Greatest Tourist Attraction

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City may be budget-battered and fiscally failing, but tourist officials can find no worm in the town they like to call the "Big Apple."

"We're the greatest in the world as a tourist attraction; absolutely dominant; no other place can touch us," said Charles Gillett, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

In 1974, he said, more than 16 million people spent $1.25 billion here — a world record.

Gillett said New York had 100,000 hotel rooms, "more than London and Paris put together," and was the world's banking, theatrical, fashion, communications, art and music capital. He showed a recent Gallup poll which said most Americans considered New York "top city" with the "best food" and "best-looking women."

Of the $1.25 billion traceable to tourist spending, $405.3 million was spent at conventions, he said.

"Now that the Democrats are bringing their national convention here in 1976, we figure that will add about $20 million to $25 million to convention spending," he said.

Gillett said the recession and devaluation of the dollar were, paraxodically, helping the city's tourist trade.

"Americans have postponed or put off foreign trips and, on the other side, foreigners are pouring in here," he said. "Look what they get for their money."

"We get $1 for only five krone," said Sverre Kjeller-Morderer, an international lawyer from Norway here on a combined business and pleasure trip. "It used to take eight to buy a dollar, so prices are much lower for us now."

His wife, Torunn, a magazine editor, said: "I can't stay out of the shops. Everything is so much cheaper than in Oslo."

Preston Robert Tisch, chairman of the bureau and head of the Loew's Hotel chain, commented: "By any standard we're a cheap city."

Loew's owns the Churchill in London and a new hotel in Monte Carlo and Tisch says: "When I see the prices in the stores there, I can hardly wait to get home."

There are plenty of tourist attractions — from Madison Square Garden to Greenwich Village to the Fifth Avenue shops.

Many a visitor on his first Circle Line boat tour around the isle of Manhattan must get the impression that the Rockefeller family built New York singlehandedly. There's Rockefeller Center, Rockefeller University, The Michael Rockefeller Wing of the Metropolitan, Lincoln Center (whose honorary chairman is John D. Rockefeller III) and the Museum of Modern Art (founded by the Rockefellers).

But other rich families have helped make New York what most experts consider the art capital of the world. To name a few there are the Frick, Whitney and Guggenheim museums, the Morgan and Astor libraries and the great collection amassed by banker Robert Lehman now housed in a special wing at the Met.

The Metropolitan Museum, by itself, has proved to be the single top tourist attraction in New York with a new attendance record of about five million expected in 1975.

The city is also considered by many as the dance capital of the world and during the spring hundreds of thousands jammed programs by the New York City Ballet, the American Ballet Theatre, the Bolshoi Ballet, the National Ballet of Canada, Martha Graham, the Stuttgart Ballet, U.S. Terpsichore and literally dozens of other companies.

"It is where every dancer has to be," said Mikhail Baryshnikov, who defected from Leningrad's Kirov to dance with the American Ballet Theatre.

High on the list of tourist attractions, the bureau said, is United Nations Headquarters which is visited by millions every year and also draws thousands of free-spending diplomats from all over the world.

Other major attractions are the Statue of Liberty and the Staten Island Ferry.

Braillegram

AP

FIRST OF KIND . . . from Western Union president.

Western Union Has Telegram For Blind

Washington (AP) — Two years ago Joseph E. Wiedenmayer, a retired career foreign service officer, needed to send an urgent message to a friend in St. Louis. He couldn't: the friend was deaf and blind.

"I couldn't reach him," Wiedenmayer said. "It was impossible for him to read or to talk on the telephone."

Wiedenmayer, who is legally blind and severely hard of hearing, wondered why there couldn't be telegrams in braille. He wrote Western Union.

"They wrote back and said it was a nice idea and they would do it, but they had trouble locating the proper equipment," Wiedenmayer said. He talked to the Library of Congress' Division of Blind and Handicapped and the equipment was found.

The result: Wiedenmayer on Friday received the first Braillegram, signed by Earl D. Hilburn, president of Western Union.

The message, delivered by Wiedenmayer's regular mailman, said that "because of your initiative, visually impaired pesons will be able to receive personal and confidential messages."

The firm estimates that more than 6.5 million people in the United States suffer from some form of severe visual impairment and even more have difficulty reading normal-sized type. For the partially sighted there are telegrams in large, 14-point type. For the blind, they'll be in braille.

The sender needs only to tell the Western Union operator he wants a braillegram or large-print message.

Wiedenmayer, 70, retired from the foreign service in 1965 after 22 years, most of them spent overseas in South America, Western Europe and the Far East.

He was born hard of hearing and became afflicted with retinitis pigmentosa, a progressive eye disease, known to laymen as tunnel vision or gun barrel sight.

Sleeping Dogs Should Be Left Strictly Alone

DEAR ABBY: Do you know anything about dreams? My husband calls out his ex-wife's name in his sleep, so he must be dreaming about her, right?

When I tell him that he was calling her name in his sleep, he says he must have been dreaming — but he never can remember what he has dreamed. (Is this possible?)

Abby, if a person dreams about someone, doesn't it mean that that someone must be on that person's subconscious mind?

My husband swears that he loves me and that he never even thinks about his ex-wife, but if that's true, why is he dreaming about her? And if he's not dreaming about her, why is he calling her name?

He says he can't help what he dreams or what he says in his sleep. I can't believe that, can you?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Yes. And if you're wise, you'll lay off and quit reminding him of his ex-wife while he's awake.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell "Philadelphia," whose Jewish cousin passed away, not to worry about whether she goes to heaven or not. As a good person, her goodness will precede her no matter where she goes.

I came across an article by a reverend in which he said: "Adolph Eichmann had a better chance of going to heaven then his millions of victims because he believed in Jesus."

I cannot imagine myself being in heaven with Eichmann and his co-murderers.

If believing in Jesus is the only condition to getting into heaven, I refuse to go there!

CONNECTICUT CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: I wonder where that reverend thinks the millions of Buddhists and Islams go?

DEAR ABBY: Regarding AFFECTIONATE FATHER: There are a couple of guys — 25 and 32 — I see a few times during the year. They always greet me with a bear hug and a kiss on the cheek, which I return. A 42-year-old 6'3" guy also gives me a big hug.

They're my two grown sons and son-in-law, and when that happens, my day is made.

Opening lead - ten of spades.

"Holmes," said Watson, as he sat dejectedly in his easy chair inscribing the hand, "I experienced another crushing defeat at the club today. As you know, I have been losing steadily over the past fortnight, though in all candor I must confess I have held my fair share of the cards.

"Alas, an evil fate pursues me and, to add to my woes, each time I am on the verge of a substantial triumph an unexpected quirk of circumstance conspires to deprive me of it. Quite understandably, I have by now acquired a defeatist attitude at the table."

The great detective's deep-set eyes twinkled as he said: "Tell me of your latest experience."

"I was South," the doctor replied sadly, "and quickly reached seven notrump. I won the spade lead and cashed three hearts, learning that West held four to the knave. When I played the king and a low club to the ace, West showed out and I went down one. I was extraordinarily unlucky to encounter such a filthy lie of the cards. The odds must have been 20 to 1 in my favor."

"Alas, Watson, my friend," said Holmes, reaching for his pipe, "you think but you do not reason. You failed to explore the dangers of the hand. You should have cashed the A-K-Q of spades and K-Q-A of hearts.

"You would have learned that West had six spades and four hearts. When you led the ace and a low diamond to the knave, West following suit, you would have established beyond question that West had at most one club. You would next cash the king of clubs, lead the nine and finesse against East's knave with complete certainty of the outcome."

"A remarkable analysis indeed," said Watson, admiringly.

"Oh, no," replied Holmes. "Just elementary."

Classification Changes Boost Three Teams To Top Spot

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Fremont Bergan, Scribner and Lawrence are No. 1-rated high school football teams today. Twenty-four hours earlier, they wouldn't have had that honor.

The three smaller school football powers profit in accordance with classification changes announced Tuesday by the Nebraska School Activities Assn. (NSAA).

Bergan moved down from Class B and now leads the Sunday Journal and Star's Class C-1 ratings. Scribner, a Class C-1 school last year, slides to Class C-2 and tops that division's ratings.

Lawrence also takes a step down from Class C to Class D, according to boy enrolment figures, and becomes a No. 1 team, ahead of fellow Pioneer Conference school Shickley.

In the larger school ranks, four schools traded places classification-wise. Omaha Tech and Alliance advanced to Class A status, replacing York and Omaha Ryan, both of which are now Class B.

Omaha Holy Name, Centennial and Atkinson West Holt joins Fremont Bergan in dropping from Class B to Class C. Moving up a class to replace those four are Loup City, Wymore Southern, North Bend and Raymond Central.

Ten Change Status

Changes were greater in the Class C and D ranks. Ten school advances from Class D to C — Ponca, Medicine Valley, Spencer, Clay Center, Malcolm, Orchard, Lindsay Holy Family, Clarks, Shelby and Springview.

Accordingly, 10 schools move down from Class C to D — Oxford, Palmer, Elm Creek, Benkelman, Johnson-Brock, Lawrence, Coleridge, Hayes Center, North Loup-Scotia and Wilcox.

The NSSA office also released the schools which are optioning out of football playoff consideration. Class B West Point Central Catholic and Class C Ravenna are the biggest schools declining participation.

Others include Beemer, Nebraska Christian, Halsey-Dunning, Oconto, Marquette, Petersburg, Prague and Venango.

Omaha Tech made the most dramatic enrolment jump among NSAA schools after its first year of Class B competition. Tech's boy enrolment increased by 130 from 263 to 393.

Bellevue Largest

Bellevue is the state's biggest school in terms of boy enrolment with 1,673.

Schools with more than 1,000 boys include Omaha Westside (1,575), Omaha South (1,453), Omaha Central (1,375), Omaha Burke (1,348), Lincoln High (1,136), Lincoln Northeast (1,128), Lincoln Southeast (1,106), Omaha Northwest (1,059), Grand Island (1,022), Millard (1,013), Lincoln East (1,005) and Omaha Benson (1,000).

Other Class A boy enrolments are Fremont (944), Creighton Prep (896), North Platte (895), Omaha North (891), Omaha Bryan (792), Papillion (788), Norfolk (710) Ralston (699), Hastings (682), Columbus (576), Scottsbluff (573), Kearney (535), Omaha Gross (520), Beatrice (504), Omaha Roncalli (461), South Sioux City (443), Tech (393), McCook (377) and Alliance (345).

York is the largest Class B school with 341 boys, followed by Plattsmouth (325), Blair (324), Lincoln Pius X (320), Gering (319), Sidney (308), Nebraska City (303), Ogallala (301), Fairbury (284) and Seward (281).

Creighton and Wahoo Neumann each had 137 boy enrolment with Craighton staying in Class B and Neumann remaining in Class C because of averages compiled over the last three years.

Axtell, Doniphan and Walthill are the smallest Class C schools with 61 boys each. Exeter and Palmer have the same number of boys in leading the Class D ranks.

Football Districts Set

The NSAA also announced district alignments for this fall's first venture in football playoffs. Based on the highest point averages, one representative from each district will qualify for the state semifinals Nov. 7.

The state's most powerful district could be Class A-2 in which four top 10 rated teams will compete for a playoff berth. The Nos. 1 and 2 Class B teams, Lincoln Pius X and York, also are locked in the same district.

District alignments include:

Class C-1

1— Fremont Bergan (2-0)
2 — Plainview (2-0)
3 — Tri-County (2-0)
4 — Norfolk Catholic (2-0)
5 — Pender (2-0)
6 — Wilber (2-0)
7 — Gibbon (1-0)
8 — Louisville (2-0)
9 — Wood River (2-0)
10 — Mitchell (2-0)

Comment — Classification changes announced Tuesday invalidate computer ratings.

Class C-2

1 — Scribner (2-0)
2 — Friend (2-0)
3 — Grant (1-1)
4 — Pleasanton (2-0)
5 — Alma (2-0)
6 — Hay Springs (2-0)
7 — Henderson (0-0-2)
8 — Bancroft (2-0)
9 — Clay Center (2-0)
10 — Clarks (20)

Comment — Clay Center and Clarks moved up from the Class D ranks, according to enrolment figures released Tuesday. But both are strong teams and merit ratings.

Class D

1 — Lawrence (2-0)
2 — Shickley (2-0)
3 — Falls City Sacred Heart(1-0)
4 — Alliance St. Agnes (2-0)
5 — Nelson (2-0)
6 — Loomis (2-0)
7 — North Loup-Scotia (2-0)
8 — Homer (2-0)
9 — Callaway (2-0)
10 — Fairmont (1-1)

Comment — Lawrence slides down from Class C into the No. 1 Class D perch, a notch ahead of fellow Pioneer Conference member Shickley.

2 — Shelby (2-0)
3 — Adams (2-0)
4 — Bartlett (2-0)

6 — Odell (2-0)
7 — Sidney St. Pat's (2-0)
8 — Gresham (2-0)
9 — Ruskin (2-0)
10 — Davenport (2-0)

Comment — Shelby will be ineligible for the statewide playoffs after advancing to Class C status. Playoff provisions prevent a Class C school from qualifying in eight-man competition.

Bucs, Stennett Snap Marks In 22-0 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — "You've got to be a good hitter to get seven hits in one game, but you've got to be lucky, too," said Pittsburgh second baseman Rennie Stennett, who collected four singles, two doubles and a triple in setting a modern major league record Tuesday during a 22-0 rout of the Chicago Cubs.

Rennie Stennett

Stennett also tied a major league record when he became only the fourth player in history to twice collect two hits in one inning in one game.

Stennett and the Pirates were involved in other records in bombarding the Cubs. It was the widest shutout margin in major league history and the highest run total in the majors this year.

Stennett, 24, laughed in reply to one dressing room question: "Man, of course, it's the first time I ever got seven hits in a game." The slender native of Panama said he had five hits in a game in the minor leagues but four hits in a single game was his best since joining the Pirates.

Stennett's record hit, tying the all-time major league mark set in 1892 by Wilbert Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, was a sinking liner to right field that skipped away.

Only three players in history equaled Stennett's feat of twice getting two hits in a single inning—Max Carey of Pittsburgh in 1925, and two American Leaguers, John Hodapp of Cleveland in 1928 and Sherman Lollar of Chicago in 1955.

The Pirates collected 24 hits, and every player in the starting lineup had at least one hit and scored at least one run. Their 22 runs was the highest in the majors this season and the most in the National League since Sept. 2, 1957 when the Milwaukee Braves routed the Cubs 23-10.

The Pirates' 22-0 triumph surpassed the record of 21-0 set in 1901 by Detroit against Cleveland and matched in 1939 by the New York Yankees against the Philadelphia Athletics.

Six Huskers Back To Drill For Indiana Game

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The return of four ineligible players and two who had been on the injury list brought some comfort to Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne at Tuesday's practice in preparation for the Indiana game Saturday in Memorial Stadium.

"We have six or seven more players than we had a week ago," Osborne said. "And that's somewhat comforting."

Center Rik Bonness and tackle Stan Waldemore, both out of the opener against Louisiana State, participated in the drill with the former ineligibles safetyman Jim Burrow, defensive end Ray Phillips, quarterback Vince Ferragamo and defensive tackle Dean Gissler.

"Bonness did a good job and seems to be all right," Osborne said. "I think he will play."

Boost To NU

That would be a boost to the Huskers because last week's fill-in for Bonness, Tom Davis, is wearing a neck harness to protect a pinched nerve. Davis practiced, but his status for Saturday remains in doubt. Other centers available include senior Tom Thomas and freshman Keith Bishop.

A decision on whether Waldemore dresses to face the Hoosiers will be made Wednesday. Although his knee seems to be healed, he has missed a lot of work. Besides that, he has been switched from guard to tackle behind Steve Hoins.

"The question is whether he has learned the new assignments at the new position," Osborne said. If he doesn't suit up, the No. 2 right tackle will become sophomore Tom Ohrt, a player the Husker coaching staff would like to redshirt provided there are no more injuries on the offensive line.

Bob Hayes, a sophomore, is the swing man who will backup both Hoins and left tackle Bob Lingenfelter.

Osborne said Burrow has reclaimed his starting safety job and that Phillips will start at left end. Bob Martin, who filled Phillips spot last week, will go back to right end with Dave Redding serving as the No. 2 man there. "Martin could go to the left side to play if we need him there," Osborne said.

Wait And See

"Ferragamo should be ready to play and hopefully he will play some," Osborne said. "We'll have to see how the game goes."

Gissler, the fourth returnee after sitting out the opener because of the NCAA suspension, also is ready for action behind Mike Fultz at defensive right tackle.

Osborne plans no changes on most of the kicking units, but said a reevaluation will be made on all special teams Wednesday. "We might make some changes on the kickoff teams," he said.

The situation at I-back remained a day-to-day proposition, but Osborne said the top three (John O'Leary, Monte Anthony and Dave Gillespie) are close. Gillespie, however worked in sweat clothes Tuesday as a result of a hip pointer. That's a painful bruise in the hip region that sometimes is slow to heal.

Osborne said the squad worked hard Tuesday and showed pretty good concentration. He described it as "a nice day to practice." It was overcast and temperatures were around 70 degrees.

Tougher Test

Looking ahead to Indiana, the Husker coach said the NU defense will receive a sterner test from the Hooisers than from LSU.

"Indiana has a good quarterback and running backs and from looking at films it looks like their offensive linemen are experienced and good people," Osborne said. "We couldn't evaluate LSU because they had a mostly new offensive line."

Even though the defense played well last week, Osborne said, "I don't think they're not at all complacent and I hope they don't think they've got it made because they weren't tested like they're going to be by Indiana."

Voters OK Sunday Racing

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Sunday horse racing, which propelled Hollywood Park and Santa Anita race tracks into record-setting attendance and mutuel handles, will soon become a reality in Nebraska.

That was assured when voters in Dakota County Tuesday approved the issue in a special election. The total vote was about 57% for and 43% against.

Overall, 1,406 votes were cast from 6,500 registered voters. The vote for was 807 and 599 against.

The issue passed easily in South Sioux City, near where Atokad Park is located — 428-235. Outside South Sioux City, it barely passed 365-361.

Atokad general manager Harold Smock said he is hoping to race six Sundays this year, dropping scheduled racing on all Tuesdays and the one Monday (Oct. 27).

"My board of directors is meeting Wednesday night and then we meet on Thursday with the State Racing Commission (in Omaha) on Thursday morning," he said, "so it's really not official yet. But we are going to request, at least as of right now, six Sundays."

Although Smock said he has not contacted the Los Angeles tracks who started the trend which is gaining national attention, he said he is certain the change in dates will help Atokad.

"On Tuesdays, we generally averaged about $150,000 (in mutuel handle). We're hoping to average $300,000 on Saturdays and Sundays," he said. "If we have any kind of luck at all, we can double our Tuesday handle on Sunday."

Smock said Atokad would hold nine races on Sundays with the usual daily double and three exactas.

Despite the poor voter turnout, Smock said he felt many potential "yes" votes were lost when proponents of the measure thought it would pass easily.

"It's only my personal opinion, but I thought a lot of people didn't vote because they couldn't see how it could lose," he said. "I went to the city council meeting tonight and one person told me if it loses by one vote, I'm the one to blame since I didn't vote.

"I think that the South Sioux City Star helped us a lot, too," he added.

The Tuesday vote culminated a lengthy effort by Atokad Park to gain Sunday racing. Neighboring horse track Park Jefferson (in Jefferson, S.D.) and dog track Sodrac Park (in North Sioux City) have had Sunday racing for years.

State Sen. John Murphy tried unsuccessfully to introduce a bill allowing a vote on Sunday racing last year. During this session of the Unicameral, Murphy introduced LB342 which was read Jan. 22.

Bill Passes

The Unicameral passed that bill allowing Sunday racing in Nebraska counties of 20,000 or less population provided the voters approve it in a referendum.

Atokad Park is the only Nebraska track in a county with 20,000 or less population.

Smock also noted that Sodrac closes before Atokad opens — the first time in the seven years he's been at Atokad that the Nebraska track would not compete with the night dog races.

"With the dogs finished and Sunday racing, I can't help but think we'll have the best year ever," he noted.

Atokad is scheduled to open Sept. 24 and close Nov. 1, depending on the new dates the Commission grants at its Omaha meeting.

Pius X's Rohren Earns Player Of Week Honor

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If York misses the Class B football playoffs this fall because of last week's 28-26 loss to Lincoln Pius X, chances are the Dukes will remember the name Steve Rohren for many years.

Rohren, a 6-1, 170-pound wingback for the top-rated Thunderbolts, scored 20 of his team's 28 points on an impressive combination of running and pass receiving.

The Pius X senior earns the Sunday Journal and Star's second prep Player of the Week award for his contributions to the important win.

With 19 seconds remaining before halftime, Rohren caught a 10-yard scoring pass to pull Pius even at 14-14.

Steve Rohren

With his team trailing 26-14, he ran for a 20-yard touchdown and caught a two-point conversion pass to slice the margin to 26-22 with 8:52 remaining.

With 5:28 left, Rohren applied the finishing touches on a three-yard scoring run. Although he ranks as one of the state's premier pass receivers, he finished with 110 yards rushing, including 75 on five fourth-quarter carries.

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Kevin Kuhnigh, Papillion — Monarch tri-captain has been credited with five quarterback "sacks" at middle linebacker in wins over Columbus and Lincoln High and has been equally impressive blocking at offensive guard.

Ron Abel, Scottsbluff — Recovered a fumble for a touchdown as the Bearcats upset Wyoming's No. 1-ranked prep team, Cheyenne East, 16-13.

Bob Billinger, Omaha Westside — Rushed for 150 yards on 25 carries as Warriors defeated Omaha North, 35-7.

Matt Farrens, Lincoln Northeast — Split end caught a 27-yard touchdown pass and threw a 48-yard scoring pass in Rockets' 20-0 win over Fremont.

Dave McWilliams, Omaha Bryan — Senior quarterback's slick execution of the option play (55 yards on 8 carries) was the key in Bears' 14-13 upset of defending Metro champion Omaha Burke.

Rod Wismer, Waverly — Senior linebacker was credited with five unassisted tackles and 10 assists in Vikings' 6-0 win over Gretna.

Lane Kinnan, Cozad — Junior halfback has rushed for 307 yards on 39 carries as Haymakers split against Ord and Aurora. He had 12 tackles, including seven solos, at linebacker in loss to Aurora.

Kirk Kellough, Friend — Senior halfback rushed for 146 yards on 23 carries and scored two touchdowns in team's 27-0 win over Wymore Southern. He also caught a two-point conversion pass, recovered a fumble, intercepted a pass and made six tackles at cornerback.

Rick Koenig, Tri-County — In less than a half against Pawnee City, senior quarterback hit 6 of 7 passes for 176 yards and four touchdowns. He scored the other TD in the 33-0 win himself and punted five times for a 40-yard average.

Greg Pierce, Clay Center — Senior halfback scored both touchdowns and rushed for 122 yards on 21 carries in a 16-0 win over Fairmont.

Jeff Fankhauser, Humboldt — Senior middle guard collected 14 tackles in team's win over Sterling.

Chip Kuck, Bertrand — After 16-tackle performance in loss to North Platte St. Pat's, 6-1, 200-pound senior was credited with 13 tackles (nine solos) in win over Oberlin, Kan.

Reg Meier, Loomis — Junior halfback rushed for 158 yards on 25 carries and scored 20 points in team's 27-8 win over Amherst.

Jeff Remmenga, Elwood — Senior fullback-middle linebacker ran for a touchdown and recovered a fumble for another in team's shutout of Wauneta.

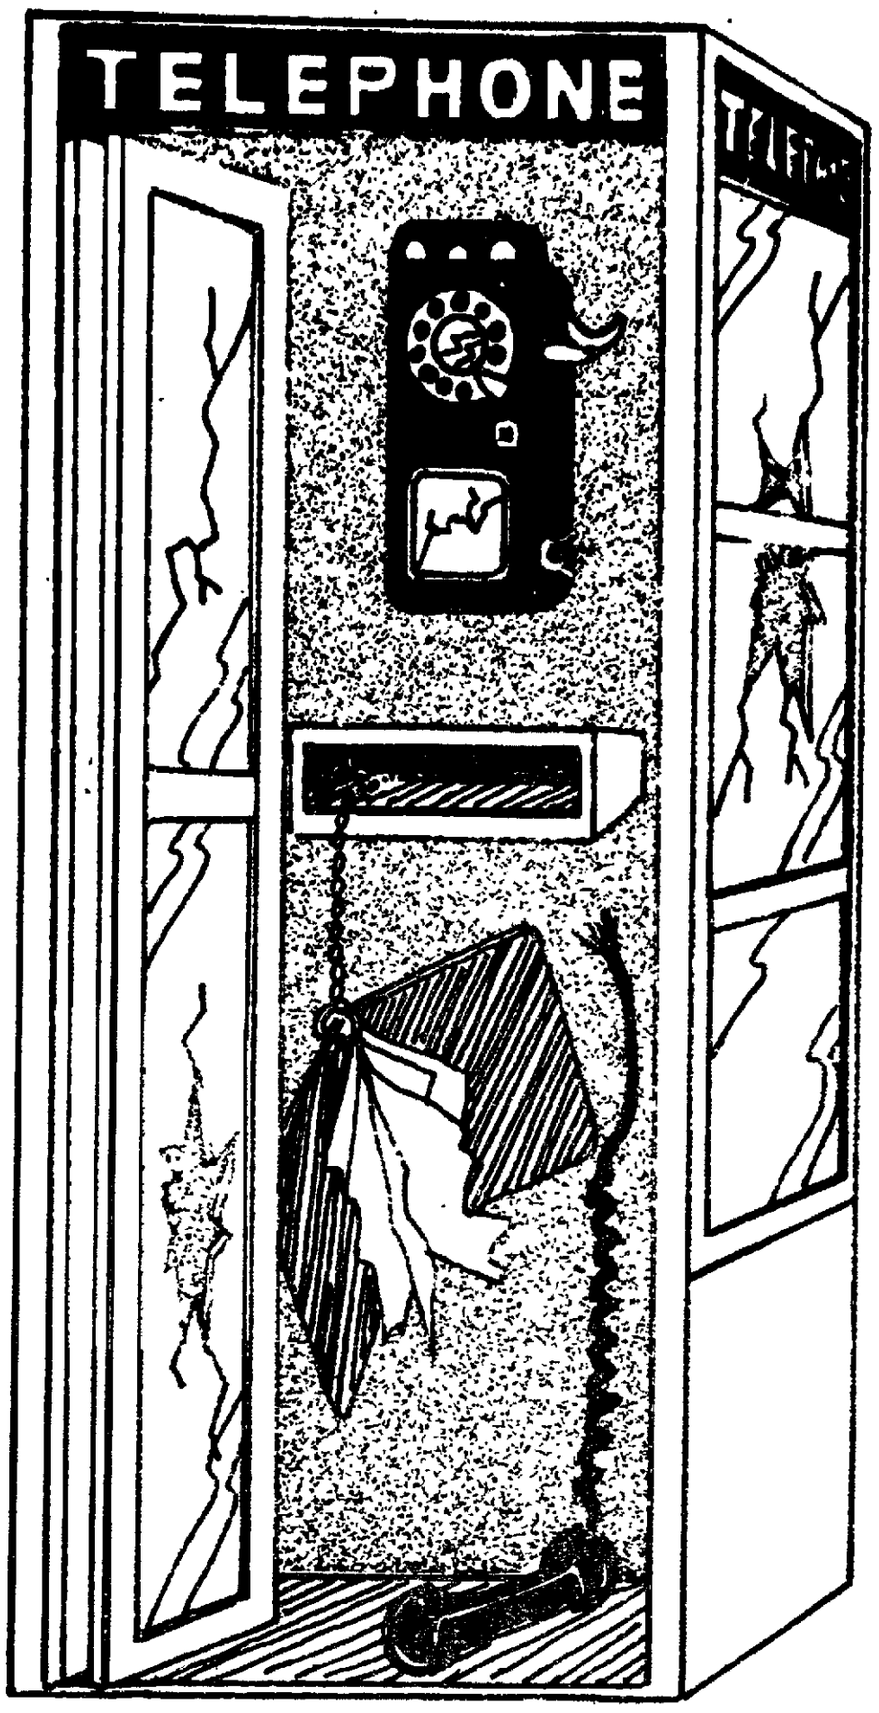

Brad Bower, Chappell — Fifteen-year-old sophomore had 10 unassisted tackles and six assists at linebacker as team pressed eight-man's top-ranked Wheatland before losing, 14-6. In last week's win over Big Springs, he had 14 unassisted tackles, eight assists, intercepted a pass for a touchdown and recovered a blocked punt for another.

Mark Sholtz, Guide Rock — In two games, he has rushed for 215 yards on 34 carries as team defeated Chester-Hubbell and lost to Trumbull.

Kevin Gonnerman, Gresham — Senior quarterback threw touchdown passes of 55 and 33 yards, returned a punt 75 yards for a touchdown, ran 47 yards for another TD and finished with 255 yards total offense in win over Marquette.

Brad Gottula, Table Rock — Senior quarterback scored seven touchdowns on runs of 10, 21, 20, 1, 27 and 70 yards and a 75-yard kickoff return in lopsided win over Filley. He also ran for two conversions, passed for another and made 16 tackles at linebacker.

Joe Theiler, Paxton — Scored four touchdowns on runs of 1, 8, 19 and 30 yards and caught winning two-point conversion pass as team upset Maxwell, 40-38. Senior co-captain and linebacker also had 10 tackles.

Telephone Booth Hard To Protect

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Have you ever punched a payphone?

Think before you hastily say "no."

Remember the night you were expected home on time for a romantic candlelight dinner, but your car broke down and the nearest payphone gobbled your last dime? Perhaps it was a swift kick . . .

While such retribution may at the time seem warranted to the wronged caller, getting even is against the law.

But that doesn't seem to bother hundreds of willful defacers of phone company property who do thousands of dollars of damage each year.

Without the help of vandals or vengeful callers, pay telephones are more apt than residential phones to break down. Complicated pieces of equipment, they have more things in them to go wrong, like the coin collecting device.

The Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. reports that 62% of its pay station trouble is caused by bent coins which clog up the collection device. One jammed coin bollixes up the whole works.

The other 38% of trouble in descending order of frequency is caused by electrical relays within phone itself, central office switching equipment, wires at the pay station location and vandalism.

While phone equipment engineers have done their best to reduce the temptation to tamper with the talking machines, there's no way to design a phone so it's 100% vandal-proof, says Jim Vanderslice of LT&T.

Cords Armored

Shortened armored steel cords have replaced the plastic wires that once held the receiver to the body of the phone But those with a will and a handy pair of wire-cutters still find a way to sever the connection.

Similarly, coin collection devices have been modified to prevent tissue-stuffing, and each is fitted with a slug rejector.

In spite of all the precautions, willful damage to pay phones within LT&T's territory occurs approximately two to three times a week. That adds up to between 100-200 instances a year requiring $8,000-10,000 in repair costs.

As many occurrences of glassbreaking in booths are reported, but repair costs are only half as expensive — around $4,000.

Missing phone books, however, are the most costly form of vandalism. With 2,387 pay phones in its territory, LT&T finds it must replace 7,000-8,000 directories a year, at a cost of $12,000 for the directories alone.

The use of hard cover binders to protect the directories doesn't deter the determined Some 1,000 of these are literally ripped off each year, with a replacement cost of $2,000.

Instead of taking things, some vandals leave them — in the form of obscenities scrawled on the walls or scratched into the metal fixtures.

Vandalism could be greater if locations were not carefully selected, suggested Vanderslice. Placed in high volume traffic areas and lighted at night, the booths remain in plain sight of passers-by.

Only One Robbery

In fact, in the past year Vanderslice is aware of only one robbery attempt at a pay phone station, and that was at a unit located within a business.

"The security of the money in a pay phone is one of the most important features," Vanderslice said

There does come a point, however, when maintaining a pay phone costs more than it's worth. That happened in two Lincoln junior high schools last year and both units were removed.

Vandalism and costly repairs aside, a caller can really get his ire up when the phone booth he stops in doesn't work, for whatever reason. He's as much miffed by the inconvenience as he is by the loss of his dime

Vanderslice says his company relies "on the general public to let us know when a pay telephone is not working " And he emphasizes that a frustrated caller can get his money back just for the asking.

In defense of the often untidy outdoor booths, Vanderslice said maintenance men make housecleaning stops as frequently as once a week And coin collectors on their rounds make test calls to see if the unit is operating properly During August, 28 inoperable phones were discovered by such test calls.

Some forms of vandalism are not so easily discovered, Vanderslice noted Those fall in the sensitive area of electronic devices to defraud the telephone industry

While "blue boxes" have been used to bypass billing equipment in many areas of the country, Vanderslice says LT&T has "not found any such devices in areas we serve." He goes on to say "if we were able to find one, we'd definitely prosecute "

Toll credit cards, another possible source of fraudulent billing, are more complicated than they appear "They have built-in checks," Vanderslice warned

Pesticides No Threat, If . . .

Pittsburgh (UPI) — A specialist in the field of industrial medicine says pesticides are not harmful to human health as long they are used properly

"If we didn't use pesticides, there simply would not be sufficient food on the table, and the pest population would quickly become a major health menace," said Dr Mitchell Zavon

A recent president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, Zavon said, "With all the safeguards our government takes to insure human safety, it is impossible for people to buy food at the store which would contain a harmful amount of pesticides

"By means of a great invention called a gas chromatograph we now have the ability to measure chemical residues in parts per trillion This means a millionth part of a foot in the distance from New York to Washington, D C — an astounding fact beyond the comprehension of most people

' In order to pass standards set by the Food and Drug Administration, Zavon said, "any pesticide residues found on any fresh produce must register at 100 times blow the "no effect" level on people for that particular pesticide Otherwise the entire shipment of fruit or vegetables is destroyed.

"Pesticides may be harmful if misused However, they are a necessity in our world today and certainly much more of an asset to our civilization than a possible hazard to man's health ' he said

W-Club Meet Set Thursday

By United Press International

The 15th annual W-Club Invitational Cross Country Meet Thursday afternoon will include eight teams in addition to host Nebraska Wesleyan.

The meet, which will start at 4 p.m. at Pioneers Park, will have entrants from Wayne, Tarkio, Fairbury, Platte College, Hastings, Midland, Doane and Nebraska-Omaha (UNO).

UNO sophomore Neal Hermsmeyer and Dean Schlegel and Tim Edwards from Doane will probably be the favorite individual runners, Greeno said.

He added he welcomes the four-mile distance, rather than five miles, this early in the season.

New York Termed World's Greatest Tourist Attraction

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City may be budget-battered and fiscally failing, but tourist officials can find no worm in the town they like to call the "Big Apple."

"We're the greatest in the world as a tourist attraction; absolutely dominant; no other place can touch us," said Charles Gillett, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

In 1974, he said, more than 16 million people spent $1.25 billion here — a world record.

Gillett said New York had 100,000 hotel rooms, "more than London and Paris put together," and was the world's banking, theatrical, fashion, communications, art and music capital. He showed a recent Gallup poll which said most Americans considered New York "top city" with the "best food" and "best-looking women."

Of the $1.25 billion traceable to tourist spending, $406.3 million was spent at conventions, he said.

"Now that the Democrats are bringing their national convention here in 1976, we figure that will add about $20 million to $25 million to convention spending," he said.

Gillett said the recession and devaluation of the dollar were, paraxodically, helping the city's tourist trade.

"Americans have postponed or put off foreign trips and, on the other side, foreigners are pouring in here," he said. "Look what they get for their money."

"We get $1 for only five krone," said Sverre Kjeller-Morderer, an international lawyer from Norway here on a combined business and pleasure trip. "It used to take eight to buy a dollar, so prices are much lower for us now."

His wife, Torunn, a magazine editor, said: "I can't stay out of the shops. Everything is so much cheaper than in Oslo."

Preston Robert Tisch, chairman of the bureau and head of the Loew's Hotel chain, commented. "By any standard we're a cheap city."

Loew's owns the Churchill in London and a new hotel in Monte Carlo and Tisch says: "When I see the prices in the stores there, I can hardly wait to get home."

There are plenty of tourist attractions — from Madison Square Garden to Greenwich Village to the Fifth Avenue shops.

Many a visitor on his first Circle Line boat tour around the isle of Manhattan must get the impression that the Rockefeller family built New York singlehandedly. There's Rockefeller Center, Rockefeller University, The Michael Rockefeller Wing of the Metropolitan, Lincoln Center (whose honorary chairman is John D. Rockefeller III) and the Museum of Modern Art (founded by the Rockefellers).

But other rich families have helped make New York what most experts consider the art capital of the world. To name a few there are the Frick, Whitney and Guggenheim museums, the Morgan and Astor libraries and the great collection amassed by banker Robert Lehman now housed in a special wing at the Met.

The Metropolitan Museum, by itself, has proved to be the single top tourist attraction in New York with a new attendance record of about five million expected in 1975.

The city is also considered by many as the dance capital of the world and during the spring hundreds of thousands jammed programs by the New York City Ballet, the American Ballet Theatre, the Bolshoi Ballet, the National Ballet of Canada, Martha Graham, the Stuttgart Ballet, U.S. Terpsichore and literally dozens of other companies.

"It is where every dancer has to be," said Mikhail Baryshnikov, who defected from Leningrad's Kirov to dance with the American Ballet Theatre.

High on the list of tourist attractions, the bureau said, is United Nations Headquarters which is visited by millions every year and also draws thousands of free-spending diplomats from all over the world

Other major attractions are the Statue of Liberty and the Staten Island Ferry.

My son got a ticket for not having a bicycle license right in front of our home. The only place he can get one is at a fire station and there isn't one close enough for him to ride to. Since our car is too small to carry the bike in, what can we do?

—Concerned, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A recent recommendation from the mayor's bicycle committee may solve your's and other people's dilemma. The mayor has approved the suggestion that bicycle dealers be allowed to inspect and license bikes. Lincoln police have sent a letter outling the procedures to dealers in the city requesting them to provide this service So far there has been no response from the dealers, but police intend to follow up the letter with personal contact and hope this will elicit some response. Apparently your son isn't alone in having an unlicensed bike, because police say fewer than 10,000 of the estimated 29,950 bicycles in Lincoln are registered.

In August you printed a letter about sending self-addressed envelopes overseas. Your answer was less than complete since you failed to mention the possible use of international reply coupons that can be used to obtain postage in other countries.

—E.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The post office in Lincoln confirms the reply coupons are available at all post offices in the city. Information on the price and how many would be needed for replies from different countries can be obtained from the postal service

I have done quite a bit of research but I have been unable to find a complete list of the AP and UPI post-season top 20 football and basketball teams. Can ACTION LINE lend a hand?

—John Beltz, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The post-season national champions are listed in the World Almanac, however for a complete list you will have to write to the wire services national headquarters. Write to UPI, 220 East 42nd St., N.Y , N.Y 10017, and to AP, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, N Y , N Y. 10020. AP started its top 20 listings in 1936 and UPI began rating the teams in 1950.

ACTION LINE UPDATE: Oops There seems to be a lot of confusion concerning what Lincoln city ordinances allow motorists to do when confronted with switching trains State law prohibits vehicles from going around railroad crossarms. Police Inspector Dean Leitner said his office discovered this when an angry motorist contacted him after missing the question on his driver's license test The practice is also prohibited by city ordinance, and Leitner said the memo to police that the city council had revoked the ordinance was incorrect He says city ordinance still prohibits motorists from going around crossarms at railroad crossings. So despite what has previously appeared in ACTION LINE, if you're confronted with a question about railroad crossarms on a driving test, use an answer that says you must stop and wait until the train has gone by and the crossarms are raised before proceeding

My son lost a light jacket during the Nebraska State Fair. What is the proper procedure for locating lost items at the fair?

—B F., Lincoln

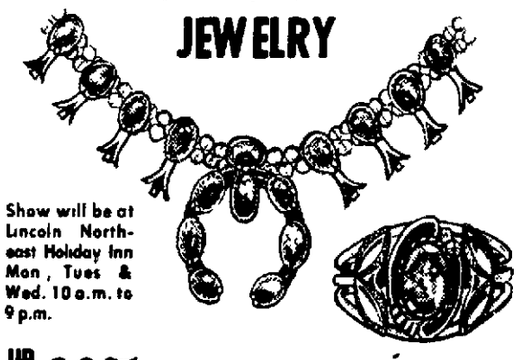

ACTION LINE: The proper place to obtain information is to write State Fair Manager Henry Brandt, P.O. Box 81223, Lincoln 68501.

Orange Bowl Lists Teams

By Associated Press

The 13-man Orange Bowl selection committee has listed two Big Ten teams and two Pacific 8 Conference teams in its first weekly list of possible foes for the Big Eight champion on New Year's night.

The committee, voting Monday, included Ohio State and Michigan of the Big Ten and Southern California and UCLA from the Pacific 8 on its 13-team list.

The Big 10 and Pac-8 will be able to send their top four teams to bowl games for the first time.

Other contenders listed were Tennessee, Florida, Kentucky and Mississippi State of the Southeastern Conference, Texas and Texas A&M of the Southwest Conference and independents Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh.

The committee designated the Penn State-Ohio State clash this weekend as its game of the week.

OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer rested a little easier about the Sooners' injury situation.

Offensive guard Terry Webb is the only Sooner starter who still appears questionable for the Sooners' non-conference game Saturday with Pittsburgh.

Quarterback Steve Davis practiced at three-quarter speed although he sustained a deep charley horse in his leg early in the game with Oregon Saturday.

Altus sophomore Jay Holman moved into the strong guard spot vacated by Webb and freshman Gregg Roberts backed up Holman. Calvin Harris moved to third team fullback and shed his red shirt status due to the loss of freshman George Cumby Saturday.

And split receiver Lee Hover returned to drills after recovering from a shoulder injury.

IOWA STATE

Sophomore Buddy Hardeman apparently has regained the starting Iowa State quarterback job which he had relinquished when injured in the second game of the 1974 season.

Coach Earle Bruce said both Hardeman and last week's starter Tom Mason will play Saturday when the Cyclones stage their home opener against Air Force.

More Sports, Pages 42, 43

Bruce said he would know after the Air Force game if he would be able to redshirt senior quarterback Wayne Stanley.

Three freshmen were working with the varsity during Tuesday's two hour drill.

Bruce moved up Ray Hardee, flanker from Mulberry, Fla., because of a sprained ankle suffered last weekend by reserve Tom Miller.

Randy Koch of Charter Oak worked at the No. 2 middle guard position due to a slight injury to Ray Amos. And highly-touted running back Dexter Green, Woodbridge, Va., also ran with the varsity.

KANSAS STATE

Linebacker Carl Pennington isn't among the "Top 'Cats" in the Kansas State football brochure.

He may be next season.

The Wildcats have played only one game, beating Tulsa 17-16, and already Pennington has been named Big Eight Conference defensive player of the week for his performance against the Hurricane Saturday night.

Pennington made 15 tackles, six of them unassisted, and intercepted a Tulsa pass on the K-State 42-yard line with 58 seconds remaining, preserving the victory.

Larry Crawford, who was running neck-and-neck with Joe Hatcher for the Kansas State quarterbacking job, has quit the team after sitting on the bench Saturday.

Crawford, a junior from Pryor, Okla., said last week that he expected most of his family and his wife's family to attend the game at Tulsa.

And coach Ellis Rainsberger promised Crawford would see a lot of action in the game.

Rainsberger said he was sorry to lose Crawford but promptly moved Tom Merrifield into the No. 2 quarterback slot behind Hatcher.

Crawford transferred to Kansas State last year after quitting the Southern Methodist football team.

KANSAS

Two major position changes and one promotion were announced by Kansas Coach Bud Moore following Tuesday's practice.

Eric Franklin, who ran back three kickoff's for 107 yards in his first game as a Jayhawk last Saturday, was moved from defensive back to halfback.

Freshman James Jackson was moved to linebacker from tight end at his request.

Moore said any freshman is allowed to play at the position where he feels he has the best chance of making the team.

Junior linebacker Rick Kovatch was promoted to the first team ahead of senior Jeff Turner. Moore said the move did not mean that Turner would play.

Running backs Laverne Smith and Bill Campfield were absent from practice again Tuesday due to injuries sustained in Saturday's opener with Washington State.

Moore said if they were not able to practice on Wednesday, they would not play in Saturday's game at Kentucky.

Oklahoma State

Center Gary Chlouber returned to Oklahoma State's workout for the first time in nearly a week as the Cowboys drilled two hours in preparation for Saturday's battle with Arkansas.

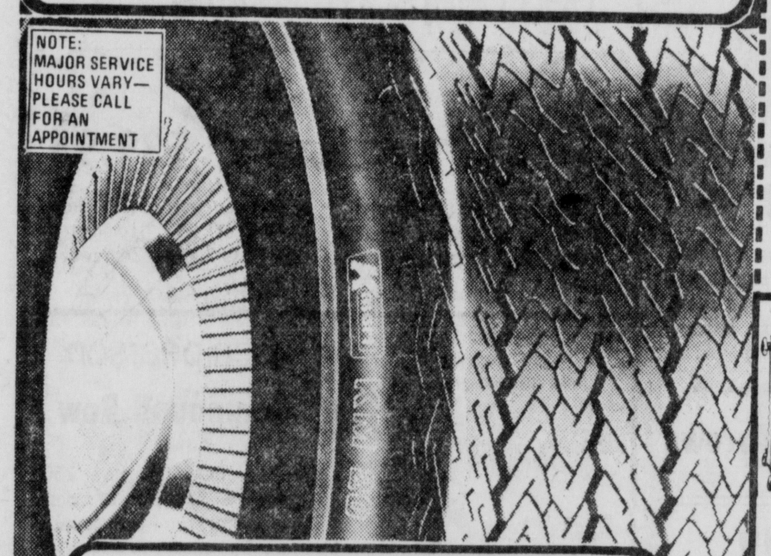

Chlouber, who injured a knee in practice last week and missed his first starting assignment in 24 games, had a splint removed from the knee earlier in the day.

Classification Changes Boost Three Teams To Top Spot

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Fremont Bergan, Scribner and Lawrence are No. 1-rated high school football teams today. Twenty-four hours earlier, they wouldn't have had that honor.

The three smaller school football powers profit in accordance with classification changes announced Tuesday by the Nebraska School Activities Assn. (NSAA).

Bergan moved down from Class B and now leads the Sunday Journal and Star's Class C-1 ratings. Scribner, a Class C-1 school last year, slides to Class C-2 and tops that division's ratings.

Lawrence also takes a step down from Class C to Class D, according to boy enrolment figures, and becomes a No. 1 team, ahead of fellow Pioneer Conference school Shickley.

In the larger school ranks, four schools traded places classification-wise. Omaha Tech and Alliance advanced to Class A status, replacing York and Omaha Ryan, both of which are now Class B.

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports
Wednesday, Sept 17, 1975 39

Omaha Holy Name, Centennial and Atkinson West Holt joins Fremont Bergan in dropping from Class B to Class C. Moving up a class to replace those four are Loup City, Wymore Southern, North Bend and Raymond Central.

Ten Change Status

Changes were greater in the Class C and D ranks. Ten school advances from Class D to C — Ponca, Medicine Valley, Spencer, Clay Center, Malcolm, Orchard, Lindsay Holy Family, Clarks, Shelby and Springview.

Accordingly, 10 schools move down from Class C to D — Oxford, Palmer, Elm Creek, Benkelman, Johnson-Brock, Lawrence, Coleridge, Hayes Center, North Loup-Scotia and Wilcox.

The NSSA office also released the schools which are optioning out of football playoff consideration. Class B West Point Central Catholic and Class C Ravenna are the biggest schools declining participation.

Others include Beemer, Nebraska Christian, Halsey-Dunning,, Oconto, Marquette, Petersburg, Prague and Venango.

Omaha Tech made the most dramatic enrolment jump among NSAA schools after its first year of Class B competition. Tech's boy enrolment increased by 130 from 263 to 393.

Bellevue Largest

Bellevue is the state's biggest school in terms of boy enrolment with 1,673.

Schools with more than 1,000 boys include Omaha Westside (1,575), Omaha South (1,453), Omaha Central (1,375), Omaha Burke (1,348), Lincoln High (1,136), Lincoln Northeast (1,128), Lincoln Southeast (1,106), Omaha Northwest (1,059), Grand Island (1,022), Millard (1,013), Lincoln East (1,005) and Omaha Benson (1,000).

Other Class A boy enrolments are Fremont (944), Creighton Prep (896), North Platte (895), Omaha North (891), Omaha Bryan (792), Papillion (788), Norfolk (710) Ralston (699), Hastings (682), Columbus (576), Scottsbluff (573), Kearney (535), Omaha Gross (520), Beatrice (504), Omaha Roncalli (461), South Sioux City (443), Tech (393), McCook (377) and Alliance (345).

York is the largest Class B school with 341 boys, followed by Plattsmouth (325), Blair (324), Lincoln Pius X (320), Gering (319), Sidney (308), Nebraska City (303), Ogallala (301), Fairbury (284) and Seward (281).

Creighton and Wahoo Neumann each had 137 boy enrolment with Craighton staying in Class B and Neumann remaining in Class C because of averages compiled over the last three years.

Axtell, Doniphan and Walthill are the smallest Class C schools with 61 boys each. Exeter and Palmer have the same number of boys in leading the Class D ranks.

Football Districts Set

The NSAA also announced district alignments for this fall's first venture in football playoffs. Based on the highest point averages, one representative from each district will qualify for the state semifinals Nov. 7.

The state's most powerful district could be Class A-2 in which four top 10 rated teams will compete for a playoff berth. The Nos. 1 and 2 Class B teams, Lincoln Pius X and York, also are locked in the same district.

Bucs, Stennett Snap Marks In 22-0 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — "You've got to be a good hitter to get seven hits in one game, but you've got to be lucky, too," said Pittsburgh second baseman Rennie Stennett, who collected four singles, two doubles and a triple in setting a modern major league record Tuesday during a 22-0 rout of the Chicago Cubs.

Rennie Stennett

Stennett also tied a major league record when he became only the fourth player in history to twice collect two hits in one inning in one game.

Stennett and the Pirates were involved in other records in bombarding the Cubs. It was the widest shutout margin in major league history and the highest run total in the majors this year.

Stennett, 24, laughed in reply to one dressing room question: "Man, of course, it's the first time I ever got seven hits in a game." The slender native of Panama said he had five hits in a game in the minor leagues but four hits in a single game was his best since joining the Pirates.

Stennett's record hit, tying the all-time major league mark set in 1892 by Wilbert Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, was a sinking liner to right field that skipped away.

Only three players in history equaled Stennett's feat of twice getting two hits in a single inning—Max Carey of Pittsburgh in 1925, and two American Leaguers, John Hodapp of Cleveland in 1928 and Sherman Lollar of Chicago in 1955.

The Pirates collected 24 hits, and every player in the starting lineup had at least one hit and scored at least one run. Their 22 runs was the highest in the majors this season and the most in the National League since Sept. 2, 1957 when the Milwaukee Braves routed the Cubs 23-10.

The Pirates' 22-0 triumph surpassed the record of 21-0 set in 1901 by Detroit against Cleveland and matched in 1939 by the New York Yankees against the Philadelphia Athletics.

Texas, 12th a week ago, moved up to eighth by trouncing Colorado State 46-0 while Tennessee jumped to 10th from 20th with a 26-8 triumph over Maryland, which had been 14th.

Oklahoma held onto the top spot with a 62-7 rout of Oregon.

Six Huskers Back To Drill For Indiana Game

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The return of four ineligible players and two who had been on the injury list brought some comfort to Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne at Tuesday's practice in preparation for the Indiana game Saturday in Memorial Stadium.

"We have six or seven more players than we had a week ago," Osborne said. "And that's somewhat comforting."

Center Rik Bonness and tackle Stan Waldemore, both out of the opener against Louisiana State, participated in the drill with the former ineligibles safetyman Jim Burrow, defensive end Ray Phillips, quarterback Vince Ferragamo and defensive tackle Dean Gissler.

"Bonness did a good job and seems to be all right," Osborne said. "I think he will play."

Boost To NU

That would be a boost to the Huskers because last week's fill-in for Bonness, Tom Davis, is wearing a neck harness to protect a pinched nerve. Davis practiced, but his status for Saturday remains in doubt. Other centers available include senior Tom Thomas and freshman Keith Bishop.

A decision on whether Waldemore dresses to face the Hoosiers will be made Wednesday. Although his knee seems to be healed, he has missed a lot of work. Besides that, he has been switched from guard to tackle behind Steve Hoins.

"The question is whether he has learned the new assignments at the new position," Osborne said. If he doesn't suit up, the No. 2 right tackle will become sophomore Tom Ohrt, a player the Husker coaching staff would like to redshirt provided there are no more injuries on the offensive line.

Bob Hayes, a sophomore, is the swing man who will backup both Hoins and left tackle Bob Lingenfelter.

Osborne said Burrow has reclaimed his starting safety job and that Phillips will start at left end. Bob Martin, who filled Phillips spot last week, will go back to right end with Dave Redding serving as the No. 2 man there. "Martin could go to the left side to play if we need him there," Osborne said.

Wait And See

"Ferragamo should be ready to play and hopefully he will play some," Osborne said. "We'll have to see how the game goes."

Gissler, the fourth returnee after sitting out the opener because of the NCAA suspension, also is ready for action behind Mike Fultz at defensive right tackle.

Osborne plans no changes on most of the kicking units, but said a reevaluation will be made on all special teams Wednesday. "We might make some changes on the kickoff teams," he said.

The situation at I-back remained a day-to-day proposition, but Osborne said the top three (John O'Leary, Monte Anthony and Dave Gillespie) are close. Gillespie, however worked in sweat clothes Tuesday as a result of a hip pointer. That's a painful bruise in the hip region that sometimes is slow to heal.

Osborne said the squad worked hard Tuesday and showed pretty good concentration. He described it as "a nice day to practice." It was overcast and temperatures were around 70 degrees.

Tougher Test

Looking ahead to Indiana, the Husker coach said the NU defense will receive a sterner test from the Hooisers than from LSU.

"Indiana has a good quarterback and running backs and from looking at films it looks like their offensive linemen are experienced and good people," Osborne said. "We couldn't evaluate LSU because they had a mostly new offensive line."

Even though the defense played well last week, Osborne said, "I don't think they're not at all complacent and I hope they don't think they've got it made because they weren't tested like they're going to be by Indiana."

Voters OK Sunday Racing

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Sunday horse racing, which propelled Hollywood Park and Santa Anita race tracks into record-setting attendance and mutuel handles, will soon become a reality in Nebraska.

That was assured when voters in Dakota County Tuesday approved the issue in a special election. The total vote was about 57% for and 43% against.

Overall, 1,406 votes were cast from 6,500 registered voters. The vote for was 807 and 599 against.

The issue passed easily in South Sioux City, near where Atokad Park is located — 428-235. Outside South Sioux City, it barely passed 365-361.

Atokad general manager Harold Smock said he is hoping to race six Sundays this year, dropping scheduled racing on all Tuesdays and the one Monday (Oct. 27).

"My board of directors is meeting Wednesday night and then we meet on Thursday with the State Racing Commission (in Omaha) on Thursday morning," he said, "so it's really not official yet. But we are going to request, at least as of right now, six Sundays."

Although Smock said he has not contacted the Los Angeles tracks who started the trend which is gaining national attention, he said he is certain the change in dates will help Atokad.

"On Tuesdays, we generally averaged about $150,000 (in mutuel handle). We're hoping to average $300,000 on Saturdays and Sundays," he said. "If we have any kind of luck at all, we can double our Tuesday handle on Sunday."

Smock said Atokad would hold nine races on Sundays with the usual daily double and three exactas.

Despite the poor voter turnout, Smock said he felt many potential "yes" votes were lost when proponents of the measure thought it would pass easily.

"It's only my personal opinion, but I thought a lot of people didn't vote because they couldn't see how it could lose," he said. "I went to the city council meeting tonight and one person told me if it loses by one vote, I'm the one to blame since I didn't vote.

"I think that the South Sioux City Star helped us a lot, too," he added.

The Tuesday vote culminated a lengthy effort by Atokad Park to gain Sunday racing. Neighboring horse track Park Jefferson (in Jefferson, S.D.) and dog track Sodrac Park (in North Sioux City) have had Sunday racing for years.

State Sen. John Murphy tried unsuccessfully to introduce a bill allowing a vote on Sunday racing last year. During this session of the Unicameral, Murphy introduced LB342 which was read Jan. 22.

Bill Passes

The Unicameral passed that bill allowing Sunday racing in Nebraska counties of 20,000 or less population provided the voters approve it in a referendum.

Atokad Park is the only Nebraska track in a county with 20,000 or less population.

Smock also noted that Sodrac closes before Atokad opens — the first time in the seven years he's been at Atokad that the Nebraska track would not compete with the night dog races.

"With the dogs finished and Sunday racing, I can't help but think we'll have the best year ever," he noted.

Atokad is scheduled to open Sept. 24 and close Nov. 1, depending on the new dates the Commission grants at its Omaha meeting.

Pius X's Rohren Earns Player Of Week Honor

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If York misses the Class B football playoffs this fall because of last week's 28-26 loss to Lincoln Pius X, chances are the Dukes will remember the name Steve Rohren for many years.

Rohren, a 6-1, 170-pound wingback for the top-rated Thunderbolts, scored 20 of his team's 28 points on an impressive combination of running and pass receiving.

The Pius X senior earns the Sunday Journal and Star's second prep Player of the Week award for his contributions to the important win.

With 19 seconds remaining before halftime, Rohren caught a 10-yard scoring pass to pull Pius even at 14-14.

Steve Rohren

With his team trailing 26-14, he ran for a 20-yard touchdown and caught a two-point conversion pass to slice the margin to 26-22 with 8:52 remaining.

With 5:28 left, Rohren applied the finishing touches on a three-yard scoring run. Although he ranks as one of the state's premier pass receivers, he finished with 110 yards rushing, including 75 on five fourth-quarter carries.

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Kevin Kuhnigk, Papillion — Monarch tri-captain has been credited with five quarterback "sacks" at middle linebacker in wins over Columbus and Lincoln High and has been equally impressive blocking at offensive guard.

Ron Abel, Scottsbluff — Recovered a fumble for a touchdown as the Bearcats upset Wyoming's No. 1-ranked prep team, Cheyenne East, 16-13.

Bob Billinger, Omaha Westside — Rushed for 150 yards on 25 carries as Warriors defeated Omaha North, 35-7.

Matt Farrens, Lincoln Northeast — Split end caught a 27-yard touchdown pass and threw a 48-yard scoring pass in Rockets' 20-0 win over Fremont.

Dave McWilliams, Omaha Bryan — Senior quarterback's slick execution of the option play (55 yards on 8 carries) was the key in Bears' 14-13 upset of defending Metro champion Omaha Burke.

Rod Wismer, Waverly — Senior linebacker was credited with five unassisted tackles and 10 assists in Vikings' 6-0 win over Gretna.

Lane Kinnan, Cozad — Junior halfback has rushed for 307 yards on 39 carries as Haymakers split against Ord and Aurora. He had 12 tackles, including seven solos, at linebacker in loss to Aurora.

Kirk Kellough, Friend — Senior halfback rushed for 146 yards on 23 carries and scored two touchdowns in team's 27-0 win over Wymore Southern. He also caught a two-point conversion pass, recovered a fumble, intercepted a pass and made six tackles at cornerback.

Rick Koenig, Tri-County — In less than a half against Pawnee City, senior quarterback hit 6 of 7 passes for 176 yards and four touchdowns. He scored the other TD in the 33-0 win himself and punted five times for a 40-yard average.

Greg Pierce, Clay Center — Senior halfback scored both touchdowns and rushed for 122 yards on 21 carries in a 16-0 win over Fairmont.

Jeff Fankhauser, Humboldt — Senior middle guard collected 14 tackles in team's win over Sterling.

Chip Kuck, Bertrand — After 16-tackle performance in loss to North Platte St. Pat's, 6-1, 200-pound senior was credited with 13 tackles (nine solos) in win over Oberlin, Kan.

Reg Meier, Loomis — Junior halfback rushed for 158 yards on 25 carries and scored 20 points in team's 27-8 win over Amherst.

Jeff Remmenga, Elwood — Senior fullback-middle linebacker ran for a touchdown and recovered a fumble for another in team's shutout of Wauneta.

Brad Bower, Chappell — Fifteen-year-old sophomore had 10 unassisted tackles and six assists at linebacker as team pressed eight-man's top-ranked Wheatland before losing, 14-6. In last week's win over Big Springs, he had 14 unassisted tackles, eight assists, intercepted a pass for a touchdown and recovered a blocked punt for another.

Mark Steitz, Guide Rock — In two games, he has rushed for 215 yards on 34 carries as team defeated Chester-Hubbell and lost to Trumbull.

Kevin Gonnerman, Gresham — Senior quarterback threw touchdown passes of 55 and 33 yards, returned a punt 75 yards for a touchdown, ran 47 yards for another TD and finished with 255 yards total offense in win over Marquette.

Brad Gettula, Table Rock — Senior quarterback scored seven touchdowns on runs of 10, 21, 20, 1, 27 and 70 yards and a 75-yard kickoff return in lopsided win over Filley. He also ran for two conversions, passed for another and made 16 tackles at linebacker.

Joe Theiler, Paxton — Scored four touchdowns on runs of 1, 8, 19 and 30 yards and caught winning two-point conversion pass as team upset Maxwell, 40-38. Senior co-captain and linebacker also had 10 tackles.

NFL On Back Page

You'll notice the story of the strike situation in the National Football League is on the back sports page of today's Lincoln Star. I feel like that's where it belongs.

I'm sick and tired of the whole thing. I have no sympathy for the players, and none for management. I, for one, can do without pro football forever.

I'd like to see a college football doubleheader every Sunday afternoon and a Monday night college game every week. It certainly would be more exciting than the dull show the pros have been putting on in recent years.

Maybe the three major television networks will think twice before entering into any more big contracts with the pros. Maybe they could be encouraged in that direction if football fans would begin a letter writing campaign urging that TV turn to more college games.

If the 1975 NFL season should be scrapped, I would urge Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney to get the ball rolling by suggesting to the NCAA that it strive to talk the television networks into filling the void by providing Sunday afternoon and Monday night college games.

Where would pro football be if the TV networks desert them? In my opinion, right where it belongs.

Husker Sales Up

Nebraska's "official" program sales took a jump of 2,000 at last Saturday's opener against LSU. Perhaps, people hadn't realized how important the money from the program was to the Husker athletic program.

The new 24-page insert of stories and pictures about college athletics will be in the Indiana program and in all subsequent programs this season.

Oops! It had to be an oversight, but did you notice that the program omitted the page of pictures of all the Nebraska football coaches? The only place Tom Osborne's picture appeared was in an advertisement for the "Tom Osborne Show."

There were a lot of observers who doubted the wisdom of making Nebraska a 16-point favorite over LSU, including Osborne. Some even doubted whether the Huskers could score 16 points against the veteran Tiger defense, which they didn't — although the opportunities were there.

Well, how do you like this line? Nebraska has been installed as a 24-point favorite over Indiana by Harrah's Reno Racebook.

While I'm not a betting man, I'd think that line is more reasonable than the figure on LSU. The Hoosiers might not be quick enough defensively to handle the likes of Tony Davis, Monte Anthony, John O'Leary and Curtis Craig.

Oklahoma By 29 Points

All of the other Big Eight teams except Kansas are listed as favorites to win on Saturday. The Jayhawks are 12-point underdogs against Kentucky in a game to be played in Lexington, Ky.

Surprisingly, Missouri is only an eight-point choice over Illinois. That could be right, but 14 points might make more sense. The Illini nudged Iowa last week 27-12.

Missouri will have had more than a week and a half to recover from its celebrating of the 20-7 victory over Alabama. That should be an edge.

Top-ranked Oklahoma is rated by 29 over Pittsburgh while Oklahoma State is a one-point choice over Arkansas and Iowa State is figured by 17 over Air Force in the dedication game of the Cyclones' new stadium.

The other Big Eight team, Kansas State, faces Wichita State at Manhattan, Kan., and there is no spread listed.

Some of the other interesting weekend games and the pointspread: Texas A & M, 7 over LSU; North Carolina, 1 over Maryland; USC, 27 over Oregon State; Michigan, 21 over Stanford; Ohio State, 17 over Penn State; Notre Dame, 14 over Purdue; Texas, 17 over Washington; and Alabama, 26 over Clemson.

State AIAW Sets Division

Seward — In a meeting Sunday of the Nebraska chapter of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), two divisions were created.

AIAW officials approved a proposal by the state colleges to form a small college division, open to schools with 3,000 or less students.

The new alignment leaves the University of Nebraska and the University of Nebraska-Omaha as the only schools in the large school division.

Both divisions will still be under the same Nebraska AIAW constitution, but each will establish its own by-laws, guidelines and policies.

Nebraska women's athletic director, Dr. Aleen Swofford, noted "this action will allow flexibility for both small and large schools to schedule according to their needs and level of competition."

Garroutte also said more than $350,000 was wagered during the meet with a handle of $52,000 on the last night of racing.

The races were held at the Custer County Fairgrounds track and more than 350 horses from 15 states raced during the 1975 meet.

Raiders Trim Smith As Cuts Continue

By The Associated Press

While the roster of National Football League teams joining the strike against management mounted Tuesday, the rosters of several of the league's 26 teams dwindled, and among the players cut was Bubba Smith by Oakland.

At the same time that the New York Jets and Washington Redskins were deciding to join the New England Patriots in the strike effort, such clubs as the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Steelers, Miami Dolphins, Chicago Bears, Cleveland Browns, Houston Oilers and Minnesota Vikings were busy reducing their squads to the required 43-man limit for Sunday's scheduled opening games.

The Cardinals perhaps pulled the biggest surprise, releasing offensive co-captain Ernie McMillan, a 15-year NFL veteran.

"It was the toughest decision we have to make since all of us came to St. Louis three years ago," said Joe Sullivan, the Cardinals' director of operations. "It was based on who we felt could help us the most right now. As far as all of us are concerned, Ernie is an AllPro, a leader and everyone respected him."

The 37-year-old McMillan, who lost his left tackle job during the preseason to Roger Finnie, had said during training camp that "the dream of any athlete is to play on a championship team. I wouldn't lke to look back after 15 years and say that I'd never done that."

If some other team doesn't pick him up, McMillan will have to live with that unfulfilled dream.

The Cards also cut defensive end Willie Holman, defensive tackle Greg Wojcik and running back Hubert Ginn, and acquired defensive lineman Charlie Davis from Pittsburgh for a future draft choice.

In addition to trading Davis, Pittsburgh surprisingly waived veteran running back Preston Pearson, the Steelers' third leading rusher last season despite missing five games, and rookie tight end Walter White from Maryland.

And Oakland cut Smith, the mammoth defensive tackle who said he was allowed to practice with the club Monday before he was told about it. "He said they tried to trade me, but it didn't work out," Smith said of Oakland coach John Madden.

Smith said he wouldn't have minded being cut early in the pre-season, but said it would be difficult to catch on with another team now. He said his salary was guaranteed for the 1975 season.

Miami dropped rookie wide receiver Morris Owens—leaving the Dolphins with only three wide receivers—and offensive tackle Tom Wickert. "We've asked our tight ends (Jim McFarland and Jim Mandich) to be responsible for wide receiving," said Miami Coach Don Shula in explaining the dropping of Owens.

Chicago claimed veteran linebacker John Babinecz on waivers from Houston and dropped linebacker Larry Ely. Houston also cut No. 3 quarterback James Foote and guard Solomon Freelon, and placed Al Johnson on injured waivers.

Cleveland obtained safety Jim Hill from Green Bay and cut cornerback Lonnie Hepburn and safety Charlie Miller.

Minnesota disposed of defensive backs Randy Poltl and Jackie Wallace and rookie wide receiver Dave Hazel of Ohio State.

Indiana Starters To Remain Same

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana University will start the same squads against sixth-ranked Nebraska Saturday as it did last week against Minnesota, football Coach Lee Corso said Tuesday.

The Hoosiers, trying to forget last year's 1-10 record were buoyed by their 20-14 win over the Gophers last week, and face the Cornhuskers in Bloomington.

Corso said offensive tackle Joe Doggett, defensive tackle Greg McGuire and safety Kevin Grump should be sufficiently recovered from minor injuries to see action.

"The keys to the game are defensive pressure, kicking and doing our own thing offensively," Corso said. "You can't beat a great tean by trickery."

W-Club Meet Set Thursday

By United Press International

The 15th annual W-Club Invitational Cross Country Meet Thursday afternoon will include eight teams in addition to host Nebraska Wesleyan.

The meet, which will start at 4 p.m. at Pioneers Park, will have entrants from Wayne, Tarkio, Fairbury, Platte College, Hastings, Midland, Doane and Nebraska-Omaha (UNO).

UNO sophomore Neal Hermsmeyer and Dean Schlegel and Tim Edwards from Doane will probably be the favorite individual runners, Greeno said.

He added he welcomes the four-mile distance, rather than five miles, this early in the season.

TENNIS

Second seeded Ilie Nastase had to come from behind to defeat Tray Walke of St. Louis, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, as the top four seeds moved into the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Princes Tennis Tournament. Jimmy Connors, Alex Metreveli and Vitas Gerulaitis also advanced with easy wins.

Swedish tennis star Bjorn Borg, practicing for this weekend's Davis Cup semifinals against Chile in Baastad, Sweden, is receiving the protection of a personal bodyguard, police said. More than 5,000 demonstrators have promised to stage massive protests during the matches, protesting the Chilean military junta.

OTHER SPORTS

Jets, Redskins Join Striking Patriots

National Football League teams, their scheduled season openers just five days away, started choosing sides Tuesday with two more teams joining the New England Patriots on strike.

Players from the New York Jets, annoyed at the growing "wishy-washy" attitude of some other clubs, and the Washington Redskins left their training camps Tuesday, hoping to touch off a chain reaction that would either produce a general strike or a settlement.

Generally, there was a great deal of confusion among the very players concerned about the current status of the situation, and even the head of the NFL Players' Association admitted there was no strong leadership.

"We want desperately to get this settled because the thing is getting out of hand and we're losing control," NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey said in Washington. "Essentially we have 26 locals, all taking action."

Joe Lavender, player representative of the Philadelphia Eagles, said the players were "in a helluva position" because the "information we have is not enough, one way or another." As a result, the Eagles were unable to take a stand.

"You could not make any drastic decisions on what we have now," Lavender said. "It's pretty damn confusing. We have to wait to get our information."

Among other teams, the Miami Dolphins and Minnesota Vikings voted against joining the strike and the Cincinnati Bengals, with no club meetings scheduled, declined to take a stand. The Chicago Bears decided to go along if the Players' Association declares a general strike and the New York Giants voted unanimously to support striking teams—but not to go out themselves for the time being.

Much of the current confusion was caused by counter offers earlier in the day from the head federal labor mediator working on the strike and the NFL Management Council. In fact, until the Management Council presented its six-point proposal, it appeared that a shaky truce could be affected.

During an all-night session that ended at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday morning, the federal mediator, William J. Usery, presented a compromise package that, among other things, would have reinstated the 1970 contract until Oct. 1 and would have retained a 46-player limit until the same date with three of the players to be on a taxi squad.

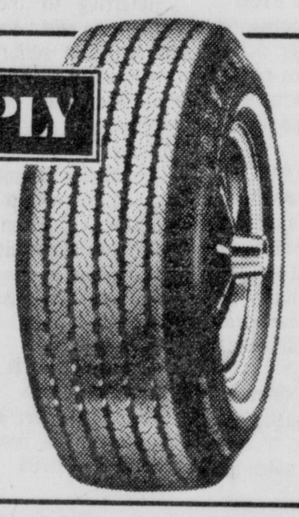

It also would have required a no-strike pledge from the players and a no-lockout promise from the owners; no recrimations against the Patriots or any other players; the immediate commencement of negotiations with the owners making package proposal by Sept. 25 and a player vote on or about Oct. 1 or 2.

Orange Bowl Lists Teams

By Associated Press

The 13-man Orange Bowl selection committee has listed two Big Ten teams and two Pacific 8 Conference teams in its first weekly list of possible foes for the Big Eight champion on New Year's night.

The committee, voting Monday, included Ohio State and Michigan of the Big Ten and Southern California and UCLA from the Pacific 8 on its 13-team list.

The Big 10 and Pac-8 will be able to send their top four teams to bowl games for the first time.

Other contenders listed were Tennessee, Florida, Kentucky and Mississippi State of the Southeastern Conference, Texas and Texas A&M of the Southwest Conference and independents Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh.

The committee designated the Penn State-Ohio State clash this weekend as its game of the week.

OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer rested a little easier about the Sooners' injury situation.

Offensive guard Terry Webb is the only Sooner starter who still appears questionable for the Sooners' non-conference game Saturday with Pittsburgh.

Quarterback Steve Davis practiced at three-quarter speed although he sustained a deep charley horse in his leg early in the game with Oregon Saturday.

Altus sophomore Jay Holman moved into the strong guard spot vacated by Webb and freshman Gregg Roberts backed up Holman. Calvin Harris moved to third team fullback and shed his red shirt status due to the loss of freshman George Cumby Saturday.

And split receiver Lee Hover returned to drills after recovering from a shoulder injury.

IOWA STATE

Sophomore Buddy Hardeman apparently has regained the starting Iowa State quarterback job which he had relinquished when injured in the second game of the 1974 season.

Coach Earle Bruce said both Hardeman and last week's starter Tom Mason will play Saturday when the Cyclones stage their home opener against Air Force.

More Sports, Pages 42, 43

Bruce said he would know after the Air Force game if he would be able to redshirt senior quarterback Wayne Stanley.

Three freshmen were working with the varsity during Tuesday's two hour drill.

Bruce moved up Ray Hardee, flanker from Mulberry, Fla., because of a sprained ankle suffered last weekend by reserve Tom Miller.

Randy Koch of Charter Oak worked at the No. 2 middle guard position due to a slight injury to Ray Amos. And highly-touted running back Dexter Green, Woodbridge, Va., also ran with the varsity.

KANSAS STATE

Linebacker Carl Pennington isn't among the "Top 'Cats" in the Kansas State football brochure.

He may be next season.

The Wildcats have played only one game, beating Tulsa 17-16, and already Pennington has been named Big Eight Conference defensive player of the week for his performance against the Hurricane Saturday night.

Pennington made 15 tackles, six of them unassisted, and intercepted a Tulsa pass on the K-State 42-yard line with 58 seconds remaining, preserving the victory.

Larry Crawford, who was running neck-and-neck with Joe Hatcher for the Kansas State quarterbacking job, has quit the team after sitting on the bench Saturday.

Crawford, a junior from Pryor, Okla., said last week that he expected most of his family and his wife's family to attend the game at Tulsa.

And coach Ellis Rainsberger promised Crawford would see a lot of action in the game.

Rainsberger said he was sorry to lose Crawford but promptly moved Tom Merrifield into the No. 2 quarterback slot behind Hatcher.

Crawford transferred to Kansas State last year after quitting the Southern Methodist football team.

KANSAS

Two major position changes and one promotion were announced by Kansas Coach Bud Moore following Tuesday's practice.

Eric Franklin, who ran back three kickoff's for 107 yards in his first game as a Jayhawk last Saturday, was moved from defensive back to halfback.

Freshman James Jackson was moved to linebacker from tight end at his request.

Moore said any freshman is allowed to play at the position where he feels he has the best chance of making the team.

Junior linebacker Rick Kovatch was promoted to the first team ahead of senior Jeff Turner. Moore said the move did not mean that Turner would play.

Running backs Laverne Smith and Bill Campfield were absent from practice again Tuesday due to injuries sustained in Saturday's opener with Washington State.

Moore said if they were not able to practice on Wednesday, they would not play in Saturday's game at Kentucky.

Oklahoma State

Center Gary Chlouber returned to Oklahoma State's workout for the first time in nearly a week as the Cowboys drilled two hours in preparation for Saturday's battle with Arkansas.

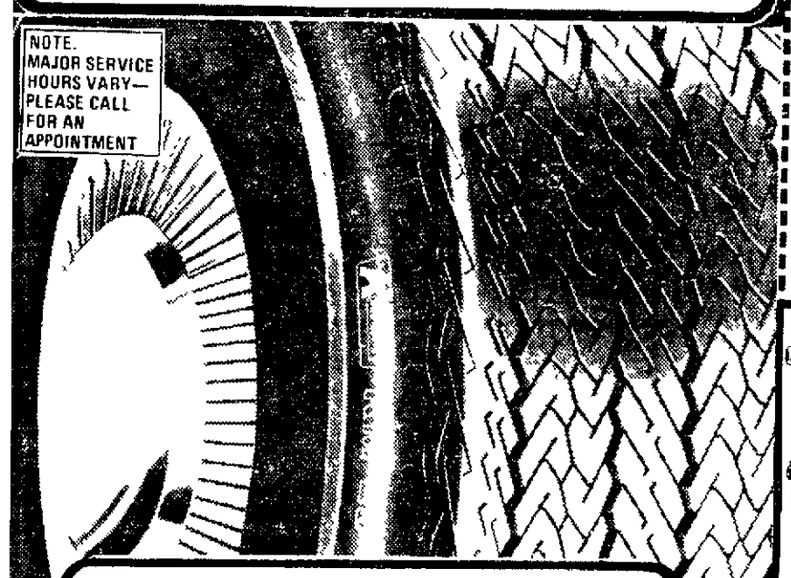

Chlouber, who injured a knee in practice last week and missed his first starting assignment in 24 games, had a splint removed from the knee earlier in the day.

Health Systems Agency In Works

Grand Island (UPI) — A task force of 32 persons from 72 outstate Nebraska counties is working on an application, prompted by a federal move to cut down on duplicated services and administration, to become a healthy systems agency.

Paul Guptill of Grand Island, executive director of the Central Nebraska Comprehensive Health Planning Council, said Tuesday the agency would be one of three in the state which will have review and approval authority over federal health money coming into the state.

Guptill also said the agency would replace the present area-wide health planning councils, of which there are four, as well as the regional medical programs.

Representatives of those two groups are forming the task force, Guptill said, as a result of a meeting held in Kearney Monday. Another meeting will be held in Kearney on Sept. 29 to elect task force officers.

Guptill said he thought the task force would be fully operative in three to six months.

Some of the questions the task force will be answering include recommendations on geographic boundaries; how governing board members should be appointed (population, geography or a combination); and should there be area subcouncils.

The primary purpose of the task force, Guptill said, is to get all health agencies involved in formation of a single health system agency instead of each existing agency filing its own request to become the health system agency for oustate Nebraska.

He said the group meeting in Kearney favored the idea of subcouncils.

State Wins Plaudits From HEW Officials

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Vietnamese resettlement effort is earning some high marks from regional officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Kansas City.

Ana Riojas, who will coordinate the resettlement effort in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, said Nebraska has been cautious but has sought to establish firm community support for the program before carrying through with resettlement.

"I would say what Nebraska is doing is very good. Each state is approaching this a little differently," she said in a telephone interview.

Referring to the four-state region, she said "one thing they are against is welfare. Nebraska specifically wants to make sure that when they resettle these people they are not going on welfare."

Wednesday members of the Lincoln Fellowship of Churches and Gov. J. J. Exon's office will hold a Lincoln seminar, partially coordinated by Exon and Lincoln City Councilman Bob Jeambey.

The governor is expected to address the workshop Wednesday afternoon, called to coordinate the resettlement of Nebraska's 708 Vietnamese refugees.

NU Veterinary Science Chairman Is Resigning

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus has announced he will step down as chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln veterinary science department on Jan. 1, or as soon after that as a replacement can be found.

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus

Twiehaus will remain on the staff as a veterinary science professor until his retirement at the end of June in 1976. He has been on the NU staff for 12 years.

A search committee to find a successor to Twiehaus will be set up, according to Dr. Howard O. Ttoson, NU acting vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources.

Twiehaus said he decided to make the announcement early because he feels a new chairman should have a hand in picking staff members to fill positions that have become vacant and positions created by the building of a new animal health research complex.

Supreme Court Disbars Guardianship Embezzler

By The Associated Press

Omaha attorney Joseph Savin, sentenced to prison recently in connection with an embezzlement charge to which he pleaded no contest, has been disbarred by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The high court's decision followed filing of a Nebraska State Bar Association complaint which requested disciplinary action against Savin.

A bar member since 1971, Savin has appealed a one to three year prison term imposed on him in August by Douglas County District Judge John T. Grant. The sentence followed Savin's no contest plea to a chrge that he embezzled some $16,000 from the funds of a legal guardianship.

The embezzlement charge alged Savin converted funds from the guardianship of Mrs. Barbara Jean Maddox, a Wisconsin woman, to his own use while acting as her lawyer in Omaha. The funds were for the woman's two children, coming from insurance policies on their father who died in a traffic accident.

Savin had filed an answer to the bar association complaint with the Supreme Court, waiving his right to a hearing before that body, and admitting he violated his oath as an attorney. He also conceded that he should be subjected to whatever disciplinary action the high court "deems appropriate and suitable."

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

NFL On Back Page

You'll notice the story of the strike situation in the National Football League is on the back sports page of today's Lincoln Star. I feel like that's where it belongs.

I'm sick and tired of the whole thing. I have no sympathy for the players, and none for management. I, for one, can do without pro football forever.

I'd like to see a college football doubleheader every Sunday afternoon and a Monday night college game every week. It certainly would be more exciting than the dull show the pros have been putting on in recent years.

Maybe the three major television networks will think twice before entering into any more big contracts with the pros. Maybe they could be encouraged in that direction if football fans would begin a letter writing campaign urging that TV turn to more college games.

If the 1975 NFL season should be scrapped, I would urge Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney to get the ball rolling by suggesting to the NCAA that it strive to talk the television networks into filling the void by providing Sunday afternoon and Monday night college games.

Where would pro football be if the TV networks desert them? In my opinion, right where it belongs.

Husker Sales Up

Nebraska's "official" program sales took a jump of 2,000 at last Saturday's opener against LSU. Perhaps, people hadn't realized how important the money from the program was to the Husker athletic program.

The new 24-page insert of stories and pictures about college athletics will be in the Indiana program and in all subsequent programs this season.

Oops! It had to be an oversight, but did you notice that the program omitted the page of pictures of all the Nebraska football coaches? The only place Tom Osborne's picture appeared was in an advertisement for the "Tom Osborne Show."

There were a lot of observers who doubted the wisdom of making Nebraska a 16-point favorite over LSU, including Osborne. Some even doubted whether the Huskers could score 16 points against the veteran Tiger defense, which they didn't — although the opportunities were there.

Well, how do you like this line? Nebraska has been installed as a 24-point favorite over Indiana by Harrah's Reno Racebook.

While I'm not a betting man, I'd think that line is more reasonable than the figure on LSU. The Hoosiers might not be quick enough defensively to handle the likes of Tony Davis, Monte Anthony, John O'Leary and Curtis Craig.

Oklahoma By 29 Points

All of the other Big Eight teams except Kansas are listed as favorites to win on Saturday. The Jayhawks are 12-point underdogs against Kentucky in a game to be played in Lexington, Ky.

Surprisingly, Missouri is only an eight-point choice over Illinois. That could be right, but 14 points might make more sense. The Illini nudged Iowa last week 27-12.

Missouri will have had more than a week and a half to recover from its celebrating of the 20-7 victory over Alabama. That should be an edge.

Top-ranked Oklahoma is rated by 29 over Pittsburgh while Oklahoma State is a one-point choice over Arkansas and Iowa State is figured by 17 over Air Force in the dedication game of the Cyclones' new stadium.

The other Big Eight team, Kansas State, faces Wichita State at Manhattan, Kan., and there is no spread listed.

Some of the other interesting weekend games and the pointspread: Texas A & M, 7 over LSU; North Carolina, 1 over Maryland; USC, 27 over Oregon State; Michigan, 21 over Stanford; Ohio State, 17 over Penn State; Notre Dame, 14 over Purdue; Texas, 17 over Washington; and Alabama, 26 over Clemson.

State AIAW Sets Division

Seward — In a meeting Sunday of the Nebraska chapter of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), two divisions were created.

AIAW officials approved a proposal by the state colleges to form a small college division, open to schools with 3,000 or less students.

The new alignment leaves the University of Nebraska and the University of Nebraska-Omaha as the only schools in the large school division.

Both divisions will still be under the same Nebraska AIAW constitution, but each will establish its own by-laws, guidelines and policies.

Nebraska women's athletic director, Dr. Aleen Swofford, noted "this action will allow flexibility for both small and large schools to schedule according to their needs and level of competition."

Broken Bow (AP) — More than 21,000 persons attended the 10-day quarter horse meet at Borken Bow, said assistant track manager Randy Garroutte.

Garroutte also said more than $350,000 was wagered during the meet with a handle of $52,000 on the last night of racing.

The races were held at the Custer County Fairgrounds track and more than 350 horses from 15 states raced during the 1975 meet.

Raiders Trim Smith As Cuts Continue

By The Associated Press

While the roster of National Football League teams joining the strike against management mounted Tuesday, the rosters of several of the league's 26 teams dwindled, and among the players cut was Bubba Smith by Oakland.

At the same time that the New York Jets and Washington Redskins were deciding to join the New England Patriots in the strike effort, such clubs as the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Steelers, Miami Dolphins, Chicago Bears, Cleveland Browns, Houston Oilers and Minnesota Vikings were busy reducing their squads to the required 43-man limit for Sunday's scheduled opening games.

The Cardinals perhaps pulled the biggest surprise, releasing offensive co-captain Ernie McMillan, a 15-year NFL veteran.

"It was the toughest decision we have to make since all of us came to St. Louis three years ago," said Joe Sullivan, the Cardinals' director of operations. "It was based on who we felt could help us the most right now. As far as all of us are concerned, Ernie is an AllPro, a leader and everyone respected him."

The 37-year-old McMillan, who lost his left tackle job during the preseason to Roger Finnie, had said during training camp that "the dream of any athlete is to play on a championship team. I wouldn't like to look back after 15 years and say that I'd never done that."

If some other team doesn't pick him up, McMillan will have to live with that unfulfilled dream.

The Cards also cut defensive end Willie Holman, defensive tackle Greg Wojcik and running back Hubert Ginn, and acquired defensive lineman Charlie Davis from Pittsburgh for a future draft choice.

In addition to trading Davis, Pittsburgh surprisingly waived veteran running back Preston Pearson, the Steelers' third leading rusher last season despite missing five games, and rookie tight end Walter White from Maryland.

And Oakland cut Smith, the mammoth defensive tackle who said he was allowed to practice with the club Monday before he was told about it. "He said they tried to trade me, but it didn't work out," Smith said of Oakland coach John Madden.

Smith said he wouldn't have minded being cut early in the pre-season, but said it would be difficult to catch on with another team now. He said his salary was guaranteed for the 1975 season.

Miami dropped rookie wide receiver Morris Owens—leaving the Dolphins with only three wide receivers—and offensive tackle Tom Wickert. "We've asked our tight ends (Jim McFarland and Jim Mandich) to be responsible for wide receiving," said Miami Coach Don Shula in explaining the dropping of Owens.

Chicago claimed veteran linebacker John Babinecz on waivers from Houston and dropped linebacker Larry Ely. Houston also cut No. 3 quarterback James Foote and guard Solomon Freelon, and placed Al Johnson on injured waivers.

Cleveland obtained safety Jim Hill from Green Bay and cut cornerback Lonnie Hepburn and safety Charlie Miller.

Minnesota disposed of defensive backs Randy Poltl and Jackie Wallace and rookie wide receiver Dave Hazel of Ohio State.

Joint N-Plant Fires Council

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Several city lawmakers contended again Tuesday that the Lincoln Electric System (LES) board has sidestepped the City Council in deciding to build a nuclear power plant.

LES board members argued they've done no such thing. Board members contended they've provided the council with information, haven't tried to be sneaky about proposing the matter and said they've done all the homework proving Lincoln should become co-owners of Ft. Calhoun No. 2.

Councilmen Bob Jeambey and Max Denney said LES hasn't convinced them and argued over breakfast that they need a lot more information before they can decide on a proposed bond ordinance on the council's agenda.

The ordinance would provide the financing necessary to help build the nuclear plant and a coal generating complex in Wyoming. Without the financing, LES couldn't participate in the plants.

At the heart of the controversy is the question over which agency — the LES Administrative Board or the City Council — is going to run the city-owned utility.

That underlying issue surfaced only briefly Tuesday.

Budgetary Control

Board Chairman Tom Allman pointed out that the council has budgetary and rate control over LES. However, LES is charged with running the system, which is exactly what LES has been doing, he said.

"We're not subservient to you in the operation of the system," Allman stated.

As a result, the board said it acted properly when it signed a contract with the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) to become a 13% owner in Ft. Calhoun No. 2.

Several lawmakers argued that they should have had a say in that decision, since the board's action committing the city will end up costing taxpayers money and affecting electricity bills.

Although the board's signing the contract "may have been legal," Councilman Max Denney said, "it sure wasn't wise."

Councilman Bob Jeambey, who with Denney criticized LES's handling of the situation, said the council is being asked to approve the bond ordinance without having sufficient information to justify that action.

"At no point has the City Council grappled with the issue of nuclear power," said Jeambey.

Bashara Offended

Board member Nick Bashara said he took "personal offense" at Jeambey's comments, which he interpreted as questioning the integrity of the LES board.

Bashara suggested the council could start a petition drive to get rid of the board.

Jeambey responded that the council "has to be able to make the decision and then defend it."

He said the council should have had a say in the decision to sign the Ft. Calhoun contract because annual rate hikes of 4 to 5% will be needed just to help sell the bonds needed for that project.

The council is scheduled to hold a public hearing Monday on the bond ordinance and act on it the following week.

That stepped-up time table for action was criticized by several lawmakers who wanted to know why they needed to act so hastily.

Oct. 1 Deadline

Allman said OPPD set an Oct. 1 deadline on whether LES will participate in Ft. Calhoun. If no decision is reached, that means Lincoln could be eliminated as a part-owner, he said.

LES presented its projections of future electricity demands, which are estimated at a 9% increase a year. Board member Burnham Yates also outlined the financial package needed to pay for future power needs. The city will have to sell about $400 million in bonds over the next ten years to pay the bill.

Councilmen Dick Baker, Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta said they aren't blaming the board and believe the board is doing its best to plan for future energy needs.

Commenting on the rate hikes needed to finance new generating plants, Sikyta said, "No one likes to see the price go up. I'd rather face than than brownouts."

Mayor Helen Boosalis said no one was trying to place the blame on the nuclear power plant issue.

But, she said, "the fact is, the public just doesn't understand this."

Iowa Policeman Cited By Chiefs For Omaha Job

Denver (UPI) — A master patrolman from the Des Moines Police Department received an honorable mention from Parade Magazine and the International Association of Chiefs of Police at the police group's convention here Tuesday.

Officer Charles Cramer was cited for his role as an undercover drug agent on loan to Omaha Police officials. The citation indicated Cramer worked as a "bouncer" in a downtown Omaha tavern where drug activity took place.

Cramer is credited with helping to break up a major Omaha-area drug ring with information he gathered while working in the tavern.

Rich, Poor Nations Said On Path To Negotiations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. delegates opened the 30th annual session of the General Assembly Tuesday on the heels of an economic meeting that a top American official said "put the rich and poor countries squarely on a path toward negotiation" instead of conflict.

The assembly elected Prime Minister Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg as president and unanimously voted three new countries into the world organization, bringing membership to 141 nations.

The new members are Mozambique, the Cape Verde Islands and Sao Tome-Principe, all former Portuguese territories.

Major issues on the agenda for the new sesion included the future of U.S. troops in South Korea, Palestine, disarmament and white rule in South Africa.

Meeting almost around the clock for the third consecutive day, weary delegates in rapid-fire order concluded both the special session on economic issues and the 29th regular assembly before launching the new one.

The 29th session had recessed last December but not adjourned in case it was necessary to reconvene on the Middle East question.

The special session declaration on Development and International Economic Cooperation was adopted unanimously after the United States, European Common Market nations, Japan, Canada and the Soviet bloc read reservations into the record at a predawn meeting of the full membership negotiating committee.

A major U.S. reservation was against a provision committing advanced nations to the U.N. goal of 0.7% of gross national product by the end of the decade.

Sirhan's Gun, Fatal Bullet Brought Into Court

Los Angeles (UPI) — The pistol fired by Sirhan Sirhan and the fatal bullet fragment that lodged in Robert Kennedy's brain were brought back into a county courtroom Tuesday as ground rules were set for reinvestigation of ballistics evidence in the 1968 assassination.

The exhibits, packed in a brown cardboard box, and a wrinkled paper bundle of some of the clothing Kennedy wore the night of his murder were turned over to Superior Court Judge Robert A. Wenke for examination later this month by a peanl of seven independent experts.

Wenke gave final approval to a court order of instructions to the panel whose key question was:

"Do the exhibits in any way support a conclusion that a second weapon was fired at the time of the assassination?"

The Los Angeles district attorney's office has reluctantly agreed to the partial reopening of the case although it has stated repeatedly that there is no doubt that Sirhan, now serving a life sentence, was guilty of the murder and that no second gunman was involved.

At Tuesday's session, Dep. Dist. Atty. Dinko Bozanich said there had been "substantial irregularities" in the handling of the exhibits in the office of the county clerk since Sirhan was convicted at his 1969 trial.

The district attorney contends such irregularities may make inconclusive any results obtained from refiring the .22-caliber pistol and comparing the bullet markings with those removed from Kennedy's body and bystanders wounded in the shooting.

At an afternoon session, Dewayne Wolfer, chief criminolgist of the Los Angeles Police Department, was questioned about the procedures he used in gathering ballistics evidence on the assassination.

The experts, who are to be flown to Los Angeles from all over the country, had originally been scheduled to conduct their tests independently but on the same day in seven separate rooms.

The court ruled Tuesday such an arrangement was impractical and ordered that the tests be held in one main "laboratory" with the forensic scientists using the same equipment.

It also ruled that the experts be ordered not to talk with one another about their tests or their findings until the results are published.

Sirhan, now in San Quentin, must give his written consent before the retesting is undertaken, Wenke ruled. There was little doubt, however, that Sirhan would agree.

The motion to re-examine the evidence was brought by the Columbia Boardcasting System and Paul Schrade, a former United Auto Workers union executive who was at Kennedy's side in the Ambassador Hotel lobby and was wounded in the shooting.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr., the senator's son, has said the family does not believe any useful purpose would be served by reopening the case.

Madam Chiang To Visit U.S.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Madame Chiang Kai-shek, widow of the former leader of Nationalist China, said Tuesday she will leave for the United States on Wednesday for medical treatment.

Madame Chiang, who is reported to be in her 70s, said in a statement that she has not been in good health for two years. The nature of her illness was not disclosed.

Madame Chiang, a 1917 graduate of Wellesley College, last visited the United States in 1965-66.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Quarterback George Mira of the Jacksonville Express lost the tip of his left index finger in a WFL game Sunday in Honolulu. Mira apparently caught his finger in one of the giant zippers on the artificial turf when he was tackled.

Mississippi State University officials, apparently acting on NCAA instructions, remained silent on reports the school has been placed on probation for two years for alleged football recruiting infractions.

The Oakland Raiders were picked to win the Super Bowl in a poll of the 26 NFL correspondents of the Sporting News. Other division winners picked in the poll were Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Minnesota, Miami and Washington.

BASEBALL

If the Baltimore Orioles and Boston Red Sox finish in a tie for the American League Eastern Division lead, the title would be decided by a one-game playoff in Baltimore on Tuesday night, Sept. 30 the Orioles said.

Sportswriter Phil Hersh of the Baltimore Sun asked the assistant state's attorney to drop assault charges he filed in June against Detroit Tigers manager Ralph Houk.

BASKETBALL

The Spirits of St. Louis said they have filed suit to keep Lonnie Shelton from playing basketball for any other team. The Spirits said they have a contract with Shelton to play for seven years for $1 million. The suit says Shelton notified the Spirits July 30 he considers the contract "rescinded."

The NBA Houston Rockets announced the signing of Tom Owens, a 6-10 center who has one year remaining on his contract with the Baltimore franchise of the ABA.

Veteran guard Mike Barr and rookie backcourt players Allen Spruill and Don Scaife have signed 1975-76 contracts, the ABA's Spirits of St. Louis announced.

Fourth-round draft choice Mack Coleman, a 6-9 forward and brother of New Orleans Jazz veteran E. C. Coleman, has signed a contract with the NBA franchise.

TENNIS

Second seeded Ilie Nastase had to come from behind to defeat Tray Walke of St. Louis, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, as the top four seeds moved into the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Princes Tennis Tournament. Jimmy Connors, Alex Metreveli and Vitas Gerulaitis also advanced with easy wins.

Swedish tennis star Bjorn Borg, practicing for this weekend's Davis Cup semifinals against Chile in Baastad, Sweden, is receiving the protection of a personal bodyguard, police said. More than 5,000 demonstrators have promised to stage massive protests during the matches, protesting the Chilean military junta.

OTHER SPORTS

Deputy State Racing Commissioner Leo R. Shirley said he has ordered in investigation into possible "fixing" of horses involved in rich superfecta races at Hazel Park, Mich., Raceway.

Thirty Connecticut horsemen opposed to the state's off track betting organization charged state officials with negligence and conflict of interest and said they would file suit to stop it.

British bookmakers have made Muhammad Ali a 4-9 favorite to retain his world heavyweight boxing title against Joe Frazier in Manila Sept. 30.

China was voted in as a member of the International University Sports Federation Tuesday. All the 43-member countries voted in favor except for Indonesia, which abstained.

NYL President Clarence Campbell said agreement has been reached with the players which will permit them to compete in next year's proposed six-nation World Cup Tournament. NHL Players Association Director Alan Eagleson denied that a pact has been reached.

Frank Hughes, the Houston Aeros most prolific scorer who was contacted about jumping to another WHA team, has signed a multi-year contract to return to Houston.

Paul Dietzel said he has "no comment" on reports he will be named athletic director at Inaiana University.

Kearney Clinic Lures Wooden

Kearney (AP) — The "Wizard of Westwood," former UCLA basketball coach John Wooden, will headline the annual Kearney State College Cage Clinic, Nov. 6.

A basketball coach for more than 40 years, Wooden's teams compiled an overall record of 905 wins against just 203 losses.

He retired last spring after his UCLA Bruins won the NCAA national Championship.

Jets, Redskins Join Striking Patriots

National Football League teams, their scheduled season openers just five days away, started choosing sides Tuesday with two more teams joining the New England Patriots on strike.

Players from the New York Jets, annoyed at the growing "wishy-washy" attitude of some other clubs, and the Washington Redskins left their training camps Tuesday, hoping to touch off a chain reaction that would either produce a general strike or a settlement.

Generally, there was a great deal of confusion among the very players concerned about the current status of the situation, and even the head of the NFL Players' Association admitted there was no strong leadership.

"We want desperately to get this settled because the thing is getting out of hand and we're losing control," NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey said in Washington. "Essentially we have 26 locals, all taking action."

Joe Lavender, player representative of the Philadelphia Eagles, said the players were "in a helluva position" because the "information we have is not enough, one way or another." As a result, the Eagles were unable to take a stand

"You could not make any drastic decisions on what we have now," Lavender said. "It's pretty damn confusing. We have to wait to get our information."

Among other teams, the Miami Dolphins and Minnesota Vikings voted against joining the strike and the Cincinnati Bengals, with no club meetings scheduled, declined to take a stand. The Chicago Bears decided to go along if the Players' Association declares a general strike and the New York Giants voted unanimously to support striking teams—but not to go out themselves for the time being.

Much of the current confusion was caused by counter offers earlier in the day from the head federal labor mediator working on the strike and the NFL Management Council. In fact, until the Management Council presented its six-point proposal, it appeared that a shaky truce could be affected.

During an all-night session that ended at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday morning, the federal mediator, William J. Usery, presented a compromise package that, among other things, would have reinstated the 1970 contract until Oct. 1 and would have retained a 46-player limit until the same date with three of the players to be on a taxi squad.

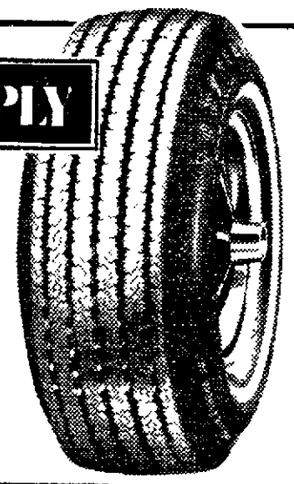

It also would have required a no-strike pledge from the players and a no-lockout promise from the owners; no recrimations against the Patriots or any other players; the immediate commencement of negotiations with the owners making package proposal by Sept. 25 and a player vote on or about Oct. 1 or 2.

Board Endorses YWCA Mini-Park

The Parks and Recreation Board recommended Tuesday that the city turn a lot on 15th St. by the YWCA into a mini-park.

YWCA board member Thelma Miller asked the parks board to turn the lot by the building into a green area with trees and benches since the organization doesn't have the funds to do the job by itself.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said the park would be adjacent to the 15th St. Mall which is maintained by the city. Smith said the city could plant evergreens and trees and maintain the lot at little cost.

The board liked the idea and recommended that Mayor Helen Boosalis approve the project.

In other business, the board approved new rental reates for Woods Pool, at 33rd and J St.

The board hiked the basic rental fee for the pool from $150 a day to $200 a day. After considerable discussion the board decided not to increase the fee charged to rent just the diving area alone. The present fee is $50 a day. Recreation Superintendent Dick Leker recommended the fee be raised to $75.

Board members were split on whether the fee for use of the diving well should be increased. Board member Dick McCashland said higher fees may keep many regional and national groups from coming to Lincoln for swimming meets.

Other board members argued that the higher fees are needed to help defray increasing expenses.

The board finally decided not to recommend a rate increase because Leker said groups seldom just rent the diving area alone.

The board also agreed that season swimming passes will be accepted at all pools next summer.

Under present policy, passes are not transferable. Swimmers only are allowed to use the passes at the swimming pool where the ticket was purchased. Leker recommended that the city try the new system on a trial basis next summer.

Omahan Leads Drive For Stamp Honoring Neihardt

A movement is underway to have the U.S. Postal Service issue a commemorative stamp in honor of the late Dr. John G. Neihardt, former poet laureate of Nebraska.

Robert M. Vassell of Omaha, who will head a committee seeking to persuade the Postal Service, said he hopes the stamp will be issued to coincide with the dedication of the Neihardt Cultural Center in Bancroft next August.

Ordinarily the Postal Service needs more time to prepare a special issue, Vassell said.

But a deluge of letters to the Stamp Advisory Committee, in care of the U.S. Postal Service in Washington, D.C., might speed up the process, he said.

Even if the commemorative stamp cannot be issued in time for the dedication, Vassell said he intends to go through with the idea.

French, British To Launch Flight

London (AP) — British Airways, Britain's flag carrier, plans to launch its supersonic Concorde jetliner service Jan. 4 with scheduled flights from London to Bahrain in the Persian Gulf, the airline said Tuesday night.

Air France announced earlier it will begin Concorde's commercial service the same day between Paris and Rio de Janeiro.

Rubber Worker To Be National Union Candidate

The president of a Lincoln-area United Rubber Workers local has announced his intention to run for the presidency of the entire union at its convention Oct. 15 in Miami Beach.

Gilbert Laws, president of Local 286, said he has decided to run against incumbent union president Peter Bommarito because rubber workers' wages have not risen at a rate comparable to wages in similar industries.

Laws said it would be an uphill battle to defeat Bommarito, but said he was encouraged to run by several other locals and believes he has a good chance.

Mystery Case Wasn't Bomb; Just A Gift

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Martin Butel, 34, a law clerk in a Hollywood attorney's office, found a strange briefcase in his car.

Being suspicious, he called the bomb squad.

Police arrived at the scene, sealed off a square block and approached the car with caution. They unsnapped the clasps

Health Systems Agency In Works

Grand Island (UPI) — A task force of 32 persons from 72 outstate Nebraska counties is working on an application, prompted by a federal move to cut down on duplicated services and administration, to become a healthy systems agency.

Paul Guptill of Grand Island, executive director of the Central Nebraska Comprehensive Health Planning Council, said Tuesday the agency would be one of three in the state which will have review and approval authority over federal health money coming into the state.

Guptill also said the agency would replace the present area-wide health planning councils, of which there are four, as well as the regional medical programs.

Representatives of those two groups are forming the task force, Guptill said, as a result of a meeting held in Kearney Monday. Another meeting will be held in Kearney on Sept. 29 to elect task force officers.

Guptill said he thought the task force would be fully operative in three to six months.

Some of the questions the task force will be answering include recommendations on geographic boundaries; how governing board members should be appointed (population, geography or a combination); and should there be area subcouncils.

The primary purpose of the task force, Guptill said, is to get all health agencies involved in formation of a single health system agency instead of each existing agency filing its own request to become the health system agency for oustate Nebraska.

He said the group meeting in Kearney favored the idea of subcouncils.

State Wins Plaudits From HEW Officials

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Vietnamese resettlement effort is earning some high marks from regional officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Kansas City.

Ana Riojas, who will coordinate the resettlement effort in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, said Nebraska has been cautious but has sought to establish firm community support for the program before carrying through with resettlement.

"I would say what Nebraska is doing is very good. Each state is approaching this a little differently," she said in a telephone interview.

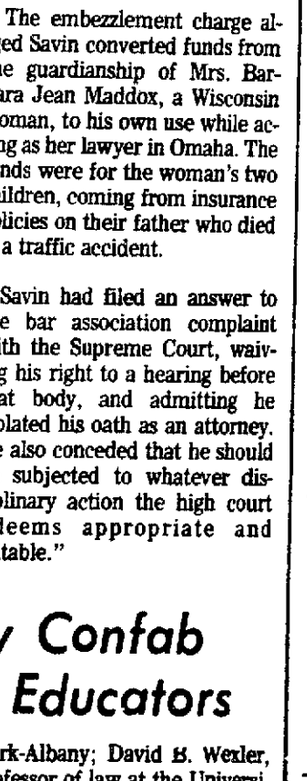

Referring to the four-state region, she said "one thing they are against is welfare. Nebraska specifically wants to make sure that when they resettle these people they are not going on welfare."

Wednesday members of the Lincoln Fellowship of Churches and Gov. J. J. Exon's office will hold a Lincoln seminar, partially coordinated by Exon and Lincoln City Councilman Bob Jeambey.

The governor is expected to address the workshop Wednesday afternoon, called to coordinate the resettlement of Nebraska's 708 Vietnamese refugees.

NU Veterinary Science Chairman Is Resigning

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus has announced he will step down as chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln veterinary science department on Jan. 1, or as soon after that as a replacement can be found.

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus

Twiehaus will remain on the staff as a veterinary science professor until his retirement at the end of June in 1976. He has been on the NU staff for 12 years.

A search committee to find a successor to Twiehaus will be set up, according to Dr. Howard O. Ttoson, NU acting vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources.

Twiehaus said he decided to make the announcement early because he feels a new chairman should have a hand in picking staff members to fill positions that have become vacant and positions created by the building of a new animal health research complex.

Supreme Court Disbars Guardianship Embezzler

By The Associated Press

Omaha attorney Joseph Savin, sentenced to prison recently in connection with an embezzlement charge to which he pleaded no contest, has been disbarred by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The high court's decision followed filing of a Nebraska State Bar Association complaint which requested disciplinary action against Savin.

A bar member since 1971, Savin has appealed a one to three year prison term imposed on him in August by Douglas County District Judge John T. Grant. The sentence followed Savin's no contest plea to a chrge that he embezzled some $16,000 from the funds of a legal guardianship.

The embezzlement charge alged Savin converted funds from the guardianship of Mrs. Barbara Jean Maddox, a Wisconsin woman, to his own use while acting as her lawyer in Omaha. The funds were for the woman's two children, coming from insurance policies on their father who died in a traffic accident.

Savin had filed an answer to the bar association complaint with the Supreme Court, waiving his right to a hearing before that body, and admitting he violated his oath as an attorney. He also conceded that he should be subjected to whatever disciplinary action the high court "deems appropriate and suitable."

Court Asked To Reconsider NU Pay Ruling

By United Press International

An attorney for the University of Nebraska said Tuesday the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals has been asked to reconsider an Aug. 26 decision on equal pay for male and female employes.

Bruce Wright of Lincoln, representing the university in the case, said the request was filed with the court in St. Louis Monday.

As to whether the case would be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court if the circuit court decides not to reconsider its decision, Wright said that hasn't been decided yet. But he did offer his own opinion.

"My feeling is that it should be appealed," the attorney said.

In the August decision, a three-judge panel ruled the university acted illegally when it refused to pay male employes according to the same salary schedule developed for female employes.

In so ruling, the circuit court reversed a lower court decision against A. Neil Dawes, who filed the action on behalf of extension employes of the College of Agriculture.

Wright said the rehearing on the decision was requested on the grounds that the ruling was "contrary to the language of the Equal Pay Act" and that the decision results in "unworkable conflict between the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Equal Pay Act."

The pay scale in question resulted from a federal audit of the university which disclosed pay differences. Acting voluntarily, the university adopted in 1972 a policy designed to put the institution in compliance with Civil Rights Act provisions.

The circuit court said the result was in violation of the equal pay for equal work act and that, said Wright, is the source of the "unworkable conflict" the university faces if the August decision is allowed to stand.

The attorney said the theoretical impact of the decision could be continuous back and forth adjustments in pay sacles to meet first the Civil Rights Act and then the Equal Pay Act.

The practical impact, Wright said, might be no adjustments in pay unless ordered by a court because the appeals court decision, in short, says the provisions of the two anti-discrimination laws can't be reconciled one with the other.

The appellate court said it had been shown that male employes with substantially equal education, experience and merit were being paid less than minimum established for female employes. In other words, claimed Dawes, it was discrimination in reverse.

"It was the university, not the defendant class, that established the ground rules for determining whether women were being discriminated against," the circuit court said. "It determined the factors that were considered to be important for that purpose."

The court also said that not all employes were being wronged by the formula. But, said the court, "It is sufficient to show that some are."

Joint N-Plant Fires Council

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Several city lawmakers contended again Tuesday that the Lincoln Electric System (LES) board has sidestepped the City Council in deciding to build a nuclear power plant.

LES board members argued they've done no such thing. Board members contended they've provided the council with information, haven't tried to be sneaky about proposing the matter and said they've done all the homework proving Lincoln should become co-owners of Ft. Calhoun No. 2.

Councilmen Bob Jeambey and Max Denney said LES hasn't convinced them and argued over breakfast that they need a lot more information before they can decide on a proposed bond ordinance on the council's agenda.

The ordinance would provide the financing necessary to help build the nuclear plant and a coal generating complex in Wyoming. Without the financing, LES couldn't participate in the plants.

At the heart of the controversy is the question over which agency — the LES Administrative Board or the City Council — is going to run the city-owned utility.

That underlying issue surfaced only briefly Tuesday.

Budgetary Control

Board Chairman Tom Allman pointed out that the council has budgetary and rate control over LES. However, LES is charged with running the system, which is exactly what LES has been doing, he said.

"We're not subservient to you in the operation of the system," Allman stated.

As a result, the board said it acted properly when it signed a contract with the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) to become a 13% owner in Ft. Calhoun No. 2.

Several lawmakers argued that they should have had a say in that decision, since the board's action committing the city will end up costing taxpayers money and affecting electricity bills.

Although the board's signing the contract "may have been legal," Councilman Max Denney said, "it sure wasn't wise."

Councilman Bob Jeambey, who with Denney criticized LES's handling of the situation, said the council is being asked to approve the bond ordinance without having sufficient information to justify that action.

"At no point has the City Council grappled with the issue of nuclear power," said Jeambey.

Bashara Offended

Board member Nick Bashara said he took "personal offense" at Jeambey's comments, which he interpreted as questioning the integrity of the LES board.

Bashara suggested the council could start a petition drive to get rid of the board.

Jeambey responded that the council "has to be able to make the decision and then defend it."

He said the council should have had a say in the decision to sign the Ft. Calhoun contract because annual rate hikes of 4 to 5% will be needed just to help sell the bonds needed for that project.

The council is scheduled to hold a public hearing Monday on the bond ordinance and act on it the following week.

That stepped-up time table for action was criticized by several lawmakers who wanted to know why they needed to act so hastily.

Oct. 1 Deadline

Allman said OPPD set an Oct. 1 deadline on whether LES will participate in Ft. Calhoun. If no decision is reached, that means Lincoln could be eliminated as a part-owner, he said.

LES presented its projections of future electricity demands, which are estimated at a 9% increase a year. Board member Burnham Yates also outlined the financial package needed to pay for future power needs. The city will have to sell about $400 million in bonds over the next ten years to pay the bill.

Councilmen Dick Baker, Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta said they aren't blaming the board and believe the board is doing its best to plan for future energy needs.

Commenting on the rate hikes needed to finance new generating plants, Sikyta said, "No one likes to see the price go up. I'd rather face than than brownouts."

Mayor Helen Boosalis said no one was trying to place the blame on the nuclear power plant issue.

But, she said, "the fact is, the public just doesn't understand this."

Denver (UPI) — A master patrolman from the Des Moines Police Department received an honorable mention from Parade Magazine and the International Association of Chiefs of Police at the police group's convention here Tuesday.

Officer Charles Cramer was cited for his role as an undercover drug agent on loan to Omaha Police officials. The citation indicated Cramer worked as a "bouncer" in a downtown Omaha tavern where drug activity took place.

Sirhan's Gun, Fatal Bullet Brought Into Court

Los Angeles (UPI) — The pistol fired by Sirhan Sirhan and the fatal bullet fragment that lodged in Robert Kennedy's brain were brought back into a county courtroom Tuesday as ground rules were set for reinvestigation of ballistics evidence in the 1968 assassination.

The exhibits, packed in a brown cardboard box, and a wrinkled paper bundle of some of the clothing Kennedy wore the night of his murder were turned over to Superior Court Judge Robert A. Wenke for examination later this month by a peanl of seven independent experts.

Wenke gave final approval to a court order of instructions to the panel whose key question was:

"Do the exhibits in any way support a conclusion that a second weapon was fired at the time of the assassination?"

The Los Angeles district attorney's office has reluctantly agreed to the partial reopening of the case although it has stated repeatedly that there is no doubt that Sirhan, now serving a life sentence, was guilty of the murder and that no second gunman was involved.

At Tuesday's session, Dep. Dist. Atty. Dinko Bozanich said there had been "substantial irregularities" in the handling of the exhibits in the office of the county clerk since Sirhan was convicted at his 1969 trial.

The district attorney contends such irregularities may make inconclusive any results obtained from refiring the .22-caliber pistol and comparing the bullet markings with those removed from Kennedy's body and bystanders wounded in the shooting.

At an afternoon session, Dewayne Wolfer, chief criminolgist of the Los Angeles Police Department, was questioned about the procedures he used in gathering ballistics evidence on the assassination.

The experts, who are to be flown to Los Angeles from all over the country, had originally been scheduled to conduct their tests independently but on the same day in seven separate rooms.

The court ruled Tuesday such an arrangement was impractical and ordered that the tests be held in one main "laboratory" with the forensic scientists using the same equipment.

It also ruled that the experts be ordered not to talk with one another about their tests or their findings until the results are published.

Sirhan, now in San Quentin, must give his written consent before the retesting is undertaken, Wenke ruled. There was little doubt, however, that Sirhan would agree.

The motion to re-examine the evidence was brought by the Columbia Boardcasting System and Paul Schrade, a former United Auto Workers union executive who was at Kennedy's side in the Ambassador Hotel lobby and was wounded in the shooting.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr., the senator's son, has said the family does not believe any useful purpose would be served by reopening the case.

Madam Chiang To Visit U.S.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Madame Chiang Kai-shek, widow of the former leader of Nationalist China, said Tuesday she will leave for the United States on Wednesday for medical treatment.

Madame Chiang, who is reported to be in her 70s, said in a statement that she has not been in good health for two years. The nature of her illness was not disclosed.

Madame Chiang, a 1917 graduate of Wellesley College, last visited the United States in 1965-66.

Rich, Poor Nations Said On Path To Negotiations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. delegates opened the 30th annual session of the General Assembly Tuesday on the heels of an economic meeting that a top American official said "put the rich and poor countries squarely on a path toward negotiation" instead of conflict.

The assembly elected Prime Minister Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg as president and unanimously voted three new countries into the world organization, bringing membership to 141 nations.

The new members are Mozambique, the Cape Verde Islands and Sao Tome-Principe, all former Portuguese territories.

Major issues on the agenda for the new sesion included the future of U.S. troops in South Korea, Palestine, disarmament and white rule in South Africa.

Meeting almost around the clock for the third consecutive day, weary delegates in rapid-fire order concluded both the special session on economic issues and the 29th regular assembly before launching the new one.

The 29th session had recessed last December but not adjourned in case it was necessary to reconvene on the Middle East question.

The special session declaration on Development and International Economic Cooperation was adopted unanimously after the United States, European Common Market nations, Japan, Canada and the Soviet bloc read reservations into the record at a predawn meeting of the full membership negotiating committee.

A major U.S. reservation was against a provision committing advanced nations to the U.N. goal of 0.7% of gross national product by the end of the decade.

Some Discount Fares Are Offered By Amtrak

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — If you're trying to save a few dollars on travel, see what Amtrak can do for you. The nationalized railroad system, which operates most of the passenger service in the U.S. and even some in Canada, is promoting some discount fares to attract business.

Jane Bryant Quinn

In general, trains cost less than planes for trips of 125 miles or less. Over longer distances, the advantage depends on what fare you qualify for. Amtrak coach might run about the same as one of the airline promotional fares, but less than a regular tourist ticket.

Amtrak also offers group discounts of 15 people or more. And since train stations are generally located downtown, you're saved the price of a trip to the airport. Buses, of course, are still cheaper than trains, but may take longer.

If you sleep easily, you might find the Amtrak coaches sufficient for overnight trips with few stops, especially the "slumber choaches." But when stops are frequent, even sound sleepers might want a roomette, which of course adds to the cost. Sleeping accommodations put the price of a train ticket a little above airline tourist fares. (You also have to buy meals on trains, but prices are reasonable and if you're vacationing, you'd probably be buying meals out anyway.)

Fares Vary

Amtrak's family plan charges one parent full fare, but provides discounts of 25% to the other parent and any children between 12 and 21 (children aged 2 to 11 get 25% off their normal halffare). There also are various seaonsal and exursion fares, with a few special promotions in the wings.

For example, starting Sept. 8, Amtrak's round-trip coach fare to Florida from New York will be $99 — nearly 50% less than its present price and $23 less than the cheapest no-frills plane fare to Miami. Of course, the train trip lasts 25 hours while the plane ride only 2½, but as train buffs say, "you get to see the countryside." The new fare puts Amtrak in a dead heat with Greyhound, whose 27-hour New York-Miami trip costs $98.20.

Also starting Sept. 8, Amtrak will have a round-trip "Bicentennial" fare of $40 ($20 for children) between Boston and Washington — a 30% saving. And you can stop over free at points along the way (such as New York and Philadelphia). The cheapest air fare from Boston to Washington is $68 round-trip, with no stopovers.

Two other excursion trips — both using nearly all new train equipment — were started in April. The Mountaineer runs from Norfolk, Va., to Chicago for $93 round-trip, with free stopovers in cities such as Ronaoke and Lynchburg, Va., and Indianapolis. The James Whitcomb Riley runs from Washington to Chicago for $103 round trip. By contrast, an excursion air flight is $102; a tourist flight, $123; and a bus ride, $90.

Amtrak, however, has nothing to compare with Greyhound's Ameri-Pass, which is a flat rate of $175 for one month of travel and $250 for two months, for as many miles as you can stand it.

Special Trips

There are all manner of special trips and tours available. For information, you're better off talking to travel agents than the hurried (and sometimes grudging) people who staff train-station information booths. The agent can also book you into hotels along the route (his services don't cost you anything).

You'll need reservations for sleeping compartments, and even for coach seats on long-distance trips. Try to call at least 30 days in advance, and even earlier if you want to travel around a holiday. You can book by phone via a toll-free 800 number. (For the one in your area, call information at 800/555-1212 and ask for Amtrak.) Reservations can be canceled up to about an hour before your trip for a full refund; after that, there's a 10% cancellation charge.

When you ride on Amtrak, don't expect the Orient Express. There are many complaints about surly service (left over from the days when the railroads' private owners were trying to get rid of passengers), dirty cars, and breakdowns in the heating, lighting and air conditioning systems. Because of poor maintenance, roadbeds are bumpy; trains are slowed down and even rerouted, which often makes them late.

On the other hand, there are also come beautiful and well-serviced trains. Amtrak has repainted hundreds of its ancient cars, and the first of 492 new cars will be on the rails this fall. Officials are trying hard to keep the improvements coming. "The changeover has been gradual," says one, "but now we are ready for a much bigger push."

Dow Average Pushed Back Below 800

New York (AP) — Concern that inflation might cut short the developing economic recovery inflicted more damage on the stock market Tuesday, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average back below 800 for the first time in nearly a month.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips, up about 3 points in a short-lived early rally attempt, was off 8.06 at 795.13 by the close.

The closely followed indicator last closed lower on Aug. 21, when it finished at 791.69. The Dow's loss through the steady decline of the past six sessions now has reached 44.98 points.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock average was off .79 at 82.09, and the broadly based New York Stock Exchange composite index gave up .42 to 43.59, its lowest close since April 8 when it finished at 42.98.

Losers outdistanced gainers 1,003 to 336 among the 1,778 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume increased to 13.09 million shares, compared with 8.67 million Monday when activity was reduced by the observance of the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur.

At the opening, the market was able to generate only a brief advance on the government report late Monday that industrial production posted its sharpest rise in nearly three years last month.

By midmorning prices had turned downward following release of a Congressional Budget Office report predicting continued unemployment and inflation problems for years.

The report acknowledged that the economy was beginning to rebound from the recession. Indeed, said Albert Sommers, a Conference Board economist, in a speech later in the day, "a vigorous business recovery" is in progress.

But because of inflation, Sommers said, "prospects for the recovery beyond early 1976 are in doubt."

Mapco fell 3⅛ to 41¼ and Falcon Seaboard jumped 9⅞ to 37⅞ on the American Stock Exchange. The companies announced Merger plans calling for the exchange of 1.2 Mapco shares for each Falcon Seaboard share.

Rohm & Haas fell 5½ to 65½. Late Monday the company said it expected a dropoff in earnings this quarter from the second quarter.

Conspicuous losers in the glamor sector included Polaroid, which fell 2⅛ to 31½ at the top of the Big Board's most-active list; IBM, off 1¾ at 171⅛, and Texas Instruments, 1⅛ lower at 84¼.

Pamida, second on the list of volume leaders, slipped ⅛ to 5¾ in trading that included a 161,900 share block at 5½.

Houston Oil & Minerals, the Amex's most active issue, picked up ⅛ to 26⅛ on top of a 3¼-point jump Monday, when the company announced a gas discovery of Texas City, Tex.

The Amex market value index lost .66 to 82.21.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index was down .69 at 73.78.

Board Endorses YWCA Mini-Park

The Parks and Recreation Board recommended Tuesday that the city turn a lot on 15th St. by the YWCA into a mini-park.

YWCA board member Thelma Miller asked the parks board to turn the lot by the building into a green area with trees and benches since the organization doesn't have the funds to do the job by itself.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said the park would be adjacent to the 15th St. Mall which is maintained by the city. Smith said the city could plant evergreens and trees and maintain the lot at little cost.

The board liked the idea and recommended that Mayor Helen Boosalis approve the project.

In other business, the board approved new rental reates for Woods Pool, at 33rd and J St.

The board hiked the basic rental fee for the pool from $150 a day to $200 a day. After considerable discussion the board decided not to increase the fee charged to rent just the diving area alone. The present fee is $50 a day. Recreation Superintendent Dick Leker recommended the fee be raised to $75.

Board members were split on whether the fee for use of the diving well should be increased. Board member Dick McCashland said higher fees may keep many regional and national groups from coming to Lincoln for swimming meets.

Other board members argued that the higher fees are needed to help defray increasing expenses.

The board finally decided not to recommend a rate increase because Leker said groups seldom just rent the diving area alone.

The board also agreed that season swimming passes will be accepted at all pools next summer.

Under present policy, passes are not transferable. Swimmers only are allowed to use the passes at the swimming pool where the ticket was purchased. Leker recommended that the city try the new system on a trial basis next summer.

Omahan Leads Drive For Stamp Honoring Neihardt

A movement is underway to have the U.S. Postal Service issue a commemorative stamp in honor of the late Dr. John G. Neihardt, former poet laureate of Nebraska.

Robert M. Vassell of Omaha, who will head a committee seeking to persuade the Postal Service, said he hopes the stamp will be issued to coincide with the dedication of the Neihardt Cultural Center in Bancroft next August.

Ordinarily the Postal Service needs more time to prepare a special issue, Vassell said.

But a deluge of letters to the Stamp Advisory Committee, in care of the U.S. Postal Service in Washington, D.C., might speed up the process, he said.

Even if the commemorative stamp cannot be issued in time for the dedication, Vassell said he intends to go through with the idea.

Rubber Worker To Be National Union Candidate

The president of a Lincoln-area United Rubber Workers local has announced his intention to run for the presidency of the entire union at its convention Oct. 15 in Miami Beach.

Gilbert Laws, president of Local 286, said he has decided to run against incumbent union president Peter Bommarito because rubber workers' wages have not risen at a rate comparable to wages in similar industries.

Laws said it would be an uphill battle to defeat Bommarito, but said he was encouraged to run by several other locals and believes he has a good chance.

Court Asked To Reconsider NU Pay Ruling

By United Press International

An attorney for the University of Nebraska said Tuesday the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals has been asked to reconsider an Aug. 26 decision on equal pay for male and female employes.

Bruce Wright of Lincoln, representing the university in the case, said the request was filed with the court in St. Louis Monday.

As to whether the case would be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court if the circuit court decides not to reconsider its decision, Wright said that hasn't been decided yet. But he did offer his own opinion.

"My feeling is that it should be appealed," the attorney said.

In the August decision, a three-judge panel ruled the university acted illegally when it refused to pay male employes according to the same salary schedule developed for female employes.

In so ruling, the circuit court reversed a lower court decision against A. Neil Dawes, who filed the action on behalf of extension employes of the College of Agriculture.

Wright said the rehearing on the decision was requested on the grounds that the ruling was "contrary to the language of the Equal Pay Act" and that the decision results in "unworkable conflict between the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Equal Pay Act."

The pay scale in question resulted from a federal audit of the university which disclosed pay differences. Acting voluntarily, the university adopted in 1972 a policy designed to put the institution in compliance with Civil Rights Act provisions.

The circuit court said the result was in violation of the equal pay for equal work act and that, said Wright, is the source of the "unworkable conflict" the university faces if the August decision is allowed to stand.

The attorney said the theoretical impact of the decision could be continuous back and forth adjustments in pay sacles to meet first the Civil Rights Act and then the Equal Pay Act.

The practical impact, Wright said, might be no adjustments in pay unless ordered by a court because the appeals court decision, in short, says the provisions of the two anti-discrimination laws can't be reconciled one with the other.

The appellate court said it had been shown that male employes with substantially equal education, experience and merit were being paid less than minimum established for female employes. In other words, claimed Dawes, it was discrimination in reverse.

"It was the university, not the defendant class, that established the ground rules for determining whether women were being discriminated against," the circuit court said. "It determined the factors that were considered to be important for that purpose."

The court also said that not all employes were being wronged by the formula. But, said the court, "It is sufficient to show that some are."

Lincoln Star Special

St. Paul — In a very close race here Tuesday, St. Paul residents gave approval to a $790,000 school bond proposal by an unofficial vote of 426 to 410.

However, the final outcome could change with the count of 30 absentee ballots. The Howard County clerk's office said these ballots will be opened and counted Thursday.

The bond issue is for additions to St. Paul High School.

The proposed vocational addition would include areas for vocational agriculture and FFA, industrial arts, welding, painting, auto mechanics, lockers, storage and office space.

State Employes To Ask Binding Arbitration Law

Omaha (UPI) — Despite almost certain opposition from Gov. J. James Exon, organized labor in Nebraska plans another attempt to place into the statutes legislation calling for a form of binding arbitration in public employe contracts.

William Brennan, state AFL-CIO president, said Tuesday that LB243, given 26-17 legislative approval this year but axed by an Exon veto, would be clarified for introduction to the 1976 Unicameral.

In his veto message, Exon said, aside from the "legitimate" constitutional questions of the bill, "I do not concur that governmental officials should take even the first step towards 'binding arbitration' with employes."

Exon reaffirmed his stand last week during a keynote address to the League of Nebraska Municipalities annual convention in Omaha.

Brennan, in an interview with UPI, called the Exon veto a "disservice to the state and to the employes."

"There appeared to be a great deal of misunderstanding about what LB243 was all about," Brennan said. "The states that have been forerunners in the private sector bargaining area recognize this type of arbitration as a constitutional and functional."

Brennan pointed out there were two broad categories of arbitration — interest and grievance.

The labor leader said interest arbitration would include the determination of what will go into a labor contract, such as wages.

Grievance arbitration, Brennan said, determines the application of the contract and is the type of arbitration labor wants into law.

"We were not after any binding arbitration on wages or provisions similar to that," Brennan said. "All we wanted was another avenue for grievances to be solved other than the State Court of Industrial Relations."

For example, Brennan said, if an employe is disciplined because his hair is too long or for the type of clothes he wears, he or his union and his employer would have the option of taking the case before an arbitrator.

"When you take a case before the State Court of Industrial Relations," Brennan said, "it takes a lot of time and money. Sometimes the issue isn't resolved and it ends up in a higher court.

"If the issue could be resolved in binding arbitration," Brennan said, "it would be a very simple matter."

Brennan cited a case involving Omaha firemen when their contract dispute with the city was taken directly to the court.

"The court didn't rule totally in favor of one side or the other," Brennan said. "The case was taken to the State Supreme Court which upheld the Industrial Relations Court decision."

With state employes, Brennan said, the Legislature has to approve wage increases.

"It doesn't make sense to have final and binding arbitration on wages, for example," Brennan said, "if the legislature has to approve them.

"LB243 will have to be rewritten to clearly state it pertains to grievance arbitration rather than interest arbitration."

When asked if he thought there was any possibility of changing state law on the wage provision, Brennan said, "I seriously doubt it."

At present, Brennan said, organized labor represents about 5,000 public employes in Nebraska.

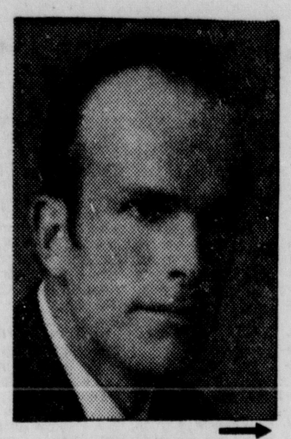

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes is the largest group, Brennan said. "And seven or eight other unions are organizing in the public sector."

Public recognition laws in Nebraska, Brennan said "are slowly working into an excellent procedure that has prevented work stoppages."

"Nebraska has an orderly system for settling grievances," Brennan said. "All we're asking for is another alternative which we believe is more efficient and cheaper in most cases."

Brennan said no attempt was made to override the May 1 Exon veto.

"Once we can further explain what the bill does," Brennan said, "we hope the results will be different the next time around."

Sen. George Burrows

Sculpture Hearings Planned

State Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island Tuesday announced dates and locations for a series of hearings on the controversial bicentennial sculpture garden project.

Kelly is head of a subcommittee of the Unicameral's Executive Board and is probing the history of the project, which features sculptures at Interstate 80 rest areas.

The first hearing will be held Sept. 27 at the Omaha Civic Center Building and the second will be held in Lincoln at the Lincoln Center Building on Sept. 28. The third hearing will be held at the First National Bank Building in Grand Island on Sept. 29.

On Sept. 30, Kelly's subcommittee will meet at the Lincoln County Courthouse in North Platte and the final hearing in the series will be held Sept. 31 at the Scottsbluff City Hall.

All hearings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Income Tax Said Best For Schools

North Platte (UPI) — The sponsor of a bill to shift public school support from local property taxes to a local income tax said Tuesday he feels the additional tax could be held to 4% in most cases.

"We feel we could hold it in the range of 4% for most districts," said State Sen. George Burrows of Adams during a hearing of the Unicameral's Revenue Committee in North Platte.

"Some would be more and some would be less, depending on how much they spend," Burrows said.

The revenue committee is holding a series of hearings on that income tax plan for school support plus other tax legislation. On Wednesday, the committee was scheduled to hold a hearing in Grand Island, followed by another hearing at Norfolk on Thursday.

The committee's final hearings in the series will be Sept. 24 and 25 in Lincoln and Omaha respectively.

Before the committee is Burrows' LB362. An initial hearing on the proposal was held in February. The committee decided to hold the bill and conduct additional hearings on the idea before acting.

During the North Platte hearing, Sen. Myron Rumery of North Platte said major concern was whether there would in fact be a reduction in local property taxes if the Burrows plan was adopted.

Burrows replied there would be a reduction. He said the income tax revenue would simply replace the property tax money previously earmarked for educational purposes.

"You would still have property taxes for such things as fire districts and local government," the Adams lawmaker said.

The bill's sponsor said he felt the greatest advantage in shifting tax bases was the corresponding shift from across the board taxation to one where those able to pay would foot the bill.

"The key thing is that when you're paying 4% of your income, it stings. But you don't wipe out a business," Burrows said. "With real estate taxes, you are playing a wipe-out game."

He said even in a bad year property taxes go on while an income tax is paid only on real income.

Robert C. McChesney of North Platte, a certified public accountant, told the committee he felt Nebraska's income tax system, which is tied directly to federal income taxes paid, should remain untouched. He also said that under the Burrows plan there would be problems when a person owns a business located in more than one county.

Under the proposed legislation, taxes would be collected locally and the money kept there.

McChesney said that would mean the person with a multi-county business wouldn't be paying income taxes in each school district where that business is located unless a complicated accounting system is used.

Harold Brooks of North Platte told the committee he favored the present system of school support. For one thing, he said, "I don't think it's going to make much difference in taxes" each person pays. For another, he said he thought the school district budgeting process would run into problems.

Burrows said he felt the budgeting process would remain essentially the same. He said the only difference would be that each district would be dealing in income tax rates rather than mill levies.

Long Distance Service Lost Around Waverly

Long distance telephone service in the Waverly-Greenwood-Ashland area was cut off for several hours Tuesday.

People in the communities were able to phone each other, but were unable to place calls outside their communities, according to a Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph spokesman.

The outage occurred when a long distance cable was cut near Interstate 80 and Hwy. 6 by a construction crew, the spokesman said.

Long distance service was restored early Tuesday afternoon.

Harris May Run As Independent

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A student of the life of George W. Norris, Lincoln businessman Bill Harris hopes next year to be elected as the second registered independent member of the Unicameral.

"I believe in the nonpartisan Legislature," Harris said in an interview. "If I served in it, I would want to serve as a nonpartisan."

Norris, who won his last U.S. Senate election in 1936 as an independent (he was formerly a Republican), led the way in giving the Unicameral its nonpartisan characteristic.

Although all of its members are elected on a nonpartisan ballot, all but one are either registered Republicans or Democrats. Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha is the only independent currently serving in the Legislature.

Harris would change his registration from Democratic if he ultimately files as a candidate for the 27th District seat currently held by Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln. Fowler is a Democrat and plans to seek re-election.

Harris, 36, who has business interests in both Lincoln and McCook (the latter was Norris' home town), considers himself a "probable" candidate for Fowler's seat.

Citing the need for state government planning and preparation for a coming "tax crisis," Harris foresees a 3½% state sales tax rate just to meet current obligations. The rate is now 2½%.

"We cannot blindly go ahead passing new programs and increasing expenditures beyond the ability or the willingness of the people to pay," he said.

"If we had planned adequately in the past, maybe we could have held the sales tax to 2½%."

A nation which has survived the Vietnam war and the Watergate crisis is now in the midst of an energy crisis and headed for a tax crisis, Harris predicted.

"Every level of government in every state is experiencing an increase in the cost of government at a more rapid rate than the ability of the people to pay," he said.

"I think we have to recognize this problem and deal with it now. That means more planning so spending can match revenue."

In Nebraska, Harris said, he believes adequate planning can resolve the problem without any reduction in state government services.

"I believe we can continue to have those services and have the support of the people for adequate funds to operate the university, provide school support, etc."

The inflationary economy nationally has led to the "tax crisis" by pushing government costs ever upward merely to continue present services at the current level, Harris noted.

"We just have to plan with that in mind," he said.

Harris has been involved in a number of government reform efforts, including proposals to tighten lobbyist reporting requirements, increase legislative salaries, strengthen conflict of interest legislation, write campaign reform principles and protect the nonpartisan aspect of the Unicameral.

Cope Urges Lodging Tax For Promoting Tourism

Alliance (AP) — State Sen. Ronald Cope of Kearney has proposed a lodging tax that he says would benefit businesses and promote tourism in Nebraska.

Cope outlined the bill to tax motels and hotels before the legislative revenue committee in Alliance. He said the tax would give local communities funds to secure conventions in their areas.

Under the proposed bill, the tax would be collected by the county treasurer's office, which would get 3% of the funds for collecting it. All other funds would remain within the county.

The county commissioners would approve the budget for the program. Cope said the program would carry a local option and would not be mandatory.

Committee members questioned whether the collected taxes should go into a general fund. But Cope argued that a general fund would give Lincoln and Omaha, as the largest cities, the greater share of the funds.

Open Government Group Plans Sunshine Initiative

Omaha (AP) — Peter Hoagland, an Omaha attorney who serves as the coordinator of Nebraska's Coalition for Open Government, says his organization is planning a petition drive to have a "Sunshine Initiative" placed on next November's ballot.

Persons interested in the issue met here Monday to make suggestions on how the proposed measure should be written.

Hoagland said the organization will start gathering the 32,000 needed signatures next month.

The petition calls for the writing of laws covering lobbying activities, campaign contributions, and conflicts of interest among public officials along with the establishment of a fair political practices commission.

Neligh Hasn't Let Last Picture Show

Neligh (UPI) — The plight of the small town movie theater was the source of a title for a motion picture, and book, called "The Last Picture Show."

It appeared that the title had reached the point of reality in the community of Neligh, population 1,726 according to the 1970 census, when the operator of the New Moon Theater died last year and the family sold the building.

But now there may be a permanent recall — a temporary one has already come about due to efforts on the part of a group of high school students and adults — on the final curtain. Neligh voters will be deciding sometime in the next two months whether to approve a $50,000 bond issue to keep the New Moon in operation.

Dennis Gann, city administrator, told UPI Tuesday a petition drive to put the issue on the ballot in a special election was successful.

At a meeting of the city council earlier this month, attorney Stephen Finn turned over petitions with over 250 signatures on them seeking the special election. Gann said only 78 valid signatures were needed and as it turned out only about 15 of the total were ruled invalid.

Gann said the special election date would be set at the next council meeting, which is scheduled for Oct. 13. The coucil has 60 days in which to act.

Gann said Neligh Mayor Noel Brennan and city council members have indicated they want to allow as much time as possible before the special election so both sides of the issue can be presented to voters before they mark ballots.

"I don't think there's a single soul who wouldn't enjoy this," the administrator said, referring to keeping the theater in operation. "The question is whether it should be done with local government subsidy or whether it should be left to private enterprise."

The possibility of losing the theater arose last year with the death of William Bradley, theater manager. The Bradley family decided to sell the building and it was purchased by a clothing merchant.

But a group of citizens and volunteer high school students decided to try and keep the silver screen alive. One of those who helped organize the effort was Dr. George Strassler, a dentist, along with Finn.

As a result, New Moon Inc., a non-profit corporation, was formed, the petition drive to get the issue on the ballot was undertaken. Enough money was raised to keep the New Moon in operation until the ballots are counted.

Under plans submitted by Strassler and the group, the basement of the theater would be turned into a teen center while the theater portion would be kept in operation where stage presentations would be offered in addition to movies.

The $50,000 bond issue would allow assumption of a $32,000 loan obtained by New Moon Inc., to buy the theater from the clothing merchant and get it back in operation using volunteer help and allow $18,000 for improvements.

If the bond issue is approved, Gann said the next issue the council would face is a budget to run the theater and teen center. The problem, he said, is that right now the council has no way of knowing how much might be required. However, he said Finn and the others involved in the drive for the theater have promised a profit-loss statement upon which at least preliminary calculations could be based.

ROTC Cadets Given Grants

Two Air Force ROTC Cadets at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been awarded grants by the Society of Commissioned Officers.

Patrick J. Hoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stacy W. Hoy of Falls City, and a senior in the College of Business Administration, received an $850 grant.

Jerene M. Dierwechter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Dierwechter of Scottsbluff, and a sophomore majoring in food science, received a $650 award.

Peavey Co. Buys ConAgra Elevator

Grand Island (AP) — The Peavey Co., of Minneapolis, has purchased the ConAgra grain elevator here.

The takeover will become effective next Monday, and at that time the elevator will be closed, said Chet Bowman, vice president and general manager of Peavey's Kearney Division.

Bowman said substantial improvements will be made at the elevator before it is reopened.

He said the elevator was purchased to provide the Kearney Division with more grain merchandising operations.

The old mill, which is adjacent to the elevator, will be demolished, Bowman said.

The mill closed last June 21, but ConAgra officials said they hoped it would be reopened when market conditions improved. The elevator has continued operations since.

ConAgra was Grand Island's oldest manufacturing firm. It was started in 1867 by Henry A. Koenig, and was bought in 1919 b y Nebraska Consolidated Mills. The latter became ConAgra.

Some Discount Fares Are Offered By Amtrak

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — If you're trying to save a few dollars on travel, see what Amtrak can do for you. The nationalized railroad system, which operates most of the passenger service in the U.S. and even some in Canada, is promoting some discount fares to attract business.

Jane Bryant Quinn

In general, trains cost less than planes for trips of 125 miles or less. Over longer distances, the advantage depends on what fare you qualify for. Amtrak coach might run about the same as one of the airline promotional fares, but less than a regular tourist ticket.

Amtrak also offers group discounts of 15 people or more. And since train stations are generally located downtown, you're saved the price of a trip to the airport. Buses, of course, are still cheaper than trains, but may take longer.

If you sleep easily, you might find the Amtrak coaches sufficient for overnight trips with few stops, especially the "slumber choaches." But when stops are frequent, even sound sleepers might want a roomette, which of course adds to the cost. Sleeping accommodations put the price of a train ticket a little above airline tourist fares. (You also have to buy meals on trains, but prices are reasonable and if you're vacationing, you'd probably be buying meals out anyway.)

Fares Vary

Amtrak's family plan charges one parent full fare, but provides discounts of 25% to the other parent and any children between 12 and 21 (children aged 2 to 11 get 25% off their normal halffare). There also are various seaonsal and exursion fares, with a few special promotions in the wings.

For example, starting Sept. 8, Amtrak's round-trip coach fare to Florida from New York will be $99 — nearly 50% less than its present price and $23 less than the cheapest no-frills plane fare to Miami. Of course, the train trip lasts 25 hours while the plane ride only 2½, but as train buffs say, "you get to see the countryside." The new fare puts Amtrak in a dead heat with Greyhound, whose 27-hour New York-Miami trip costs $98.20.

Also starting Sept. 8, Amtrak will have a round-trip "Bicentennial" fare of $40 ($20 for children) between Boston and Washington — a 30% saving. And you can stop over free at points along the way (such as New York and Philadelphia). The cheapest air fare from Boston to Washington is $68 round-trip, with no stopovers.

Two other excursion trips — both using nearly all new train equipment — were started in April. The Mountaineer runs from Norfolk, Va., to Chicago for $93 round-trip, with free stopovers in cities such as Ronaoke and Lynchburg, Va., and Indianapolis. The James Whitcomb Riley runs from Washington to Chicago for $103 round trip. By contrast, an excursion air flight is $102; a tourist flight, $123; and a bus ride, $90.

Amtrak, however, has nothing to compare with Greyhound's Ameri-Pass, which is a flat rate of $175 for one month of travel and $250 for two months, for as many miles as you can stand it.

Special Trips

There are all manner of special trips and tours available. For information, you're better off talking to travel agents than the hurried (and sometimes grudging) people who staff train-station information booths. The agent can also book you into hotels along the route (his services don't cost you anything).

You'll need reservations for sleeping compartments, and even for coach seats on long-distance trips. Try to call at least 30 days in advance, and even earlier if you want to travel around a holiday. You can book by phone via a toll-free 800 number. (For the one in your area, call information at 800/555-1212 and ask for Amtrak.) Reservations can be canceled up to about an hour before your trip for a full refund; after that, there's a 10% cancellation charge.

When you ride on Amtrak, don't expect the Orient Express. There are many complaints about surly service (left over from the days when the railroads' private owners were trying to get rid of passengers), dirty cars, and breakdowns in the heating, lighting and air conditioning systems. Because of poor maintenance, roadbeds are bumpy; trains are slowed down and even rerouted, which often makes them late.

On the other hand, there are also come beautiful and well-serviced trains. Amtrak has repainted hundreds of its ancient cars, and the first of 492 new cars will be on the rails this fall. Officials are trying hard to keep the improvements coming. "The changeover has been gradual," says one, "but now we are ready for a much bigger push."

Broadcaster Group Urges Public Radio Plans Nixed

North Platte (AP) — The Nebraska Broadcasters Association (NBA) adopted a resolution Tuesday calling on the University of Nebraska Board of Regents "to extinguish plans or preparations for the public radio network for Nebraska."

The resolution was adopted during the closing session of the group's three-day, annual convention.

Prior to the session, Richard W. Chapin, president of Stuart Broadcasting Co., Lincoln, and Jack McBride, general manager of the Nebraska Educational Television Commission, debated the merits of public radio.

McBride said the commission has not yet taken a formal position on public radio, but is in the process of conducting a $25,000 study on public radio. The study is to be completed in October.

McBride said that if the commission decides to pursue the creation of a public radio network, it will seek funding from the 1976 legislature.

McBride said the NBA was against conducting the study, and refused to cooperate in it. He said the only legitimate question is whether the taxpayers of Nebraska can afford such a system, adding that considerable funding is acailable from several federal sources.

Chapin, past chairman of the joint boards of the National Association of Broadcasters, said the NBA does not believe the federal government or agency funded by the federal government should do news programming on public radio.

Chapin said it is obvious that the commmission's study on public radio will result in a decision to go ahead with such a network, and then, like educational television, the commission "will engage in empire building."

The NBA also adopted resolutions urging the repeal of the "fairness doctrine;" commending the Federal Communications Commission for its re-regulation efforts; urging congressional passage of a bill to provide a minimum five-year license renewal periods.

In addition, the group adopted resolutions opposing low-power travelers information stations along highway routes and urging the Congress and FCC to oppose pay broadcasting systems.

McCollister Opposes Consumer Protection

Washington (UPI) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., Tuesday called the proposed creation of a federal consumer protection agency a "bad idea."

The Republican noted the government has responded to consumer interests in that there were more than 1,400 "consumer protection programs" which absorb a "huge chunk" of the federal budget.

"I think consumers should be free to make and responsible for most of their decisions, not the government," McCollister said. "Government should police the market, prevent unfair trade practices, prevent monopolies, prevent fraud and misrepresentation. But let's leave the rest to the consumers, not the bureaucrats."

McCollister said for "many months" there has been a "growing focus on government regulation."

"Nearly everyone agrees it has distorted the free market," McCollister said. "Virtually everyone agrees that regulations have inhibited competition, removed incentives for productivity and raised true production costs."

"The answer is not more government agencies spending more tax dollars to protect the consumer," McCollister said, "but less government agencies spending less money.

"That would leave enough money in private hands to invest in creating private sector jobs."

State Arts Council Plans Artists-In-Schools Project

Omaha (UPI) — The Nebraska Arts Council said it plans to coordinate a special artists-in-schools program valued at more than $250,000.

Leo A. Daly, Omaha, council chairman, said the program offers school districts and educational units in Nebraska short and long-term residency activities by professional artists in visual arts and crafts, poetry, filmmaking, dance, drama and vocal and instrumental music.

Daly said the school districts and service units will match the $125,400 awarded for the program by the National Endowment for the Arts.

Artists-in-schools residencies, Daly said, have been scheduled for school districts including those in Omaha, Lincoln, Grand Island, Hastings, Lexington, Cozad, Kearney, Valentine and Scottsbluff and in Douglas, Sarpy, Lancaster, Dodge and Washington counties.

Daly said $41,000 was donated to the program by the Woods Charitable Fund Inc. and the Cooper Foundation, both of Lincoln, the World Herald Foundation, Omaha, Mutual of Omaha and United of Omaha, Daly's firm, the Leo A. Daly Co., Omaha, and the Bankers Life of Nebraska, Lincoln, and others.

The arts organizations that donated funds and that will provide professional artists to work in the program were the Omaha Opera company, the Omaha Symphony Orchestra Assn., the Omaha Community Playhouse, the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra Assn., and the Lincoln Community Playhouse.

Exon OKs Education Contracts

By United Press International

The State Administrative Services Department Tuesday announced Gov. J. J. Exon's approval of construction contracts for a State Education Department project at Cozad and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln basic science facility.

The basic science building is part of the university's Animal Research Center, Center components already under construction are the diagnostic wing and the animal research and holding facility.

The Animal Research Center has an overall appropriation total of $8 million of which the basic science building would use $2.4 million.

Approved by Exon was a $729,927 general contract with M. W. Anderson Construction Co., Lincoln. American Desk Manufacturing Co., Taylor, Tex., received the $171,637 laboratory equipment contract; while O'Keefe Elevator Co., Lincoln, received the $23,640 elevator contract.

The W. R. Lesoing Co., Lincoln, received the $408,448 mechanical contract and Quality First Electrical Corp., Lincoln, received the $164,811 electrical contract.

The project has a Jan. 1, 1977 completion deadline.

The general contract for the Education Department's diagnostic resource center at Cozad went to Paulsen Construction Co., Cozad, on a bid of $486,050. Anderson Brothers Plumbing and Heating of Kearney received the $135,322 mechanical contract, while Cesco Electric of North Platte received the $83,666 electrical contract.

The project has a completion target date of March 1977.

Dow Average Pushed Back Below 800

New York (AP) — Concern that inflation might cut short the developing economic recovery inflicted more damage on the stock market Tuesday, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average back below 800 for the first time in nearly a month.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips, up about 3 points in a short-lived early rally attempt, was off 8.06 at 795.13 by the close.

The closely followed indicator last closed lower on Aug. 21, when it finished at 791.69. The Dow's loss through the steady decline of the past six sessions now has reached 44.98 points.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock average was off .79 at 82.09, and the broadly based New York Stock Exchange composite index gave up .42 to 43.59, its lowest close since April 8 when it finished at 42.98.

Losers outdistanced gainers 1,003 to 336 among the 1,778 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume increased to 13.09 million shares, compared with 8.67 million Monday when activity was reduced by the observance of the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur.

At the opening, the market was able to generate only a brief advance on the government report late Monday that industrial production posted its sharpest rise in nearly three years last month.

By midmorning prices had turned downward following release of a Congressional Budget Office report predicting continued unemployment and inflation problems for years.

The report acknowledged that the economy was beginning to rebound from the recession. Indeed, said Albert Sommers, a Conference Board economist, in a speech later in the day, "a vigorous business recovery" is in progress.

But because of inflation, Sommers said, "prospects for the recovery beyond early 1976 are in doubt."

Mapco fell 3⅛ to 41¼ and Falcon Seaboard jumped 9⅞ to 37⅞ on the American Stock Exchange. The companies announced Merger plans calling for the exchange of 1.2 Mapco shares for each Falcon Seaboard share.

Rohm & Haas fell 5½ to 65½. Late Monday the company said it expected a dropoff in earnings this quarter from the second quarter.

Conspicuous losers in the glamor sector included Polaroid, which fell 2⅛ to 31½ at the top of the Big Board's most-active list; IBM, off 1¾ at 171⅛, and Texas Instruments, 1⅛ lower at 84¼.

Pamida, second on the list of volume leaders, slipped ⅛ to 5¾ in trading that included a 161,900 share block at 5½.

Houston Oil & Minerals, the Amex's most active issue, picked up ⅛ to 26⅛ on top of a 3¼-point jump Monday, when the company announced a gas discovery of Texas City, Tex.

The Amex market value index lost .66 to 82.21.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index was down .69 at 73.78.

State Employes To Ask Binding Arbitration Law

Omaha (UPI) — Despite almost certain opposition from Gov. J. James Exon, organized labor in Nebraska plans another attempt to place into the statutes legislation calling for a form of binding arbitration in public employe contracts.

William Brennan, state AFL-CIO president, said Tuesday that LB243, given 26-17 legislative approval this year but axed by an Exon veto, would be clarified for introduction to the 1976 Unicameral.

In his veto message, Exon said, aside from the "legitimate" constitutional questions of the bill, "I do not concur that governmental officials should take even the first step towards 'binding arbitration' with employes."

Exon reaffirmed his stand last week during a keynote address to the League of Nebraska Municipalities annual convention in Omaha.

Brennan, in an interview with UPI, called the Exon veto a "disservice to the state and to the employes."

"There appeared to be a great deal of misunderstanding about what LB243 was all about," Brennan said. "The states that have been forerunners in the private sector bargaining area recognize this type of arbitration as a constitutional and functional."

Brennan pointed out there were two broad categories of arbitration — interest and grievance.

The labor leader said interest arbitration would include the determination of what will go into a labor contract, such as wages.

Grievance arbitration, Brennan said, determines the application of the contract and is the type of arbitration labor wants into law.

"We were not after any binding arbitration on wages or provisions similar to that," Brennan said. "All we wanted was another avenue for grievances to be solved other than the State Court of Industrial Relations."

For example, Brennan said, if an employe is disciplined because his hair is too long or for the type of clothes he wears, he or his union and his employer would have the option of taking the case before an arbitrator.

"When you take a case before the State Court of Industrial Relations," Brennan said, "it takes a lot of time and money. Sometimes the issue isn't resolved and it ends up in a higher court.

"If the issue could be resolved in binding arbitration," Brennan said, "it would be a very simple matter."

Brennan cited a case involving Omaha firemen when their contract dispute with the city was taken directly to the court.

"The court didn't rule totally in favor of one side or the other," Brennan said. "The case was taken to the State Supreme Court which upheld the Industrial Relations Court decision."

With state employes, Brennan said, the Legislature has to approve wage increases.

"It doesn't make sense to have final and binding arbitration on wages, for example," Brennan said, "if the legislature has to approve them.

"LB243 will have to be rewritten to clearly state it pertains to grievance arbitration rather than interest arbitration."

When asked if he thought there was any possibility of changing state law on the wage provision, Brennan said, "I seriously doubt it."

At present, Brennan said, organized labor represents about 5,000 public employes in Nebraska.

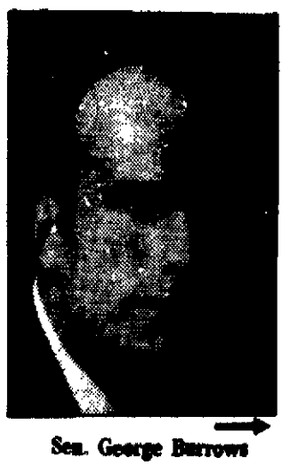

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes is the largest group, Brennan said. "And seven or eight other unions are organizing in the public sector."

Public recognition laws in Nebraska, Brennan said "are slowly working into an excellent procedure that has prevented work stoppages."

"Nebraska has an orderly system for settling grievances," Brennan said. "All we're asking for is another alternative which we believe is more efficient and cheaper in most cases."

Brennan said no attempt was made to override the May 1 Exon veto.

"Once we can further explain what the bill does," Brennan said, "we hope the results will be different the next time around."

Sen. George Burrows

Sculpture Hearings Planned

State Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island Tuesday announced dates and locations for a series of hearings on the controversial bicentennial sculpture garden project.

Kelly is head of a subcommittee of the Unicameral's Executive Board and is probing the history of the project, which features sculptures at Interstate 80 rest areas.

The first hearing will be held Sept. 27 at the Omaha Civic Center Building and the second will be held in Lincoln at the Lincoln Center Building on Sept. 28. The third hearing will be held at the First National Bank Building in Grand Island on Sept. 29.

On Sept. 30, Kelly's subcommittee will meet at the Lincoln County Courthouse in North Platte and the final hearing in the series will be held Sept. 31 at the Scottsbluff City Hall.

All hearings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Income Tax Said Best For Schools

North Platte (UPI) — The sponsor of a bill to shift public school support from local property taxes to a local income tax said Tuesday he feels the additional tax could be held to 4% in most cases.

"We feel we could hold it in the range of 4% for most districts," said State Sen. George Burrows of Adams during a hearing of the Unicameral's Revenue Committee in North Platte.

"Some would be more and some would be less, depending on how much they spend," Burrows said.

The revenue committee is holding a series of hearings on that income tax plan for school support plus other tax legislation. On Wednesday, the committee was scheduled to hold a hearing in Grand Island, followed by another hearing at Norfolk on Thursday.

The committee's final hearings in the series will be Sept. 24 and 25 in Lincoln and Omaha respectively.

Before the committee is Burrows' LB362. An initial hearing on the proposal was held in February. The committee decided to hold the bill and conduct additional hearings on the idea before acting.

During the North Platte hearing, Sen. Myron Rumery of North Platte said major concern was whether there would in fact be a reduction in local property taxes if the Burrows plan was adopted.

Burrows replied there would be a reduction. He said the income tax revenue would simply replace the property tax money previously earmarked for educational purposes.

"You would still have property taxes for such things as fire districts and local government," the Adams lawmaker said.

The bill's sponsor said he felt the greatest advantage in shifting tax bases was the corresponding shift from across the board taxation to one where those able to pay would foot the bill.

"The key thing is that when you're paying 4% of your income, it stings. But you don't wipe out a business," Burrows said. "With real estate taxes, you are playing a wipe-out game."

He said even in a bad year property taxes go on while an income tax is paid only on real income.

Robert C. McChesney of North Platte, a certified public accountant, told the committee he felt Nebraska's income tax system, which is tied directly to federal income taxes paid, should remain untouched. He also said that under the Burrows plan there would be problems when a person owns a business located in more than one county.

Under the proposed legislation, taxes would be collected locally and the money kept there.

McChesney said that would mean the person with a multi-county business wouldn't be paying income taxes in each school district where that business is located unless a complicated accounting system is used.

Harold Brooks of North Platte told the committee he favored the present system of school support. For one thing, he said, "I don't think it's going to make much difference in taxes" each person pays. For another, he said he thought the school district budgeting process would run into problems.

Burrows said he felt the budgeting process would remain essentially the same. He said the only difference would be that each district would be dealing in income tax rates rather than mill levies.

Long Distance Service Lost Around Waverly

Long distance telephone service in the Waverly-Greenwood-Ashland area was cut off for several hours Tuesday.

People in the communities were able to phone each other, but were unable to place calls outside their communities, according to a Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph spokesman.

The outage occurred when a long distance cable was cut near Interstate 80 and Hwy. 6 by a construction crew, the spokesman said.

Long distance service was restored early Tuesday afternoon.

Harris May Run As Independent

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A student of the life of George W. Norris, Lincoln businessman Bill Harris hopes next year to be elected as the second registered independent member of the Unicameral.

"I believe in the nonpartisan Legislature," Harris said in an interview. "If I served in it, I would want to serve as a nonpartisan."

Norris, who won his last U.S. Senate election in 1936 as an independent (he was formerly a Republican), led the way in giving the Unicameral its nonpartisan characteristic.

Although all of its members are elected on a nonpartisan ballot, all but one are either registered Republicans or Democrats. Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha is the only independent currently serving in the Legislature.

Harris would change his registration from Democratic if he ultimately files as a candidate for the 27th District seat currently held by Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln. Fowler is a Democrat and plans to seek re-election.

Harris, 36, who has business interests in both Lincoln and McCook (the latter was Norris' home town), considers himself a "probable" candidate for Fowler's seat.

Citing the need for state government planning and preparation for a coming "tax crisis," Harris foresees a 3½% state sales tax rate just to meet current obligations. The rate is now 2½%.

"We cannot blindly go ahead passing new programs and increasing expenditures beyond the ability or the willingness of the people to pay," he said.

"If we had planned adequately in the past, maybe we could have held the sales tax to 2½%."

A nation which has survived the Vietnam war and the Watergate crisis is now in the midst of an energy crisis and headed for a tax crisis, Harris predicted.

"Every level of government in every state is experiencing an increase in the cost of government at a more rapid rate than the ability of the people to pay," he said.

"I think we have to recognize this problem and deal with it now. That means more planning so spending can match revenue."

In Nebraska, Harris said, he believes adequate planning can resolve the problem without any reduction in state government services.

"I believe we can continue to have those services and have the support of the people for adequate funds to operate the university, provide school support, etc."

The inflationary economy nationally has led to the "tax crisis" by pushing government costs ever upward merely to continue present services at the current level, Harris noted.

"We just have to plan with that in mind," he said.

Harris has been involved in a number of government reform efforts, including proposals to tighten lobbyist reporting requirements, increase legislative salaries, strengthen conflict of interest legislation, write campaign reform principles and protect the nonpartisan aspect of the Unicameral.

Cope Urges Lodging Tax For Promoting Tourism

Alliance (AP) — State Sen. Ronald Cope of Kearney has proposed a lodging tax that he says would benefit businesses and promote tourism in Nebraska.

Cope outlined the bill to tax motels and hotels before the legislative revenue committee in Alliance. He said the tax would give local communities funds to secure conventions in their areas.

Under the proposed bill, the tax would be collected by the county treasurer's office, which would get 3% of the funds for collecting it. All other funds would remain within the county.

The county commissioners would approve the budget for the program. Cope said the program would carry a local option and would not be mandatory.

Committee members questioned whether the collected taxes should go into a general fund. But Cope argued that a general fund would give Lincoln and Omaha, as the largest cities, the greater share of the funds.

Open Government Group Plans Sunshine Initiative

Omaha (AP) — Peter Hoagland, an Omaha attorney who serves as the coordinator of Nebraska's Coalition for Open Government, says his organization is planning a petition drive to have a "Sunshine Initiative" placed on next November's ballot.

Persons interested in the issue met here Monday to make suggestions on how the proposed measure should be written.

Hoagland said the organization will start gathering the 32,000 needed signatures next month.

The petition calls for the writing of laws covering lobbying activities, campaign contributions, and conflicts of interest among public officials along with the establishment of a fair political practices commission.

Neligh Hasn't Let Last Picture Show

Neligh (UPI) — The plight of the small town movie theater was the source of a title for a motion picture, and book, called "The Last Picture Show."

It appeared that the title had reached the point of reality in the community of Neligh, population 1,726 according to the 1970 census, when the operator of the New Moon Theater died last year and the family sold the building.

But now there may be a permanent recall — a temporary one has already come about due to efforts on the part of a group of high school students and adults — on the final curtain. Neligh voters will be deciding sometime in the next two months whether to approve a $50,000 bond issue to keep the New Moon in operation.

Dennis Gann, city administrator, told UPI Tuesday a petition drive to put the issue on the ballot in a special election was successful.

At a meeting of the city council earlier this month, attorney Stephen Finn turned over petitions with over 250 signatures on them seeking the special election. Gann said only 78 valid signatures were needed and as it turned out only about 15 of the total were ruled invalid.

Gann said the special election date would be set at the next council meeting, which is scheduled for Oct. 13. The council has 60 days in which to act.

Gann said Neligh Mayor Noel Brennan and city council members have indicated they want to allow as much time as possible before the special election so both sides of the issue can be presented to voters before they mark ballots.

"I don't think there's a single soul who wouldn't enjoy this," the administrator said, referring to keeping the theater in operation. "The question is whether it should be done with local government subsidy or whether it should be left to private enterprise."

The possibility of losing the theater arose last year with the death of William Bradley, theater manager. The Bradley family decided to sell the building and it was purchased by a clothing merchant.

But a group of citizens and volunteer high school students decided to try and keep the silver screen alive. One of those who helped organize the effort was Dr. George Strassler, a dentist, along with Finn.

As a result, New Moon Inc., a non-profit corporation, was formed, the petition drive to get the issue on the ballot was undertaken. Enough money was raised to keep the New Moon in operation until the ballots are counted.

Under plans submitted by Strassler and the group, the basement of the theater would be turned into a teen center while the theater portion would be kept in operation where stage presentations would be offered in addition to movies.

The $50,000 bond issue would allow assumption of a $32,000 loan obtained by New Moon Inc., to buy the theater from the clothing merchant and get it back in operation using volunteer help and allow $18,000 for improvements.

If the bond issue is approved, Gann said the next issue the council would face is a budget to run the theater and teen center. The problem, he said, is that right now the council has no way of knowing how much might be required. However, he said Finn and the others involved in the drive for the theater have promised a profit-loss statement upon which at least preliminary calculations could be based.

ROTC Cadets Given Grants

Two Air Force ROTC Cadets at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been awarded grants by the Society of Commissioned Officers.

Patrick J. Hoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stacy W. Hoy of Falls City, and a senior in the College of Business Administration, received an $850 grant.

Jerene M. Dierwechter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Dierwechter of Scottsbluff, and a sophomore majoring in food science, received a $650 award.

Harkin Returning Pay

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said he will return his share of the pay raise the Congress recently voted for its members.

Peavey Co. Buys ConAgra Elevator

Grand Island (AP) — The Peavey Co., of Minneapolis, has purchased the ConAgra grain elevator here.

The takeover will become effective next Monday, and at that time the elevator will be closed, said Chet Bowman, vice president and general manager of Peavey's Kearney Division.

Bowman said substantial improvements will be made at the elevator before it is reopened.

He said the elevator was purchased to provide the Kearney Division with more grain merchandising operations.

The old mill, which is adjacent to the elevator, will be demolished, Bowman said.

The mill closed last June 21, but ConAgra officials said they hoped it would be reopened when market conditions improved. The elevator has continued operations since.

ConAgra was Grand Island's oldest manufacturing firm. It was started in 1867 by Henry A. Koenig, and was bought in 1919 by Nebraska Consolidated Mills. The latter became ConAgra.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

The Sagittarius dream is of long corridors, long-distance calls, long ago and far away, of foreign lands, strange moods and customs, of esoteric philosophies, of grand dames and grand old men. The Sagittarian dream is of an expanding universe, of exploding rainbows, of a light show, of elephants, of big, kindly, benevolent, jovial animals, of a big top, a circus, of clowns, animal trainers, men and girls daring on a flying trapeze. The canvas of the Sagittarian dream is mammoth, nothing petty, no small feelings, emotions, all big, encompassing the sky as the limit, meaning there are no limitations here, in this spectacular, which is the Sagittarius world of dreams. Some Sagittarius celebrities include Lee Trevino, Liv Ullman, David Carradine, Andy Williams, Jane Fonda and Garson Kanin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friend who consults you actually aids you. Means by lending helping hand now you will be helping yourself. Aquarian figures prominently. Check details, be aware of fine print. Being thorough is a necessity. A wish, seemingly impractical, is about to be fulfilled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent is on goal, career, how you relate to those in authority. Change due and a message — in form of call or writing — triggers action. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. You may be asked to provide a report. There really is no need for panic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Look beyond the immediate. Be aware of potential. Travel, publishing are in picture. Domestic adjustment figures prominently, too. Family member discusses budget, money, special purchase. Be diplomatic — make concessions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Aura of mystery intrigues and could also be frustrating. Partner, mate has key. Know it and ask — don't permit pride to block progress. Pisces, Virgo persons figure in picture. Unusual coincidence leads to money in the bank.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on partnership, legal document, settlement which brings you greater responsibility — and recognition. Question of marriage could figure prominently. You'll be dealing with older persons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Employment picture changes — you could leave one phase of activity in preparation for "something big." Aries, Libra individuals figure prominently. You get together with one who shares your interests — and can give you preview of upcoming situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ability to love is enhanced; you feel more vital, vulnerable — and alive. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. Make new starts, be independent, bring forth creative resources. Imprint your own style — lead rather than follow, even though some become envious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on abode, place where you feel secure. One who aided in past may expect favor to be repaid. Maintain grown-up attitude. You get nothing for nothing. Teach, share — you make contact which will aid in overcoming obstacles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get chance to try different areas, methods. Flexible approach is necessary. Be versatile; expand horizons. Accept invitation to social affair. You could meet people who trigger ideas, aid your personal welfare.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spotlight on gaining specific needs. Stick to principles. You collect, add to assets. Don't sell yourself short. Windfall may be on the way, but you have to be ready to receive it. You'll understand!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Trust judgment, intuition. You are on target — know it and act like you are aware of it. Be confident. Personality shines — you can win friends and influence people. Another Aquarian is likely to be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get behind the scenes. Information is available if you reject cover stories. The valid is apt to be hidden between the lines. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Questions are answered by member of opposite sex.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an organizer, a natural executive, capable of handling responsibility, working under pressure. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You now are making valuable contacts, planting seeds to bear fruit in October.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
